TORONTO TOPICS.

John Ormiston of Gananoque Chosen Grand Master I. O. O. F.

TORONTO, Aug. 15.—Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., of Ontario, elected these officers yesterday morning: Grand Master, John Ormiston, Gananoque; deputy grand master, P. E. Fitzpatrick, Hamilton; grand secretary, J. B. King, Toronto; grand treasurer, William Badenach, Toronto; representative, H. Robertson, Collingwood; auditor, C. Packers, Stratford.

John Sinclair, aged 82, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday morning. He was a Scotchman, well known, and had lived in Toronto for 50 years and was formerly very active in politics. He was a Reformer.

The District Assembly of the K. of L. have endorsed the business tax.

Rev. John Leishman of Angus has accepted a call to Chester Presbyterian Church, in the suburbs of Toronto.

Miss Kerslake, music teacher of Bowmanville, who was visiting friends in West Toronto Junction, became suddenly ill while being driven from Toronto. She became unconscious before she could reach the house of her friend and never rallied. Death was caused by the bursting of a blood vessel.

Latser B. Willsie, a printer by trade, who has been living at 147 Church-street, is a prisoner at Police Headquarters charged with bigamy. He was first married Oct. 5, 1886, by Rev. J. Howell of Owen Sound to Sarah Walker, and by her had two children. Growing tired of her he came down to Toronto about six months ago, and while attending Agnes-street Methodist Church made the acquaintance of a domestic employed at 237 Seaton-street and was married to her on Aug. 1 by Rev. J. P. Lewis of Grace Church. Wife No. 1, becoming tired of living alone, came to Toronto yesterday to find her wayward husband, and succeeded in locating his place of residence. He was taken into custody and acknowledged having married both women, but said he grew tired of the first.

John ("Jumbo") Campbell, the Queen's Park Sunday orator, has sent in a bill of $350 to the city for the destruction of his plate-glass windows by unknown miscreants.

THE OARSMEN.

Results of the Last Day at Lake Quinsigamond.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 14.—The second and last day of the National Amateur Regatta was the occasion of six magnificent races. Muller of the first New York Athletic Association pair-oar fainted when in the lead ½ mile from the finish, and the other clubs passed them.

Senior singles, final heat—1, William Caffrey of Lawrence, time 10.18¼; 2, E. J. Carney, Newark, N.J., time 10.34¼; 3, F. S. Hawkins, New York.

Junior singles, final heat—1, A. L. Bennett, Worcester, time 10.29¾; 2, P. Lehany, Albany, time 10.36¼; 3, A. C. Dowling, Boston; 4. J. Wright, Toronto.

Junior fours—1, Crescent B. C., Boston, time 9.30; 2, Narragansett B. C., Providence, time 9.39.

Pair oars—1, Detroit B. C., time 10.15¼; 2, New York A. C., time 10.31¾; 3, N.W.A.C.C.

Double sculls—1, R. C. Bayside, Toronto (Arthur Cameron and Robert Curran), time 9.15; 2, B. C. Varium, Brooklyn (Platt and Freeth), time 9.12¼.

Final heat, 8-oared shells—Atlantas, New York, won. Time 8.12¾. This time beats all previous records on still water. The record was 8.16. The result came somewhat as a surprise to the sports, as the crack Bradford crew started hot favorites. They were beaten 8 seconds.

THE FLOUR MARKET.

An Advance in Prices and Evidences of General Strength.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 14.—The Northwestern Miller says: Owing to low water the flour output showed a further decline last week. The aggregate production was 136,275 barrels. Quotations of flour are again 20 to 40 cents per barrel higher than a week ago to meet the advance in wheat. While at the top the business done has been light, there was quite free selling of patents for New England at $5.70 to $5.75, and even now those who do not hold quite as high as others report a fair demand. The sales of patent for the week probably equalled or exceeded the manufacture. The foreign trade is restricted by high prices. Bakers' are in moderate request at 24s 6d to 24s, but most of the mills are either sold ahead or are desirous of closing up their books for the year before accepting such business. Generally considered the market is very strong. The direct export shipments for the week were 30,800 bbls.

A BRAKEMAN KILLED.

John Lawrie of Toronto Terribly Mangled By a Freight Train.

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 14.—Brakeman John Lawrie, aged 24, fell off the ladder on the back of a box car in the railway yard here this morning. He fell outside the rails, but the oil-box caught him and twisted him round and round, breaking his back and neck and terribly mangling him. His body was taken to Toronto on the mail train to be buried there. He was a resident of Toronto, but has no relatives in this country.

Drowned While Bathing

ASBURY PARK, N.J., Aug. 14.—Zeal L. Hurlburt, aged 35, of Buffalo, and Miss Florence Sullivan of Brooklyn were drowned this afternoon while bathing in the sea.

THE LEPERS OF TRACADIE

HARROWING SIGHTS IN THE DOMINION LAZARETTO.

How the Government and Sisters of Charity Smooth the Doomed Patients' Path—The Origin of the Scourge—The First Symptoms.

TRACADIE, N.B., Aug. 14.—One has not to go to far Molokai to witness that awful blight of the flesh, leprosy. Here in this out of the way spot of New Brunswick, on the shores of the great ocean, I saw yesterday sights that are calculated to make the soul sick indeed. Here are literally immured a score or more of wretches touched with a foulness which, for no fault of their own, excludes them forever from the world. It is true they are treated with more consideration than the lepers of scriptural times who dwelt in the open sepulchres about Jerusalem, subsisting on the fragments that accidental charity dropped on the ground in the wilderness. Nor is heard from them that terrible cry as of a lost soul in the Dantean hell, "Unclean! Unclean!" No, the lot of these unfortunates is made as endurable as the ghastly malady of which they are the victims will permit.

The Dominion Government has erected a commodious hospital on the banks of Tracadie River, overlooking the gulf into which the slender streamlet falls. It would be difficult to find anywhere a lovelier combination of "streamlet and hill" than this. Would that one could forget the hopeless fate of these fellows. But alas! they are "the world forgetting, by the world forgot." All that makes life worth enduring has been withdrawn from them.

The inmates and the house itself are kept scrupulously clean. Hired attendants do all the manual work. The inmates have no tasks imposed on them. Their path to death is smoothed and relieved of cares. They have a small farm with which they may do what they choose. They have boats in which they may fish and trawl or simply idle away the summer days.

As to the origin of the disease, some find it in the deterioration caused by generations of inter-marriage. The county of Gloucester, which is the seat of the disease, is settled by Acadian French and shut out to a large extent from the outside world by their different tongue. The little community married and intermarried until nearly everybody was related to everybody else. One story is that 140 years ago a bark from the coast of Syria was wrecked in the Gulf of St. Lawrence just off the shores of Gloucester county. The rescued sailors stayed for some considerable time with the Acadians, and from them the latter contracted the first cases of leprosy. Another version has it that a stranger hailing from Quebec was afflicted with the horror and left it as a legacy to his entertainers, while still another story is that the disease was contracted through some of the people eating putrid fish.

The disease is called leprosy, although it is probable that it is in many respects different from the leprosy which whitened the skin and rotted the bones of the Hebrews of old. But this is undoubtedly a malady of the same nature. It has been called by medical men Greek elephantiasis. A recent authority thus describes its symptoms:

"The first indication of the disease is the appearance of tiny tubercles on the skin, and especially on the face. These increase from the size of a pin head to that of a hazel nut. The nose and lips become thickened and swollen, so that the mouth is distorted and the features unrecognizable. The eyes droop, and eyelashes and eyebrows and sometimes the hair drop out. After a time the tubercles break, ulcerate and discharge, the disease even attacking the cartilage and bone, and piece by piece joints and flesh fall off until death gives the sufferer freedom from his terrible lot."

The average duration of the disease from the time the first symptoms are discovered until death ensues is about ten or twelve years.

The lazaretto was taken in charge by the Dominion Government in 1880, and Dr. Smith was placed in charge, who keeps a sharp lookout for infected persons.

In a conversation I had with the doctor he said:

"I am not yet satisfied that the disease is incurable. I discharged one man from the hospital some years ago and he has had no return of the symptoms. Last year I discharged a girl who had been admitted to the lazaretto just as soon as the first symptoms of infection developed themselves. Still, though these two are apparently free from the malady, I do not regard the cases as permanently cured, and I still hold them under close surveillance. Of late the disease has been dying out in Tracadie, its original seat; but out of the five new cases taken in last year one was from Cape Breton and four from the parishes which adjoin Tracadie—namely, Shippegan and Caraquet. I have traced a new focus to the disease, situated between Shippegan and Caraquet, and from this centre I have traced it to other settlements."

The act which gives the doctor authority to segregate patients does not apply to the new hotbeds of the disease, but he feels that as soon as he possesses that power he will be able to stamp it out entirely.

Garutia Goes Home.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Manuel Garutia, the wealthy Mexican student who was found suffering from leprosy at the boarding house No. 105 East Twenty-eighth-street, on July 28, and was removed to North Brothers' Island by order of the Board of Health, has left with his family for his home in Yucatan. He was taken over the Pennsylvania Railroad. He was heavily clothed to prevent any one coming in contact with his diseased body.

SLEPT AT HIS POST.

Capt. Pourlot Dismissed from the Fishery Protection Service.

HALIFAX, Aug. 14.—Capt. Pourlot of the cruiser Connaught has been dismissed from the fishery protection service. A court of enquiry held aboard the flagship Acadia by Capt. Gordon revealed the fact that Capt. Pourlot had been deceiving his superiors as to the movements of his cruiser. The log sometimes showed that the vessel was at sea watching Yankee pirates while she was actually lying in Alberton harbor and the crew enjoying themselves at picnics and other frolics and Capt. Pourlot was a sentinel who slept at his post frequently.

A St. Lawrence Pilotess.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 14.—It is not generally known that there is a lady on the river who is capable of piloting steamboats, but such is nevertheless the case. Mrs. George O. Lewis of New York City has received pilot papers from the United States Government, which allow her to pilot [illegible] the waters of the [illegible] [illegible] duly [illegible] 1890, of which [illegible]

Her 102d Descendant.

QUEBEC, Aug. 14.—The widow of Isaac Giguere of St. Roche, aged 79, was present yesterday at the christening of her 102d descendant. She counts 10 children, 86 grandchildren and 6 great grandchildren.

AN ANCASTER FARMER KILLED.

Fatal Accident in a Hay Field—A Hamilton Moulder Drowned.

HAMILTON, Aug. 14.—John Calder, jr., living in Ancaster Township, was haying yesterday afternoon. His team in some unexplained way became startled and Mr. Calder was run over and fatally injured. He died shortly afterward. The dead man was 35 years of age and unmarried.

William Bell, a moulder who lived at 35 Cannon-street west, was drowned at the Beach about 12 o'clock last night. Bell was heading probably for the Macassa, which had swung to at the piers to bring the last load home, when he fell off the piers and, before assistance could reach him, was drowned. The night was dark, and exactly how the accident occurred will probably never be known. What can be learned is that there was a splash in the water near the ferry slip, and a cry went up from many bystanders on the piers that some one had fallen overboard. Captain Campbell was soon on the spot and discerned three forms struggling in the water. Two of the men were got out, one of them, J. Wright, being rescued by his companion, W. Malvorey. The other man sank before assistance could reach him. Mr. Blackstock of the Toronto yacht Oriole dived and brought the body to the surface. Dr. Cuthbertson of Toronto worked hard to restore life, but the efforts were unavailing. Bell was dead.

The prize list of the big baby show last week in the Palace Rink amounts to something like $300. The prizes are as yet unpaid, and the mothers of the successful infants are kicking themselves for having entered the competition. When the show closed Manager Fulton said that he would pay the prize money some day this week. He left town last Sunday, saying he was going to London to get money to pay the prizes. Since then he has not been heard from.

At the meeting of the Presbytery to-day the resignation of Rev. Mr. Peatchall of Wellandport was considered. Rev. Mr. Peatchall used to be a Methodist minister, and it is said that he introduces Methodist ideas and methods too much to suit the Presbyterians to whom he ministers, the most heinous crime against him being that he has allowed a Methodist class-leader to preach for him in his absence.

LAKE AND RAIL RATES.

Meeting of the Joint Committee at Chicago—Questions Referred.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The joint committee of the Central Traffic Association and the trunk lines, including the lake and rail lines, met this morning. The subject of rates was brought up first, but the attempt to raise the tariff on hogs, beef, provisions, grain, oil cake and wool from Chicago to the seaboard was unsuccessful, and the subject was laid on the table. The presence of representatives of the lake lines was a particular feature of the meeting, and to the lake committee several important matters were referred. They are to work on lake and rail differentials on all rail classified freight to the east, not including grain. They are to discuss the point at which rates take effect in Chicago and the proposition to exchange statements with the all-rail lines in order to secure the better maintenance of rates. They are also to consider the adoption of the uniform bill of lading on the lake lines. To the trunk line committee were referred the questions connected with the uniform bill of lading and local rates. It was voted to restore the tariff on iron on Sept. 1 to the figure in effect before the April reduction.

HIS ARM CUT OFF.

A St. Thomas Liquor Dealer Run Down by a Yard Engine.

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 14.—About 9 o'clock this evening John Doyle, wholesale liquor dealer and a prominent citizen for the past ten years, was run over by a yard engine at the Michigan Central depot and had his right arm cut nearly off at the shoulder, his left hand badly crushed and was cut about the head and legs. It was found necessary to amputate the arm at once. He now lies in a critical condition but hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The Fertilizers Act.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—Several important amendments to the Fertilizers Act were passed last session of Parliament, in consequence of which the Department of Inland Revenue has issued certain notices to those interested in the artificial manure trade, calling attention to the steps necessary for conforming to the law. It had been found that many parties were offering for sale fertilizers made by manufacturers who had neglected to send samples of them to the department, as required even by the old act. The sellers of these have been warned that in so doing they render themselves liable to prosecution, and no doubt proceedings will be taken in every such case hereafter, and it has also become necessary for all vendors of fertilizers to send in their names to the Department of Registration, annually paying a fee of $1. This is for the purpose of enabling the authorities to collect the samples at the proper time. Persons engaged in selling fertilizers should make certain that samples of the brand they offer have been sent to the department by the manufacturers and duly analysed. A fee of $3 for the analysis of each sample is now exacted.

Nova Scotia Crops.

HALIFAX, Aug. 14.—According to the Government crop report just issued, the Nova Scotia hay crop, although scarcely reaching the average in most localities, is unsatisfactory. The weather for securing it has been all that could be desired, and this has lessened the labor and expense of haymaking and insured an unusual excellency in quality. The old hay in barns appears to be quite sufficient to make up any deficiency. Root crops are coming away well, but the potato fields require constant attention to rid them of the so-called Colorado beetle, which is more formidable now than in any former season in Nova Scotia.

He Will Fight Extradition.

WINDSOR, Aug. 14.—A detective arrived from Pittsburgh yesterday and spent the greater part of the day in trying to induce the attorneys of John C. Mullins, the alleged Pittsburg forger, to advise him to go back without a requisition. Mullins, however, states that he intends to fight the case. The amount of the alleged forgeries is nearly $6000, the German National Bank being interested the most.

Smallpox in the Guatemalan Army.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 14.—Smallpox is causing many deaths in the Guatemalan ranks on the Salvadorian frontier.

It appears difficult to arrange peace, as United States Minister Mizener will not act in accord with the rest of the diplomatic corps.

Held on a Serious Charge.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 14.—George Lavis, aged 15, was committed for trial yesterday by A. F. Wood, M.L.A., for a criminal assault on the 5-year-old step-daughter of Edward McQuillan, a resident of Huntingdon.

THE BLOCKADE LIFTED.

TRAINS RUNNING REGULARLY ON THE CENTRAL.

The Passenger Service Said To Be as Good as Before the Strike—The Delaware & Hudson Men Return to Work Fully Satisfied.

ALBANY, Aug. 14.—The hundred yard men who were out on strike on the Delaware & Hudson Road at this point have agreed to return to work. The night force went on at 6 o'clock to-night and the day force will go on at 6 o'clock to-morrow morning. The men have become satisfied that their suspicions of the D. & H. knowingly handling Central freight were unjustified.

The strikers continue to speak with confidence of the final results of the strike. The passenger service on the Central Road was to-day beyond criticism. Six freights were sent west and seven south from the West Albany yards this afternoon. There was no freight moved there to-night. The yardmaster at West Albany said he had cleared two tracks through the blockade of cars and that through freights to-day came over those tracks where formerly passenger tracks were used. The usual daily number of east and west freight trains in and out of the West Albany yards reached 70, while 35 north and south trains represent the freight traffic on the Hudson River division.

The Welsh Strike Settled.

CARDIFF, Aug. 14.—Representatives of the railway authorities and the striking employes met to-day and arrived at a settlement. The strike is ended.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

A Chemical Combine—The Panic Spreading in Armenia.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—A chemical union, the aim of which is to monopolize the trade in chemicals, has been formed. The union has a capital of $40,000,000.

Terrified Armenians.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The panic among the Christian inhabitants of Armenia is spreading. Hundreds are fleeing to Persia.

Cholera on the Euxine.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 14.—Five persons have died at Nicolaieff from a disease supposed to be Asiatic cholera. Eleven cases of the disease have been reported there so far. The Porte has decided to quarantine all arrivals from places on the Black Sea.

SWEPT OVER THE FALLS.

Two Foolhardy Oarsmen Lose Their Lives in the Niagara Flood.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 14.—Two unknown men were swept over the Horseshoe Falls to-day. They had been out in a rowboat above the rapids, and the current proved too much for them. One leaped out of the boat and attempted to swim ashore but was carried down by the current, and the other made the fatal plunge clinging to the capsized boat.

Losses Caused by Flames.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 14.—The Kentucky Distillery Company's plant was entirely destroyed by fire. Loss $600,000, fully insured.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 14.—Six of Mrs. Rose Thompson's houses were burned about 2 o'clock this morning. It was in one of these houses that William Arthurs and his wife were cremated last spring. It is thought $500 will cover the loss.

TROY, N.Y., Aug. 14.—At midnight fire broke out at Boutwell & Son's flouring mills here. The property will probably be totally destroyed. The loss may reach $100,000.

BELLAIRE, O., Aug. 14.—The Bellaire goblet works and two frame dwellings adjoining were burned this morning. Loss $50,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 14.—Japan advices state that 1600 houses of the poorer class were recently burned in Tokyo.

The Bishop of Alexandria.

KINGSTON, Aug. 14.—Rev. Alexander Macdonell, whose appointment as Roman Catholic Bishop of Alexandria has just been announced, is about 50 years of age. He was ordained a priest 27 years ago. He was born in Lochiel, a few miles distant from the see of Alexandria. Shortly after his ordination he was appointed pastor of Lochiel, and in 1879 was transferred by Bishop O'Brien to Alexandria. He labored there until 1886, when he was appointed vicar-general of the diocese of Kingston by Archbishop Cleary. During his appointment at Alexandria he built a most beautiful church, known as St. Finnan. He is well fitted for the position, especially as he speaks with fluency English, French and Gaelic. His diocese is composed of Highland Scotch. His see is only seven miles from the first Catholic see in Ontario, for which Bishop Alexander Macdonell was consecrated in 1821. In 1826 the see was transferred from St. Raphael's to Kingston.

Jamaica's Trade.

OTTAWA, Aug. 14.—A pamphlet of 71 pages, prepared under the direction of George Johnson, Dominion statistician, was received yesterday at the statistical department from the printers. This book is compiled for distribution by Adam Brown, honorary commissioner from Canada to the Jamaica exhibition. It contains information in detail respecting the imports and exports of the West Indies to and from the United States in order to show to Canadian merchants the character of the exports of our neighbors, so that an effort may be made to obtain a still larger share of this trade for the Dominion. The pamphlet contains the quantities of different articles imported by Canada from the West Indies, Brazil and Mexico for the past 16 years and the exports to these countries for the same period. There are also tables of the exports and imports for 14 years with South America, the object being to give such information to the merchants and manufacturers of Canada as will enable them to judge of the extent which the proposed Jamaica exhibition is offering to them new avenues of trade.

Trash But Not Indecent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The grand jury yesterday refused to indict Manager Patrick Farrell of the American News Company and his two assistants, who were arrested for selling obscene literature by Agent Britton of the Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Laws. The books on which the arrests were based were "Thou Shalt Not" and "Speaking of Ellen," by Ross; "The Devil's Daughter," by Balzac; "An Actor's Wife," by George Moore, and the "Clemenceau Case," by the younger Dumas. Assistant District Attorney Lindsay and Judge Bedford were before the jury, and Mr. Bedford told them that in his opinion the books were merely "trash." On his recommendation the cases were dismissed.

A Hamiltonian Hurt.

DETROIT, Aug. 14.—Percy Kerr of Hamilton, Ont., was leaning over the side of the steamer Canada at 1 o'clock this morning just as she was leaving the dock at the foot of Bates-street when one of the fenders broke. Kerr was hit on the head and face and rendered unconscious. His injuries are severe.

Y.M.C.A. CAMP.

A Musicale on Juniper Island—The Close of the Camp.

Correspondence of the Review.

Y.M.C.A. CAMP, JUNIPER ISLAND, STONY LAKE, AUG. 14.

On Tuesday evening a very enjoyable "Musicale" was held. Miss Brundrette and Messrs. Crane, Stevens and members of Harmony Camp gave some entertaining vocal selections, Mr. Simpson, Toronto, also gave a humorous solo, Mr. T. S. Cole gave several recitations, which were greatly appreciated. The attendance at the camp fire and on the water in canoes was large and all were profuse in their applause as each number was given. The programme was closed by singing "God Save the Queen." Afterwards Harmony Camp bid our visitors adieu by singing a number of camp songs as the canoes were paddled away from the island with their living freight.

Our thanks are due to the kind friends who helped us to have such a pleasant and profitable evening.

Although camp closes to-day Mr. Cole will remain several weeks yet and conduct services on each Sabbath day as usual. Mr. G. E. Williams will return to Kingston on Saturday.

The weather now is delightful. Our only regret is that we have had so much rain, but we have had a good rest and all will return strong for service during the coming months.

Several Questions.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I would like to ask one or two questions that ought to be of interest to all our law-abiding citizens. Why is that part of the "Crooks Act" altogether disregarded and ignored which requires all windows and doors of bar-rooms in hotels and saloons to be left uncovered by either curtains, or frosting, or anything that will prevent anyone outside from seeing into the room, just as readily as you look into a dry goods or jewelry store, or any respectable place of business? Why are we compelled to have an absentee license inspector, who makes visits at intervals, sometimes of months, and there is strong presumptive evidence that the hotel keepers are informed of these visits beforehand and are prepared for it? Why is information respecting violations of the license law supplied to the inspector by the police and others from time to time not acted on? How many hotel keepers are respecting their promises made during the time the Scott Act was in force, that they would keep the Crooks Act to the letter if it came into force again? Which of our hotel keepers are not selling every day to boys under age? Which one of them does not violate the Saturday night and Sunday closing regulations? And yet we pay an inspector to stay at least nine miles away. How long must this be endured?

A COLLINGWOOD BLAZE.

THE CIVIC HOLIDAY FESTIVITIES INTERRUPTED.

Fire Starts in the Old Market Building—The New Town Hall Totally Wrecked—Visiting Firemen Lend a Hand to Save the Town.

COLLINGWOOD, Aug. 13.—To-day was civic holiday. Great preparations were made by the Georgian Fire Company for a grand day at the town park, games and sports of all kinds being advertised. While these were taking place the fire bell rang out for No. 2 Ward. The old market building directly back of the new building was discovered to be on fire. The building being old and dry the flames spread rapidly. Unfortunately the wind was high and blowing directly towards the new building, the lock-up and other small buildings. Of these the first to take fire was Brown's repair shop. From this the fire spread to the lock-up and an adjoining dwelling house. The Grand Central Hotel stables were the next consumed.

The new Town Hall just completed caught next. The fire spread quickly until the entire handsome structure, which cost the town over $20,000, was completely gutted, the walls only standing. Druggist D. Oliphant, who occupied a store in the market, will lose heavily on account of breakage. Jeweler A. Nettleton will lose considerable by removal. Brown Bros., butchers, Ironside & Fish and H. Rowe will all lose. The Grand Central Hotel had a narrow escape, all the outbuildings and sheds were completely destroyed. C. Stephens & Co. and Burdett's brick block were in immediate danger at one time, but were saved. The drill shed and other storage places were on fire several times but were fortunately saved. The Orillia and Meaford fire brigades, who were here on an excursion, worked well.

The Town Hall was insured in the Liverpool, London & Globe for $3000, Imperial $3000, London & Lancashire $3000, Northern $3000.

FOUR PLUCKY LADS.

Save Half-a-dozen Lives at Hamilton—Killed in a Railroad Accident.

HAMILTON, Aug. 13.—James and Harry, sons of Rev. S. Lyle; Haviland, Mr. Thomas Wanzer's son, and John, a son of ex-Ald. Roaf of Toronto, four lads whose ages range from 11 to 14 years, saw a sail boat, containing half-a-dozen young men, capsize in the bay and quickly manned a boat and set out to the rescue. The waves were rolling high, but the youngsters were game, and after rowing a couple of miles reached the shipwrecked individuals, all of whom were clinging to their upturned craft. "Who of you cannot swim? Those we will save first!" called out young Wanzer, and the three who lacked this necessary accomplishment were taken into the rescuers' boat and taken to shore. Then Mr. Lindsay of the Beach, who had also seen the accident, rowed out to the scene of the accident also, got another on board and safely landed him. The quartet of young heroes returned for the remaining two and placed them on terra firma.

Early this morning the family of Patrick Sullivan, 39 Tiffany-street, were shocked by the receipt of a telegram informing them of the death of Patrick Sullivan, jr., aged 19. The telegram comes from a small town in Pennsylvania, and beyond stating that the boy was killed in a railroad accident it gave no further information. The young fellow had written home to say that he was coming and the next news that came was the telegram telling of his sudden death. Mr. Sullivan left Hamilton this morning to bring home the body of his boy.

J. Eustice's grocery store was burglarised this morning. A quantity of goods, such as canned salmon, sardines, pickles, parcels of sugar, etc., are missed, but Mr. Eustice does not know the exact extent of his loss. An attempt was made a few nights ago to burglarize Mr. Eustice's liquor store.

William H. Allan of Niagara Falls came here on an excursion loaded up with beer and was arrested. A revolver was found in his hip pocket which he said was an heirloom. He pleaded ignorance of the law, but was fined $20 and the revolver was confiscated.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM.

How It Was Rudely Interrupted at the Capital.

OTTAWA, Aug. 13.—A romantic marriage took place here Friday night. Some time ago Mr. A. Guinard solicited the hand of his betrothed, a Miss Morin, in marriage from her father, but was refused. In the meantime the young couple met and kept up their acquaintance unknown to the bride's parents.

On Friday evening, says The Free Press, they were driven to the residence of Mr. Bogert and were married. After the ceremony was performed the newly-wedded couple drove to the residence of the bride's father for the purpose of asking his forgiveness. Upon being informed of what had taken place Mr. Morin took his son-in-law by the throat and after giving him a severe thrashing threw him into the street. While this was going on Mrs. Morin took her daughter in hand, and after chastising her locked her in a room, where she has been confined a prisoner ever since.

Mr. Guinard was seen this morning. He said: "Yes, I'm married and they won't give me my wife. I got a marriage license and was legally married in the eyes of the law by Rev. James J. Bogert. Some people tell me it was a mock marriage and I must be married over again. If I agree to do this I can have my wife."

"Upon what grounds do they claim you are not legally married?" asked the reporter.

"We are both Catholics," said Mr. Guinard, "and they say we can be married only by a priest. I tell you I won't be married again. I will go to Mr. Morin's house and demand my wife, and if she is refused me I will take legal proceedings."

Notes from the Capital.

Found in the Water.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 13.—Mabel Nott of Rochester employed Chauncey Wheeler, an oarsman, Sunday afternoon to take her to Anthony's Point, below Alexandria Bay. The oarsman left her there and went away, she having told him to return in two hours. Not long afterwards her cries attracted the attention of George Dobbins, who was rowing in the vicinity, and he hurried to rescue her from the water. She was nearly exhausted when Mr. Dobbins pulled her out of the water, and had he not arrived in the nick of time she would undoubtedly have been drowned. It is believed that she attempted suicide. Two weeks ago she was discharged from the Hartman House, Alexandria Bay, where she was employed as a domestic, and since that time she has acted strangely. She is now stopping at the h[illegible]

TORONTO TOPICS.

The Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. in Session at the Queen City.

TORONTO, Aug. 14.—The 25th annual meeting of the Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., of Ontario, opened here yesterday morning. There were about 300 delegates present from different parts of the province. The proceedings were opened by Deputy District Grand Master Coyell of Toronto, who welcomed the delegates to the city. The 24th annual report of Grand Secretary King said, with but very trifling exception, the march of the Order in Ontario has been one of steady and almost uninterrupted progress. From the few lodges reported in 1856 the number has reached to be a vast army numbering nearly 17,500 members, a proof beyond denial that the Order has in it the elements of success and is of a nature to meet the requirements of the day. The net increase in membership for the year was 494. The deaths were 84; 1966 brothers received 7315 weeks' sick benefits, amounting to $23,362.90; to this must be added the other items of relief and benefit, surgeons' fees, nursing, paid to widows and orphans, burying the dead, etc., bringing the total to $39,789.54, an excess of nearly $10,000 over the expenditure for the same purposes for the previous half year. Since 1856 the order in Ontario has paid out for the relief of its members and the prevention of distress $550,453.62.

Frederick W. Curzon, staff-sergeant of the Grenadiers, and son of Mr. R. Curzon of the City Treasurer's department, died yesterday afternoon at his father's residence, No. 5 Washington-avenue, after an illness of three weeks. His mother is Mrs. Sarah Curzon, author of "Laura Secord."

THE QUINSIGAMOND REGATTA.

Canadian Oarsmen Make a Good Showing but Take No Firsts.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 13.—The 18th annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen began here to-day, attendance 1200. The races were all exciting. Results:

Senior single sculls, first trial heat—1, Wm. Caffrey, Lawrence, Mass., time 10.25¼; 2, Fred S. Hawkins, New York, time 10.31¼; 3, Charles E. Bulger, Mutual R. C., Albany; 4, George J. Kirby, Providence, R.I.

Second trial heat—1, E. J. Carney, Newark, N.J., time 9.41; 2, G. O. Nettleton, St. Paul, time 9.52¼; 3, A. P. Burritt, Toronto; 4, E. W. Newton, Atherton, N.Y.

Junior singles—1st trial—1, A. C. Downing, Boston, time 10.31¼; 2, Joseph Wright, Toronto, time 10.40¼.

Second trial—1, A. L. Bennett, Worcester, time 10.05; 2, P. Lehany, Albany R. C., time 10.05¼; 3, O. W. Dwyer, Boston.

Senior fours—1st Bradford B.C., Boston, time 8.40¼; second Albany R.C., time 8.43; 3d, Atlantas, New York, and Argonauts of Toronto, tied; 4th, Ottawa (Ont.) R.C.

Quarter mile dash for senior sculls—1, E. J. Carney, Newark, N.J., time 1.22¼; 2 William Caffrey, Lawrence, Mass., time 1.22¼; 3, C. J. Kirby of the Pawtuckets, and John E. Nagle, Metropolitan, New York, tied, time 1.23¼; 4, James P. Fox, Boston.

Yacht Racing at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, Aug. 13.—The Lake Yacht Racing Association opened their circuit of races here to-day. Many thousands of people lined the beach. The contestants and the races being well managed the affair was a decided success in every particular.

At 8 o'clock this morning there was scarcely any wind and some of the visiting yachts which had not yet arrived had to be towed in by the steamers. A couple of hours later a steady breeze blew from the south-east and at 11 o'clock a good wind was blowing from the east. All but the 21 and 25-footers were got off between 11 and 12 o'clock, and at 3 o'clock the smaller ones, who were required to go round the course but once, were sent off. In the class over 46-feet the Scotch cutter Vreda of Toronto came in first, but on time allowance she was put back to second place. In the 46-foot class the White Wings of Hamilton was an easy winner, and in the 40-footers the Yama of Oswego ran away from all competitors, and also finished ahead of all larger boats in the classes above her. The Merle of Oswego came in seven minutes behind the Yama. Both the Oswego yachts were handled in a capital manner and much praise was bestowed upon the captains and crews for the prowess displayed in sailing over the course.

A protest has been entered against the yacht Coquette on the ground that she was sailed by a man who was not a member of any yacht club. This evening the prizes were distributed to the winners in the parlor of the Ocean House. The following are the winners in their respective classes:

FORTY-SIX FEET AND OVER: Oriole 1, Vreda 2, Aileen 3.

FORTY-SIX-FOOTERS: White Wings 1, Condor 2, Toronto Verve 3, Madge 4, Hamilton Verve 5.

FORTY-FOOTERS: Yama 1, Merle 2, Psyche 3, Vixen 4.

THIRTY-FIVE-FOOTERS: Coquette 1, Alert 2, Cyprus 3, Edith 4. (The Coquette was disqualified and the Alert given first prize.)

THIRTY-FOOTERS: Nancy 1, Nadia 2, Echo 3, Samoa 4, Wona 5, Volante 6, Velnette 7, Amelia 8, Kelpie 9.

TWENTY-FIVE-FOOTERS: Mischief 1, Maud B. 2, NoTwo 3, Schemer 4, Nadjy 5.

TWENTY-ONE-FOOT: Widgeon 1, Ramble 2, Caprice 3, Xantho 4.

South Ward Fire Alarm.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—As there has been considerable talk about the delay in getting the key of the south ward fire alarm box on the night of the fatal fire on Dalhousie-st., I have been asked to make an explanation.

The key had been left at my house for the convenience of the residents. On the night mentioned I was awakened by a loud ring at my front door bell. I immediately ran down stairs, opened the door and found two young men, one of whom asked for the key of the fire alarm box. In less than one minute from the time my bell was rung, I had handed the key to one of the young men. Surely that was quick enough work. Three or four of my neighbors who had their heads out of their windows at the time and heard my bell, state that it wasn't more than half a minute before I was down stairs and gave the key to the messengers. I fancy this ought to satisfy everybody, except, perhaps, my excitable friend ex-Councillor McNaughton, who "pitched in to me" at the fire and abused me for not being quicker. He "blathered" so much about it that I have no doubt the firemen and others present at first thought that there might be something in John's "blather." But they have learned the truth since, and know how to make a proper allowance for what John says, especially when he gets excited.

Yours truly,
LEWIS FRAY.

"I HATE WRITING LETTERS"

is the remark often heard.
And Why?

Because Paper is'nt handy, the Ink has given out, Pens are no good—and its not a fair day for writing.

There's little excuse for the paper not at hand when one pound of Fine Cream Linen Note Paper, ruled and unruled can be had for 25 cents at the REVIEW Stationery Store. It is superior English made Paper, looks well, writes easily, is thick and good looking. Now that the ounce is mailed for 3 cents thick paper is much used. Envelopes to match. A Civic Holiday Blaze.

The fourth alarm of fire in the last three days was sounded shortly after six o'clock last evening, when the old butcher shop on George-st, just below Howden's butcher shop, was discovered to be in flames. C., was damaged some months ago by fire and has been in disuse ever since. The loss will be small. The fire must have been the work of an incendiary.

A DAY OF EXCURSIONS.

A VERY QUIET CIVIC HOLIDAY IN TOWN.

The Excursions Were well Patronized—The Royal Templars Secure the Largest Crowd—The Trips to Various Points.

Yesterday was our Civic holiday and a quiet, uneventful day it was in town. The many excursions which left for almost every point of interest in this vicinity were fairly well patronized and as a result the town was almost deserted. The streets were prevaded with a Sabbath stillness after the excursions had left in the morning, and all remained quiet until evening when the pleasure seekers returned.

With the Royal Templars.

The Chemong train left the station at 8.30 in the morning with six coaches filled to overflowing to take the trip by boat from Chemong to Lakefield under the auspices of Peterborough Council of Royal Templars. A quick run brought the party to Chemong station, where the steamer Alice Ethel was waiting for them with a large scow. About five hundred or more people boarded the vessels, and at 10 o'clock the Alice Ethel steamed out into Chemong lake. The water from Chemong to Buckhorn, through Buckhorn lake, was new to a great many on board, and the trip was enjoyed by all. It was nearly 12 o'clock when Buckhorn was reached, and it was decided to stop there for dinner. After a stop of about an hour and a half the steamer proceeded down the river and into Deer bay. The scenery all along, with island, bluffs, sloping shores, woodland and grassy slopes was picturesque and interesting. At Lovesick locks a large number got off and wandered about the shores and the rapids, until the steamer was through the locks, and then the pretty sail through Lovesick lake was enjoyed. Burleigh Falls was an interesting point to many, and although the work on the locks at Buckhorn and Lovesick had drawn out exclamations of admiration, it was surpassed by the massive work at Burleigh. A stop of about an hour was made at this point, and the steamer then entered one of the most beautiful sheets of water on the continent, Stony lake. Nearly all were familiar with this lake, but it possesses beauties of which one never grows weary. Just after leaving Burleigh Falls there was an exciting episope. Some boys in two canoes followed the boat and one canoe was fastened to the scow and was being towed along. The two boys in the other canoe were drawing up to the scow when their craft upset and the cry of "boy overboard" was raised. One of the occupants of the first canoe jumped into the water and assisted the others. Boats put out from the shore and the lads were soon rescued from their dangerous position. Young's Point was reached in good time, and a pleasant sail through Katchewanooka brought the party to Lakefield a little after 7 o'clock. At that village the Y.M.C.A. band excursionists were waiting and the two parties boarded the train and were soon home. Several on the round trip had fishing tackle with them and successfully tempted fine specimens of the finny tribe. One party, consisting of Messrs. T. E. Fitzgerald, Wm. Fitzgerald, J. Billington and M. O'Brien, succeeded in catching thirty-eight bass at the different locks while the boat was being locked through, some of them very fine fish. The Royal Templars' first excursion was a pronounced success. They took the largest party from town and chose a fine route. The fine inland lakes, with the diversified scenery, were so interesting that the long sail could not fail to be enjoyable, while the locks served to break any tendency to monotony.

With the C.M.B.A. and E.B.A.

At seven o'clock in the morning a train of eight coaches left the G.T.R. station carrying between three and four hundred happy excursionists who were bound to spend the day with the C.M.B.A. and E.B.A. at the beautiful city of Belleville. The run down was made without incident and Belleville was reached about eleven, the excursionists disembarking at the market square in the heart of the city. A large number did not remain in the city but took the steamer for Massassaga Park, where a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Those who remained in Belleville enjoyed themselves seeing the sights or watching the cricket and baseball matches which were being played and the reports of which appear in another column. The day with its shaded sun was an ideal one for sight seeing or sport watching and the games were enjoyed immensely. The train left again for home and arrived here about ten o'clock with no accident or disturbance to mar the day's pleasant proceedings.

With the Foresters.

Between two and three hundred persons took in the Foresters excursion over the C.P.R. to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo. Some of the excursionists remained in Toronto, others went on to Niagara on the steamer Chicora while others again went on to Buffalo. The arrangements were most satisfactory, nothing arising to mar the delightful trip. The majority of the excursionists did not return last night, remaining over in Buffalo or Toronto.

The Sons of England.

The Sons of England excursion per the G.T.R. to Toronto, Niagara and Buffalo was also fairly well patronized. The excursionist divided at Toronto, some remaining there and others proceeding to Niagara and Buffalo. The major portion of these excursionists also remained over sight seeing, the tickets being good for three days.

With the Sons of Canada.

About three hundred persons or more went down the river to Jubilee Point on the Sons of Canada excursion in the morning. The Golden Eye with the palace barge attached left here shortly after eight o'clock and a most delightful sail was enjoyed. The sun was overcast and the excursionists were thus enabled to sit on deck and enjoy the beauties of the river without suffering from the intense heat of a burning sun. The scow was utilized as a dancing pavilion and all the way down and back the young folks indulged in the measured tread. Jubilee was reached about noon and the afternoon everybody spent on the grounds. The return trip was commenced about four o'clock, home being reached about ten o'clock. The outing was a most pleasant one and all who were on board were delighted.

To Stony Lake.

The Y.M.C.A. band held its annual excursion to Stony Lake. There was a fair attendance. The party went to Lakefield on the morning train and boarded the steamer Cruiser for the sail up the lakes. At Juniper Island, where the Y.M.C.A. camp was held, a number landed and spent the day in picnic style. Others remained on the Cruiser and sailed around the islands. The excursion was a most enjoyable one and pleasure was enhanced by the good music of the band. The Cruiser returned to Lakefield in good time, and the party had an hour or so in Lakefield. They came down on the evening Lakefield train in charge of Conductor Story, with the Royal Templars, and arrived home in good time.

ON CREASE AND DIAMOND.

Peterborough Cricketers and Baseballists Victorious at Belleville—A Good Game of Ball—The Cricketers Royally Treated.

The excursion to Belleville was taken advantage of yesterday by the local cricketers and baseballists to visit the City of the Bay and meet the willow wielders and leather-hunters of that place. The result was a victory for both the Peterborough teams.

THE CRICKET MATCH.

The cricketers had an easy victory, winning their match by an innings and 90 runs. The Belleville team went to bat first and their last wicket went down for 22 runs. Peterborough went in and were not retired until a total of 176 runs had been reached. The batting of Ray (55), Stratton (34) and Hamilton (57) was of first-class order. The bowling of Attewell and Stratton was also good, as the analysis below will show. In their second innings the Bellevillians only scored 47, thus giving the match to the visitors by an innings and 90 runs. The bowling and fielding of the Belleville men was fair, but the bowling of Attewell and Stratton was too much for them. Scadding was the only man who scored double figures, making 23 in very good form. The treatment received by the Peterborough men at the hands of the Bellevillians was right royal, nothing being left undone that could tend to make the visitors enjoy their visit.

The scores and bowling analysis are as follows:—

THE BASEBALL BATTLE.

The baseball match was a good exhibition of ball playing. It was played in the exhibition grounds and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. The Peterborough boys felt that they had a good nine to defeat and every man played accordingly. The result was a victory for the Peterboroughs by a score of 9 to 4, with an innings to spare. Dan McCabe was in the box for the visitors and threw a ball which troubled the Bellevillians considerably. Graham was behind the bat until the sixth innings when he was disabled and Turnbull took his place. Bradford and Howe were the Belleville battery and did good work. The fielding of the Belleville nine was good, but they failed to hit the sphere sufficiently to get the runs. The fielding of the Peterborough boys was also good, Somers especially doing fine work at second.

The score was as follows:—

Another Nocturnal Blaze.

Another alarm of fire was sounded just at eleven o'clock on Wednesday night and the brigade was called out for a blaze in Ashburnham. The fire was confined to the large barns on the Armour estate in Ashburnham which is occupied by Mr. James Cumming. The fire had taken a great hold of the building before it was discovered, and being filled in part with hay and straw the flames spread with remarkable rapidity. The brigade responded promptly to the alarm but before they reached the scene the barns were past all hope of saving. The steamer, however, was located at the fire tank at Lake-st. and was in readiness in case any of the adjacent buildings might be ignited. However, its services were not required. The barns and contents were totally destroyed. The former were valued at about six hundred dollars, while the latter, which included a new separator and horse power, together with other implements and hay and grain, were worth about five hundred dollars. Mr. Cumming had an insurance on the contents, and it is believed that Judge Armour had the barns insured also. The fire must have been the work of tramps.

THE TRIPLE MYSTIC LINKS

THE PROGRESS AND ADVANCEMENT OF ODDFELLOWSHIP.

Grand Master Dr. Bell's Address to the Grand Lodge—The Work of the Year Under his Grandmastership—Interesting Figures for Oddfellows and Others.

The Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows opened its thirty-sixth session in Toronto on Wednesday. Dr. R. W. Bell, of Otonabee Lodge, Peterborough, Grand Master of the Order, presided. The past year has been a most successful and satisfactory one for the Order and Dr. Bell has great reason to feel proud as he lays down the Grandmaster's gavel at the close of his term and looks back over his hard work and assiduous efforts to forward the interests of the Order. The reports presented show that the year has been a successful one. After the opening business of the Grand Lodge Grand Master Bell presented his address, giving a report of the workings of the Order throughout Ontario during his year. The report in opening referred to the steady and satisfactory advancement which had been made and also spoke of the pleasant harmony which existed in all the lodges throughout his jurisdiction. Continuing

THE GRAND MASTER SAYS:

"It has not been my aim or object to increase the number of our lodges, but rather to increase the membership of those already existing. Only where I was satisfied the sowing of the good seed was likely to bring forth fruit abundantly and permanently did I consent to the organization of a new lodge. I had, in several instances, to discountenance the desire of some enthusiastic brethren who were anxious to plant new lodges in places where I feared, if permitted, they would be of ephemeral existence, possibly flourish for two or three years, then wilt and die. The following were instituted during the year under dispensation, and I recommend that charters be granted to them:—

Hastings Lodge, No. 273, at Hastings; Midland Lodge, No. 274, Midland; Fairy Lodge, No. 275, Huntsville; Sheard Lodge, No. 276, New Dundee; Lambton Lodge, No. 277, Brigden; Rockcliffe Lodge, No. 278, Ottawa; Grenville Lodge, No. 279, Kemptville; Victoria Degree Lodge, No. 21, Ottawa; Olive Branch Rebekah Degree Lodge, No. 16, Toronto; and Myrtle Rebekah Degree Lodge, No. 17, Elora. The question of the payment of an annuity to widows is one of absorbing interest yet to many lodges. I regret to learn that there are a few lodges still setting the legislation of this Grand Lodge at defiance in regard to this matter, and still pay annuities and affirm their intention to continue to do so. This spirit of insubordination should be stamped out. My attention was called a short time ago to the fact that a prominent brother in one of our cities was using the emblems of the order for advertising purposes. I at once instructed the D.D.G.M. of the district to call the brother's attention personally to the illegality of his action, and request a discontinuance of it. I have heard nothing as yet as to the result. The Rebekah degree does not appear to take such deep root in this jurisdiction as in many of those in the United States. A number of the lodges nominally still in existence are really in a dormant condition. I trust the visit of the degree team of "Naomi Lodge," Windsor, to Toronto during our present session may have a revivifying effect on this branch of the order, and also awaken an interest in it through the representatives present from places where it is not in existence. If properly appreciated and worked, this branch might exercise a mighty influence for good in the community, particularly in our larger towns and cities, where there are greater opportunities for "visiting the sick" and "relieving the distressed." For a number of years past I believe the Oddfellows of Toronto have supported with a very liberal donation a cot in the Hospital for Sick Children, and if I mistake not have been very liberal towards the support of a ward in the General hospital. I think this generosity is highly commendable and worthy of imitation wherever opportunity offers. I am pleased to report that during the past year the lodges in Brockville and Peterborough have furnished very handsomely a private ward in the local hospitals of these towns. These wards are reserved for the use of members of the order, and are most comfortable, as I can personally testify form a visit to both. I cannot close my report without specially referring to the assistance so promptly and efficiently rendered me at all times by our diligent, faithful, and courteous Grand Secretary, J. B. King. He is a pillar of strength to our Grand Lodge, and no brother can realize it as can a Grand Master. The untiring work of Bro. W. A. Rawlinus, as chairman of the Committee on Laws of Subordinates, is deserving of more than praise, as his work is well done and of inestimable value to the order. The members of all our special committees deserve to be mentioned for their zeal, especially the Committee on "Revision of Constitution." I cannot refrain from mentioning Bro. Ronan, D.D.G.M., Ottawa, and Bro. Workman, P.G., Peterborough, who have rendered me extra valuable assistance. I would like to mention many others individually, but the roll would be too long. However, I thank all who have assisted me in any way. When I accepted the high and honourable position one year ago to which you had elected me, it was with feelings of great timidity lest I should fail in fulfilling the duties satisfactorily to you or myself, especially when I recalled to mind the list of able brothers who have filled the office in past years so efficiently. As the position had, however, come to me unsought, I consoled myself with the idea that you must have discovered some undeveloped ability or aptitude for the office in me, which might under the pressure of necessity be brought into play. The pressure has been on, and I have endeavored to steadily realize the requirements of the office, and to act faithfully, promptly, and impartially at all times. Errors I may have committed—as none of us are perfect, no, not one—but if I have, they have been of the head and not of the heart. Sometimes I have felt as if the burden was too great for me, especially when burning the midnight oil and cooling the fevered brow over the perplexing and worrying questions and responsibilities before me, fearing I should err and do irretrievable wrong to some brother; but when I realized the noble work of our order, and that I was the honored head of over 17,000 brothers, who are endeavoring to do all the good possible for each other and for suffering humanity, I felt the burden lighter and went to work with renewed energy. It is now for you to say if this energy has been exerted in the right direction, and has accomplished the desired end. If you shall so pronounce I shall feel forever gratified."

THE PROGRESS OF THE ORDER.

The Grand Secretary, Mr. J. B. King, of Toronto, reported that the membership nearly reached 17,500. Dealing with the progress of the order, he says:—The death roll is steadily increasing each year, as it surely will with increasing membership, but the increase in deaths is not in proportion to the increase of membership, owing, no doubt, very largely that the new members coming in are young men. The death rate in 1877 was 1 in 137, in 1889, 1 in 154. Since 1856 the order in Ontario has paid out for the relief of its members and the prevention of distress the munificent sum of $540,453.62. This sum represents only the cash paid out; what value can be placed on the good done in other directions in which money cannot come into the consideration? Those whose hearts have been made glad and whose trials in life have been lightened by kind acts and brotherly sympathy can best answer. On account of the prevalence of the epidemic "la grippe," during the first half of this year, I have prepared the following facts from the returns for term ending 30th June, 1890, which will speak with wonderfully warning tones to every lodge in the province—an epidemic such as that which visited nearly the whole world then, may come at any other time with equally disastrous effects. Though the returns are not all in, yet the facts are nearly enough complete to sound a note of warning: The net increase of membership was 494, the deaths were 84, an alarmingly large number; 1,966 brothers received 7,815 weeks sick benefits, amounting to $23,262.90; to this much be added the other items of relief and benefit, surgeons fees, nursing, paid to widows and orpans, burying the dead, etc., bringing the total to $30,789.54; and excess of nearly $10,000 over the expenditure for the same purpose for the previous half-year.

Grand Treasurer Badenach reported the receipts of the Grand Lodge for the year to be $9,845 and the expenditures $8,840, while $600 has been received since the closing of the books.

A SIR KNIGHT COLARED.

Sir Knight Robt. Weir, Grand Master of the Grand Chapter of Ontario East, Royal Black Knights, Presented with an Address and Handsome Collar.

At the regular monthly meeting of R.B. Preceptory, No. 261, Sir Knight Robt. Weir was presented with an address and a Grand Master's Collar by the Preceptory. The following is a copy of the address:—

DEAR SIR KNIGHT,—On this our first opportunity since your elevation to the most honorable position of Grand Master of the Grand Chapter of Ontario East, Royal Black Knights of Ireland, we, Royal Black Preceptory No. 261, wish to show to you in a tangible way our appreciation of you as a brother Sir Knight.

It is with the greatest pleasure that we offer you our warmest congratulations on your election to one of the highest positions in the gift of our order, knowing as we do how well that position is deserved by you.

We have always found you to be a true Sir Knight who is ever ready to protect or assist a brother in weakness or want, or stand up manfully for our Queen, our country, our Protestant religion and our glorious institution.

We ask you to accept this Grand Master's collar as a slight token of our esteem, trusting our Supreme Grand Master above will spare you many years to wear it while at the same time we are being benefitted by your counsel and advice.

Signed on behalf of
R B Preceptory, No. 261,
W. J. GREEN, REGISTRAR.
Peterborough, Aug. 13th, 1890.

Sir Knight WEIR in replying, said:—Sir Knights of Peterborough Preceptory No. 261,—This presentation and address is something I did not expect or think myself worthy of. I thank you, Sir Knights and Brethren, for your beautiful gift of this Grand Master's collar and jewel and flattering address, in which you made mention of my position as Grand Master of Ontario East, and also to my desire to advance the interest of the Order generally, our glorious institution and our Protestant religion. I will ever remember the brethren who have shown their kindness and love to me, and I will endeavor to make myself useful and to give any assistance in my power to the advancement of our glorious cause, trusting it will prosper still more in the future than in the past, and when the Grand Master of the Universe calls us hence, may we all meet in the Grand Chapter of Perfection on High.

Every brand of tea has its own peculiarities. So to get a perfect Tea, you can only do so by blending these different kinds in proportion, that by so doing the one flavor benefits the other. This being the case, how is it possible to obtain such perfection? Only by a long practical experience and having at your disposal large quantities of the several Brands to operate with. Such are the conditions by which the Tea is introduced for the first time to the Canadian public under the name and brand of KOH-I-NUR. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

The count was at first inclined not to answer, but he thought better of it, and finally told the priest that it was Ruric Nevel. The villain seemed much surprised at this, and professed to wonder why the fellow should come to that place. Urzen, who knew nothing of the falsehood which rested under all this questioning, went on and explained the nature of Ruric's mission, and its result. And thereupon Savotano expressed a wondrous degree of joy and gratification; and he presumed even to bless God that such a reconciliation had taken place.

"And now," the priest resumed, after this matter had been disposed of, "how happened this sudden change in your disease, my son? The doctors thought you dying when I was here last."

"Yes—I know," answered the count, still hiding the deep disgust that moved within him; "but a new physician was called in, and he prescribed a new medicine. He said the medicine I had been taking was unsuited to my case, and so he gave me new. You can see the result."

"Yes—I see," was the reply; "and as you seem to have very good company I'll take my leave. I have several calls to make before night."

The count made no reply to this, and as the priest found that he was not urged to remain he arose at once. He stopped twice before he reached the door, but in neither case did he speak. As soon as he gained the street he turned toward the upper part of the city, and he stopped not until he had reached the palace of the Duke of Tula. The old porter admitted him without question, and he made his way at once to the hall where he inquired for the duke. One of the servants went in search of his master, and when he returned he bade the priest follow him.

The duke was in his private room, and as soon as the servant had withdrawn he bade his visitor take a seat.

"Now, Savotano, how is it?" he asked. "Have you seen the count?"

"Aye—I am from there now. By all that's bad, my lord, the villain is gaining."

"Gaining?" repeated Olga, with surprise. "But you assured me he was well-nigh gone."

"So he was—so he was. But he is recovering now."

"But how is it?"

"Why—he tells me he had a new physician, and that the old medicine was all condemned, and an entire new course prescribed."

"And under this new treatment he is recovering, eh?"

"Yes."

"Well—have you not taken some measures to fix this new medicine? By the gods, Savotano, you must not let him slip now."

"Ah, my lord, I have only told you how he explained the matter. I have another explanation."

"What is it, sir priest?"

"Why—they simply know that some one has attempted to poison the count."

"Ha! Did they say anything?"

"No—there was no need. I know that the medicine he was taking before was the right kind of medicine, so far as it came from the hands of the surgeon. And then there is another thing: The count must have had some powerful antidote on purpose for the poison."

"How do you know that?"

"Simply because he would not have now been alive had not such been the case. You may be sure, my lord, that they know poison has been administered. They have discovered it in some way, and taken the most effective and speedy method to overcome it. I know this."

"And do you think they suspect you?" the duke asked, with some show of uneasiness.

"I don't know, but I fear they do. However, that amounts to nothing—only to prevent me from working any farther at present in the same direction. I have not laid myself open to detection in any way. By heavens, 'tis too bad! In four-and-twenty hours more he would have been a dead man."

"Then you know when the discovery was made?"

"Yes—on the afternoon before Ruric Nevel was captured. I was there just before night, and the gun-maker was then there, and I noticed that the phials were gone from the table, though I gave no signs then of having noticed it. They had even then commenced some treatment for his cure, for I could see that the appearance of his skin had changed. You must not blame me."

"I do not, Savotano. But there may be some way left yet."

"Oh, yes; there are a hundred ways in which we can dispose of him. But I may find some way yet before he gets out."

"Look ye," the duke said, after a short pondering over his own thoughts, "you must watch every chance. Something may turn up in your favor. You may find some opportunity to finish him yet. I wish you could."

"I will do all I can; be sure of that. I shall watch narrowly. And now about the other one. Young Nevel is safe, and can be disposed of at any moment. I have let him live thus far, because I had no orders otherwise."

"Aye—that was right," replied Olga; and as he did so he arose and commenced to pace the room. The priest followed him with his eyes, but said nothing. At length the duke stopped and looked Savotano in the face.

"It would not be a difficult case to kill him," he uttered in a low whisper.

"Not at all. Nothing could be more easy."

"And could detection ensue?"

"In no possible way."

"Then—"

"Listen!" spoke the humpback, as Olga hesitated. "I strongly suspect that 'twas this same gunmaker that led to the investigation of that medicine; and if it was him, then you will be more quickly suspected than I shall."

"Ha! Why think you so?"

"Because he is a fellow of wondrous wit and intelligence, and can see without being told. He has had several conference here, and it was from here that he went direct to the count's residence. He knows by this time why the duel was hatched up, and if he has half the mind I give him credit for, he will know that you are at the bottom of the poisoning business. I am sure of this."

"By heavens, you are right, Savotano. Let him die!"

"I had thought myself that would be the best way; for if he were at large you would not be safe."

"You can have him killed without noise or disturbance?"

"I think so," replied the priest, with a wicked smile. "At all events, the noise would not hurt any one, for he is rather too far away from the world to make himself heard."

"Where is he?"

NOT SATISFIED WITH TWO WIVES.

An Ex-Torontonian's Adventures on Both Sides of the Line.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—George B. Stock, who about eight years ago came to Montreal from Toronto, after failing in the oil business there, and got into various business troubles here, skipping out to the States after forging paper to a considerable amount, is a man of varied matrimonial experiences. He lived a double life here, having two wives and families. He was a prominent member of the Methodist Church. Stock went from Montreal to Watertown, N.Y., after failing to get a footing in Toronto and Ogdensburg. At Watertown, whither he had taken his wife, he met a Mr. Wood, a soap manufacturer at Dexter, a small town near there, and persuaded Mr. Wood to enter into partnership with him. Stock took up his residence in Mr. Wood's house, where he became acquainted with Mrs. Wood. A few weeks since Stock persuaded Mr. Wood to go to New York to buy some machinery. He did so, but when he returned it was only to find his wife gone and his house occupied by Mrs. Stock and her two children. His wife had eloped with Stock. Enquiry was set on foot and the couple were traced to Chicago, where they bought tickets for California. Thither Mr. Wood has gone in pursuit of his errant spouse.

Canadian detectives are also on their trail, and an effort will be made to have Stock extradited for the last forgery he committed here, that is if he can be caught.

What has become of the other Stock families is unknown.

CONGRESSIONAL ABSENTEEISM.

The Cause is Attributed in No Small Degree to Poker and Whist.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—The Tribune's special says: One cause of absenteeism in the House of Representatives has thus far been hidden, but the time seems to have come when it should be mentioned. It is not a secret to persons who have carefully scanned the record of yeas and nays during the last few days that certain members who were daily seen at the Capitol have been frequently recorded as absent or not voting even when their votes were necessary to make a quorum. It has also been noted that these members have been absent on several occasions on a division of the House or a vote by tellers when their presence would have obviated the necessity of a call of the House. There has been a suspicion that the cause of some of the absenteeism alluded to might be found in the restaurants within a short distance of the Capitol, and the suspicion may be to some extent well founded. But another cause is alleged to exist and to have been discovered. It is card playing in some of the committee rooms when the House is in session. Poker and whist are the attractions which are said to have become so seductive as to have made grave statesmen forget their duties even in times of emergency. It is not alleged that all of the offenders are Republicans or Democrats, but on the contrary it is asserted that both parties are about equally represented. Perhaps it might be as well to have the games discontinued for a time or at least suspended during the daily sittings of the House.

The Republican Party Split.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The fourth in the series of Republican senatorial caucuses was held at the Capitol to-night and was as ineffectual as any of the preceding caucuses, so far as definite results are concerned. It was extremely inharmonious and adjourned because agreement was simply impossible.

Four Killed by This Explosion.

NEWBERRY, S.C., Aug. 14.—A boiler exploded this morning at a country saw mill 12 miles west of here on Dr. Darrah's place. Four men, one white and three colored, were killed and two colored men seriously wounded. The killed were fearfully mutilated.

A Clever Convict.

KINGSTON, Aug. 14.—Convict Depew of the Kingston penitentiary has completed a difficult piece of workmanship and presented the article to Mr. O'Donnell, steward of the institution. It is a representation of the "Cross of Calvary," placed in an ordinary pickle bottle. The cross stands in the centre surrounded by a fence. A spear and ladder lean against the cross and a star is affixed in the centre of the arms. The cross and ladder and part of the fence are made of pine. The spear and every other paling in the fence is mahogany. The article is a very quaint one and worth seeing.

The Royal Templars in Camp.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.—The Royal Templars of Temperance arrived in town by the early Canadian Pacific train from the west. They were met at the station by the members of the staff previously here. Most of the Knights proceeded at once to the camp while the band and a contingent paraded the streets and serenaded the newspaper offices. At 3 o'clock Mr. John Dougall delivered an address of welcome, to which replies were made by ex-Mayor Howland of Toronto and others.

A Tug Sunk in Georgian Bay.

LION'S HEAD, Ont., Aug. 14.—The steamer Alderson ran into and sunk the tug Annie Watt, near Barrier Island, in the Georgian Bay about 11½ last night. There was nothing saved. The Annie Watt had a small cargo of merchandise for Lion's Head and was not insured. No lives were lost.

Against a Prohibition Party.

MONTREAL, Aug. 13.—The council of the Royal Templars of Temperance has decided against the foundation of a prohibition party.

UPRISING OF RED MEN.

American and Canadian Indians Capture Garden Island in Lake of the Woods.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 13.—A telegram from Rat Portage to-day says the steamer Thistle, belonging to the Reid Fish Company, just arrived from Buffalo Bay, reports that a band of Indians 30 strong, under Chiefs Pawwawson and Flatmouth, cut the nets, stole the contents and forcibly took provisions of the camp. There were only seven whites, three unarmed, and the Indians were fully armed and covered with war paint. The Indians gave the company five days to get out everything or there would be trouble. The company has been in the habit of giving Indians fish offal but stopped and this is the primary cause of the trouble.

Superintendent of Indian Agencies McCall was seen by a reporter concerning the trouble. He said while he was attending to treaty payments in July he had heard no complaints regarding any fishing being done in the Canadian waters of Lake-of-the-Woods, but they claimed that the fisheries at Garden Island and near the mouth of Rainey River in American waters were depleting the lake of sturgeon, whitefish, pickerel and other varieties of food fish. They wanted to know if this fishing couldn't be stopped. Mr. McCall last week visited Hungry Hall on Rainy River, Sabaska, Big Island and Northwest Angle reserves, as well as Garden Island in Lake-of-the-Woods. Reid's fishing establishment is at the last named place. McCall found no disturbance nor semblance of such among the Indians over the fisheries or any other matters. They were invariably busily engaged picking blueberries and their whole energies seemed to be devoted to that work.

There were only two or three families of American Indians at Big Island when McCall was there, and some of them left the same day as he did, that there cannot be more than half-a-dozen Americans there altogether.

When the boundary line between the United States and the British North American possessions was being determined it was intended to make it—from the Lake of the Woods westward to the Pacific coast—conform with the line of 49° north latitude. This line runs through the southwest angle of the Lake of the Woods. In describing the line a clerical error was made, the words "northwest angle" being used instead of "southwest angle." This error was taken advantage of by the United States, and consequently the boundary line juts up into British territory. Garden Island is situated in that portion of the lake within the bend of the boundary line, and is thus the property of the state of Minnesota.

BURGLARS CAPTURED.

Three Robberies Near Beamsville—An Exciting Chase.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 13.—The house of Robert Shepherd, living 1½ miles west of Beamsville, was broken into Sunday afternoon during the absence of the family and about $6 in cash and two full suits of clothes stolen. The money was the hard earnings of a little girl and the clothes belonged to two of Mr. Shepherd's sons. Soon after the report reached the village, other news came of similar robberies on the lake shore. The house of John Hollaway was entered and some $5 in cash taken. Next Michael Lianan reported his house broken into and $15 and a silver watch gone. By this time suspicion rested on three strangers who had been seen in the vicinity. Constable Rodgers started in pursuit in one direction. The thieves were finally located near the Grand Trunk railway station, and R. Tufford, Thomas Walker and W. Everett, with Jud Konkle, chased the three fellows across the fields and captured them in Mr. Martin's barn. They were searched and found to have on Shepherd's clothes, and in the pockets were the purses with the money. They showed where the watch was. They gave their names as William Adkins, James Mills and Adam Bowman, all of Dundas. They were confined in the lockup here awaiting trial.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

A SECRET MEETING OF THE FIREMEN'S EXECUTIVE.

The Syracuse Delegate Says They Have Decided Not to Go Out—The Men at New York Still Hopeful—Pinkerton Stoned.

UTICA, Aug. 16.—The Executive Board of Locomotive Firemen were in session yesterday in this city. They met behind bolted doors and no one has been found who will divulge any part of the proceedings. Firemen from other roads than the Central were present. The secrets are guarded from the striking Knights. It is said that the members of the board will not talk because they do not want to apprise the officials of the Central of their action prematurely.

The Firemen Will Not Strike.

SYRACUSE, Aug. 16.—The Executive Board of Locomotive Firemen, that has been in session at Utica for the past two days, adjourned last night and the delegates have returned to their homes. The meeting of the Executive Board consisted of 14 delegates representing the 14 lodges comprising the New York Central district. These 14 delegates represent over 700 firemen in the employ of the Central. The delegate from Syracuse lodge returned here last night and talked quite freely of what was done at the meeting. He said that the meeting, although protracted, was one of harmony and that all were agreed upon matters of any importance. The meeting, he said, had been called to discuss the advisability of striking. When the matter was finally put to a vote it was decided to stand by the constitution of the order, and not strike unless a strike was ordered by a higher authority. They decided that they themselves had no grievances but what could be settled with the company without the expense of a strike.

Pinkertons Stoned.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Yesterday afternoon showed no different change in the situation of the strike. The strikers posted a bulletin that Superintendent Bissell and his office associates were doing the switching and that the Chicago men were a myth.

During the evening a number of the Pinkerton men stationed on the tracks in the northern section of this city were stoned by persons hidden in or about the houses in that neighborhood. Five received injuries and were taken to the Pinkerton car in the Union Station, where their wounds were dressed by physicians. Supt. Bissell said last night that the company has succeeded in sending eight freight trains west and five south from West Albany and this vicinity. He thought the outlook good.

The Strikers' Hopes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Central Railway strikers here are firm and claim to be sure of ultimate success. They say there has been no intention of moving until the General Executive Board has given instructions. Master Workman Lee says that unless the troubles are settled by arbitration the strike will be extended to all the Vanderbilt lines, to Chicago and Denver and all roads handling freight sent over the Central road. The passenger system of the Central-Hudson road is again in full operation from this city. Mr. Webb has filled the places of the strikers in every part of the system. He said yesterday the freight yards here were all clear. He hopes to start out through freights by Monday, and to begin receiving freight then as usual. Until the West Albany yards are cleared, however, not much freight can be moved westward. The strikers deny that Local Assembly 1705 has gone back to work in a body.

Wants the Reporters There.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Vice-President Webb denies that the Boston & Albany road at Albany refused to handle the cars of the Central. Yesterday morning he said they took all this road had to offer. Mr. Powderly and his companions arrived from the west last night. He refused to say anything about the strike. Vice-President Webb last night said he desired the presence of the reporters this morning at his interview with Powderly.

A Strike on the Wabash.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The switchmen employed by the Wabash Railway Company in Chicago struck yesterday afternoon completely stopping all traffic. The trouble is due to postponement of payment of wages until Monday next. It has been customary to pay the employes of the road on the 15th of the month.

A Hepworth Hunter Accidentally Killed.

HEPWORTH, Aug. 16.—While hunting in the woods yesterday a young man named Ernest Nesbitt, in attempting to pull his gun through a thicket, caused the piece to be discharged. The bullet passed through his thigh, severing the main artery. He bled to death, living only ten minutes after the accident.

Quebec's Little Bill.

OTTAWA, Aug. 16.—The Government have received a petition of right from the Quebec city corporation, claiming $39,000 damage done by the rock slide there.

Engineer and Fireman Killed.

TROY, Aug. 16.—The 8½ train out of Albany collided with a freight train two miles west of Schenectady last night. Engineer Vrooman and his firemen were killed.

Penetang's Waterworks Bylaw Carried.

PENETANG, Aug. 16.—The bylaw for providing water works and fire protection was carried yesterday by a good majority.

PRICES AND PROSPECTS.

BRADSTREET'S AND DUN-WIMAN ON THE STATE OF TRADE.

A General Advance—Serious Injury Done By the Drought to Cereal Crops in the Western States—Fruit Yields Short—The Week's Failures.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show few changes in either the agricultural, industrial or commercial situation. There have been extensive rains throughout large areas in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, but they came too late to repair the damage done the cereal crops, particularly that to Indian corn. Cotton crop estimates are not quite as large as a few weeks ago, while those of wheat, corn, oats and barley are as low as previously reported. Sugar and rice crops promise well. Fruit yields are short and prices higher.

Share speculation is again strong and advancing. Bank clearings at 51 cities for the week ended Aug. 14 show a gain over that week last year of 15 per cent. The feature of the week is the continued advance in hides and leather. As an outcome of this boot and shoemakers are actively employed. Nebraska merchants, fearing short crops, have countermanded orders. Iron is growing steadily stronger, but prices are no higher. Wheat has advanced 5c to 6c, corn 1½c, oats 6c per bushel. Exports of wheat this week were 1,993,189 bushels, against 1,914,000 last year. Earnings of 135 railroads for July aggregate $36,752,795, a gain of 6.66 per cent. over 1889, which gained 8.34 per cent. over 1888. Drygoods are in good demand, woolens in better request, wool steady, cotton 3-16c lower.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 148 in the United States this week against 155 last week and 117 this week last year. Canada had 29 this week against 25 last week. The total number of failures in the United States, Jan. 1 to date, is 6503 against 7029 in a like period of 1889.

Dun, Wiman & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade will say: The industries are doing rather less and the speculators are doing more. That is the week's history in brief, but the volume of legitimate business is still very large, exceeding last year's at this season by about 10 per cent., and the outlook for fall trade is considered excellent at almost all commercial centres. The general average of prices of commodities is rapidly rising and has advanced more than 2½ per cent. during the past week. At the first purchases of silver bullion under the new law the price paid for 300,000 ounces was a shade above the London price and the offerings are said to have been about 1,000,000 ounces.

The special crop report sustained fears of serious injury to wheat, corn and oats, but indicated that the yield of cotton is likely to be rather larger than last year. The reports from other cities are generally favorable, no complaint being anywhere made as to the volume of current business. Chicago notes that drought in some localities has affected crops so that purchases will be diminished, but the injury is not yet supposed in commercial circles to be of serious magnitude. Money is snug and firm at old rates at Chicago, tighter at 7 to 8 per cent. at St. Louis and in fair demand at about usual rates elsewhere.

DOWN BY FUNDY'S BAY.

What the Winter Port is Doing—Provincial Notes of Interest.

ST. JOHN, Aug. 16.—This has been an exceedingly busy summer in St. John. The activity has been marked in all lines of industry. The city itself has been, and is, expending large sums on streets, wharves, sewers, etc., and its weekly pay roll is large. There is quite a large amount of building constantly going on in different parts of the city. The extension of the electric light business and the rivalry of three electrical companies, together with the labor just begun of changing the street car service from horse to electric motive power, causes activity in that line. The various factories are busy and all the lumber mills are in full operation. Laboring men and owners of teams find no difficulty in getting employment. Up to the last week or so there has been great activity in shipping owing to the fact that the American market kept at a high figure much longer than usual at this season. Ship laborers have had an exceedingly busy time of it, for lumber shippers were anxious to send forward as much as possible before the inevitable drop. The drop has come. Prices are off considerably, and so are coastwise freights. As a result there is not as much anxiety to send lumber forward, but there is still considerable business doing. Atlantic business continues somewhat dull, but there appears to be some indication of a firmer feeling.

The city, besides being prosperous from the general business standpoint, has had a greater run of summer visitors than ever before. The New York steamer line have developed an unexpectedly large passenger traffic, and it announces that the company will put a second boat on the route next week. Of course, they have a heavy traffic with ports of call between here and New York, but they express themselves more than satisfied with the experiment of coming to St. John. The rush of travel by rail and steamer gives the streets and hotels and places of public resort a most animated appearance.

From the country comes word that the crops generally, with the exception of the oat crop, are quite promising. The oat crop will be a partial, and, in some districts, an almost complete failure, it is said, owing to the attacks of an insect. The farmers call the blight the "red leaf," for the smitten fields have a reddish appearance.

One very considerable source of revenue for country people is in the crop of native berries. Tons of strawberries, raspberries and blueberries are picked by the women and children and sold to agents, who send them forward to local or American markets. Thousands of dollars are thus scattered through country districts, where these fruits are found, and storekeepers say they can note an "easing up" in the money market as soon as the berry season opens.

One great source of regret is that our farmers have not turned their attention with sufficient zeal to the dairying interest. The average butter exposed for sale in the St. John market can hardly be said to be greatly superior to the rank Quebec article sent down here betimes. Where there is a man who prides himself on his dairy produce, that man finds a ready market and good prices the year round, but he is not yet found in sufficient numbers to be a source of national pride. The Local Government and the agricultural societies are giving more attention to dairying interests than formerly, and it is possible that they may effect some measure of reform in methods and results within the next few years.

Cholera at Cairo.

CAIRO, Aug. 16.—Three cases of cholera have been discovered. One has proved fatal. The appearance of the disease here has caused intense excitement. People of all classes are making hurried preparations to depart.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Manitoba Harvest Prospects—Ontario Appointments—A $10,000 Fire.

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—The Monetary Times of yesterday in an article reviewing the crop prospects says: In view of the great and widely spread interest taken in the harvest prospects of Manitoba we have taken some pains to secure from well-informed persons in Winnipeg information to the latest moment concerning the condition of crops and the area actually harvested in that province. A telegram dated Winnipeg, Thursday, Aug. 14, received here at 4 last evening, is of the following tenor: As nearly as can be learned 75 per cent. of the barley acreage, 20 per cent. of the wheat and perhaps 5 per cent. of the oats in this province has been cut to date. Harvesting is general throughout the province. The weather is splendid, and prospects never better. No damage from frost is reported.

Bro. Mann, one of the delegates to the I.O.O.F. Grand Lodge, has been attacked with diphtheria.

The police here have been notified of an alleged artist who has been victimizing people at Niagara Falls, N.Y. He claims to have letters from Cardinal Gibbons and from a well-known family in the south.

Scott & Cross' planing and sash mill and two or three small tenement houses on Hayter-street were totally destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. Four or five other houses fronting on Hayter-street were badly gutted and several large piles of lumber ruined. The loss, which will be fully $10,000, is partially covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is not known.

The Ontario Gazette to-day contains these notices: C. H. Britton, East Toronto, is appointed associate coroner for the County of York; J. F. Woodworth, Toronto, notary public; Jacob Stevenson, Thessalon, bailiff Third Division Court of Algoma.

FOUR FATAL FALLS.

A Hamilton Woman Jumps from a Roof—Slipped from a Scaffold.

HAMILTON, Aug. 16.—Mrs. Adam Ballantyne, aged 35, whose mind became seriously affected by la grippe last winter, jumped from the roof of her house to the ground, a distance of 40 feet, at an early hour yesterday morning and was instantly killed.

Henry Aderhols, a mason, fell from a scaffold at Tuckett & Sons' new tobacco factory yesterday afternoon, a distance of 65 feet to the ground. Death was instantaneous. Aderhols was 36 years old and leaves a family.

Fred Penfold, a stableman, walked out of a window in the hayloft of the Green House stable Thursday night. His spine was paralysed, and though he may live a long time he will be as helpless as an infant.

W. A. Spera, a Barton township farmer, fell from a rafter to the floor of his barn Thursday afternoon. He was injured internally and it is feared will not recover.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

Wheat Goes Up in the London Market—Cholera at Cairo.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The rise in American wheat has stimulated the English product. In the Leeds market yesterday wheat was 9d. above Tuesday's quotations and corn advanced 6d.

In the House of Commons yesterday Secretary Balfour said the poor law unions in Ireland would suffice to meet any cases of distress caused by failure of the potato crop.

Dock Laborers Discharged.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Hundreds of dock laborers at Cardiff have been discharged. The employers have determined to resist the demands of the men. Further troubles are feared.

Disastrous Floods.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Recent floods in Beloochistan have done enormous damage to property and many persons have been drowned. The Bolan Railway for a distance of 5 miles has been swept away and the great military road has been partly destroyed.

The Daily Smash.

DETROIT, Aug. 16.—At Augusta, Mich., at 5 p.m. yesterday the eastbound North Shore limited train on the Michigan Central Road struck a protruding car of a train which had been side-tracked. The engine then jumped the track and crashed into the depot wrecking the building. It is rumored two boys, who were inside, were killed outright. After striking the building the engine exploded, blowing Fireman Gregg to atoms and instantly killing Engineer Roberts. News so far received does not mention any passengers being killed, though the number injured is given at 12 to 15.

A Grateful Republic.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Acting upon a suggestion by the Acting Secretary of State the Collector of Customs at New York has been instructed to extend the usual courtesies and facilities in the passage of their personal baggage to the Comte de Paris and his son, the Duc d'Orleans, upon their arrival at that port about the end of next month. This action is based upon the gallantry of the Comte de Paris during the War of the Rebellion.

CHAMBERLAIN ON SEALS.

HE TELLS WHAT HE THINKS OF THE ALASKA QUESTION.

There Ought to be no Difficulty in Coming to a Settlement of the Matter—England Ready to Accord Every Necessary Protection to the Seal Fisheries.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 16.—In an interview here on the Behring Sea question Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, M.P., of England, said: "So far as I myself understand the case there seem to be two leading features: First, that the people of the United States demand some arrangement for the protection of the seals, which they allege will be destroyed to a point dangerously near extermination if unrestrained fishing is allowed, and, second, that there appears to be some doubt in their minds whether to set up a claim for a mare clausum."

As to the demand that the seals should be protected Mr. Chamberlain said: "There cannot possibly be any difference between the two nations. England is not only perfectly willing to preserve the seal fisheries and ready at all times to accord every necessary protection, but she has in fact especial interest to do since more than 8000 people in London are employed in curing and dyeing sealskins. This is an open and plain fact, and it seems strange to me that it has been left out of account by the American Government in its consideration of the case. There cannot possibly be any ground, not only for quarrel—it seems wrong to use that word—but even for any difference of opinion. If now or at any other time there occurs any misunderstanding, though it may be the slightest, England is ever ready to meet the United States in a reasonable way."

As to the claim that has been set up by the United States for a mare clausum, Mr Chamberlain declared such a position to be absolutely unparalleled. "Behring Sea is no estuary or lake," said he earnestly, "it is an immense open sea and cannot by any construction be claimed as a mare clausum, and it belongs not to one country but to all the nations of the world. The claim which has partially been set up by the United States is especially surprising, since her eminent authorities on international law have always insisted, with particular emphasis, on the complete and universal freedom of the high seas. Both countries must find the dispute unworthy of a serious quarrel. England has an ever constant desire to preserve her friendliness with the United States, and the present controversy is not in the least of a critical nature."

Lord Salisbury's Aim.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—In the House of Commons Sir James Fergusson, speaking for the Government, said no adequate judgment could be formed on the negotiations or on the diplomatic correspondence in the Behring Sea matter until the House possessed Lord Salisbury's final reply, which had just been presented to Secretary Blaine. When the whole correspondence had been published he believed the House would be satisfied with the manner in which the negotiations had been conducted on the side of the British Government. Lord Salisbury had aimed to establish a close time for seals by an international arrangement and at the same time to prevent further seizing of British vessels and secure compensation for seizures already made. The statement was received with marks of applause.

THINKS SHE WAS DRUGGED.

A Girl Who Has No Knowledge of Her Marriage, and Wants a Divorce.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 16.—Attorney David Callahan of this city was retained to-day by Mrs. Sarah Fales of Newark, N.J., to look out for her daughter's interests in one of the most peculiar divorce suits that has been instituted in New Haven courts in many years.

According to the story told Miss Clara Fales came to this city last month for the purpose of spending a few months with Mrs. Charles Stevens at No. 15 Silver-street. While there she met Mrs. Stevens' brother-in-law, Frank E. Stevens, who is employed as a brakeman on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Stevens was most attentive to Miss Fales and about a week later took out a marriage license, in which he represented Miss Fales' age as 21 years. In reality she is only 19. On the following day the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. I. C. Meserve, pastor of the Davenport Congregational Church.

The young woman returned to her home in Newark about two weeks ago and was soon afterwards visited by her husband, who asked her to return to New Haven with him. She denied all knowledge of any marriage ceremony, and now claims that she was drugged while visiting Mrs. Stevens, and says that she must have been under the influence of drugs when the marriage ceremony was performed. She says that the coffee served her by Mrs. Stevens every morning tasted peculiar, and believes that it was through this medium that the drugs were administered. On these grounds Miss Fales, who is the leading soprano of the First Baptist Church, Newark, brings suit for divorce.

Mrs. Stevens declares that no drugs were administered to Miss Fales and that the marriage ceremony was performed with the full knowledge of the girl. She says that the girl, anxious to have the marriage annulled, has misrepresented the facts to her mother.

Rev. I. C. Meserve, in whose house the marriage took place, says that he did not notice anything peculiar about Miss Fales' actions or her condition. If he had he would have refused to marry the couple.

Hon. William Macdougall Seriously Hurt.

COBOURG, Aug. 16.—Hon. William Macdougall while leaving a train which was commencing to move Thursday evening was violently thrown to the ground and sustained serious injuries. He was conscious when picked up, but was unable to move and had to be lifted in a cab and driven to the house of friends, with whom he and Mrs. Macdougall were going to stay for a few days. The doctors are as yet unable to say how serious are the injuries, which are of an internal character.

The Grey Cotton Association.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The Dominion Grey Cotton Association held their third annual meeting in the Windsor Hotel Thursday night. They decided to continue the association and to maintain the cotton at its present price until next meeting. Mr. A. F. Gault was elected president, Mr. Parker of Halifax, vice-president, Mr. Findlay, inspector, and Mr. Plimsoll secretary-treasurer.

Fatality at Alton, Ont.

ALTON, Aug. 16.—Patrick Murphy, who was working in the quarries at Credit Forks, was killed by the falling of a derrick. His head was completely smashed, and his brains scattered for yards about. Three years ago Murphy was struck by a C.P.R. express train, near Cataract, and had only recently recovered from that accident. He has no friends or relatives here.

TRUSTS IN THE UNITEDSTATES.

A report of an exceedingly interesting and elaborate nature has recently been presented to the Imperial Foreign Office by the British legation at Washington, dealing with the constitution, attributes and legal status of "trusts" in the North American republic. The mode of effecting the formation of a trust, says the Toronto Empire, may be briefly described as follows: A certain number of corporations, organized under the laws of the different states and subject to their control, issue their stock to various individuals. These then agree to surrender the stock to trustees named in the agreement creating the trust, and accept in lieu thereof certificates issued by the trustees, stipulating as a rule that the various corporations taking part in the undertaking shall preserve their business and public identity. The duties of the trustees are restricted to the receipt of the dividends declared by the various corporations, and their distribution to the holders of the certificates pro rata. As the trust is not a corporation, it has, of course, no charter. There would seem to be two distinct, but equally important, objects aimed at by the promoters of these industrial combinations. The first class of promoters have secret arrangements with the corporations which transport the product from the producer to the consumer, and aim at exerting an arbitrary control over the value of the goods in which they deal. The second class aim at securing the possession or control of the whole of any particular industry by means of combination, in order to repress production and competition, thus increasing the margin of profit to the members of the trust.

The first organization of this kind possessing any importance, and the one perhaps best known in Canada, was the famous Standard Oil trust formed in 1882, with about 80 companies participating.

This vast organization now refines 75per cent of the whole of the crude oil refined in the United States, employs 25,000 men, and, according to a report of a committee of the House of Representatives, might in certain contingencies control the price of the entire product within the bounds of the re-bublic, if not over a wider area.

The committee has also stated that the prices of copper, sugar and various other articles have risen under the influence of the different trusts by which their production was manipulated.

The sugar trust represents a capital of fifty millions, controls 86 per cent. of the sugar refining capacity of the Atlantic coast, and all the sugar refineries of the state of New York, and could, according to a report of the Senate of that State, control at will the price of the raw material and of the refined product without regard to the interests of the consumer. It would almost appear that these syndicates of capitalists manipulate the chief industries of the republic, with hardly an important exception, milk, lead, linseed oil, distilleries, cattle, gas, rubber, envelopes, oil-cloth, glass and furniture being some of the articles or products which are thus controlled. It must be remembered that these organizations have an effect not only upon the price of the products dealt with (though it may be stated that in the case of one of the most important trusts, the Standard Oil, prices have steadily decreased), but also upon the wages of the men employed.

Combination, however, does not always imply monopoly, and it may be pointed out that in many cases it is the result of intense competition, and that, through a natural process of development, the copartnership merges into the joint stock company, the company into a corporation and the latter finally combines with others into a trust.

The lesson for Canadians, the Empire says, is so simple that he who runs may read. Capital gives control over production, prices and the remuneration of labor, and the combination of the capital invested in almost any chief industry in the neighboring republic may, under a system of so-called free trade, result in either the extinction of our natives industries, and the consequent expatriation of our workmen, or else in the entry of our manufacturers into the United States system of trusts, with the object of preserving themselves from annihilation, followed by the control of our prices and labor by the immense commercial concerns of the United States, with the inevitable transfer of industrial production to the more populous centres of the republic. From this contingency we are at present preserved, and will be in the future, by the consistent maintenance of a vigorous national policy of protection.

MAKING OF IRISH LACE.

THE ART INTRODUCED NEARLY TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Persistent Efforts to Make the Industry Successful—Convent Schools—The Centres of the Business—Demand for Crochet Work—There is Considerable Competition.

Lacemaking in Ireland, regarded as something more than a name to cover kindly meant but spasmodic efforts to find employment for the poor, has to compete, says an English magazine, with lace-making in other parts of the world. The art of making lace by hand has been pursued for close upon 400 years in Italy, the Netherlands and France, and it is by a comparison with the industry in these countries that an idea can be gained of Ireland's standing in the same field. In its earliest days lacemaking abroad, practised as it was by peasant women and religious communities, secured the support of a clientele of patrons, whose whimsical tastes stimulated the exercise of artistic invention and subtle handicraft. But whenever that was relaxed the industry and its trade were seriously affected. Supply stimulated demand, and the nature of the demand helped to keep up the high character of the supply. In England and Ireland it gradually became the impression that the work was a peasant and cottage industry, and as such it commended itself to the notice of benevolent persons. Experience, however, has shown that simple benevolence does not imply artistic perception, or capacity to direct; in fact, the impulsive sentiment of benevolence usually leads to results different from the more lasting ones of commercial discipline. The influence of benevolence is somewhat strongly marked in its connection with lacemaking in Ireland. Widespread as lacemaking had become among the women of France and Flanders by the end of the seventeenth century, it was at that time somewhat extensively practised in England, whence it passed over in a modified degree to Ireland. Here from the beginning the conditions seem to have been too weakly to secure for it a fairly promising foothold. This may be inferred from the fact that in the year 1743 the Royal Dublin Society granted to a benevolent and energetic lady, Lady Arabella Denny, £20 a year to be distributed by her as she pleased in prizes to those who excelled in lacemaking. She was possibly fired with ambition to promote the industry in Ireland by noting in the southern counties of England the diligence of the "free maids who weave their threads with bones," as well as by reading passages in Bishop Berkeley's "Word to the Wise," which describes how on a summer's evening common laborers were to be seen "sitting along the streets of a town or village, each at his own door with a cushion before him, making bone lace, and earning more in an evening's pastime than an Irish family would in a whole day." She seems to have set to work to teach children in a few of the Irish poor houses how to make "bone lace"—a small trimming lace something like the torchon of modern commerce, so that they should win the prizes. The Royal Dublin Society continued its annual grants for thirty years. Nevertheless soon after Lady Denny's death bone lacemaking became extinct. But the tradition survived, and early in the present century an attempt was made to revive it. The first was in 1820. Small groups of lacemakers were formed, but nothing of importance resulted. In 1829 a party of teachers were brought over from England, and before long 1500 women were engaged in making pillow laces and embroidering imitations of tulle. This lasted some fifty years, but the name of "Limerick" lace had become established. About 1846 what is known as Carrickmacross lace gained prominence, but interest waned and as good as disappeared entirely.

The uncertain and declining sales of Irish lace then gave birth to a "Ladies' Industrial Society for Ireland," whose announced object was to correspond with English and foreign acquaintances to induce them to sell, free of charge, any Irish work sent to them, and to remit to the owners the full amount that their work realized. But the society's operations were not far reaching and did not long survive.

In 1847, at the time of the famine in Ireland, efforts were made to relieve distress by learning girls and women to make lace and forcing the sales. The convent schools gave much attention to it, but the patterns were poor and the work was not altogether creditable. Crochet work was also introduced at this time, and the girls in the north and south of Ireland soon became proficient in knitting "tatting." In 1851 a Normal Lace School was established in Dublin, a grant of £500 being allowed by Parliament. But at the end of the first year it was found that while there had been progress made in the drawing and designing classes, lacemaking was a failure, and the school was closed. In 1883, with a view to stimulating interest, a number of leading firms dealing in laces gave an exhibition of all kinds of Irish lace and embroideries in London. The excellence of the handiwork was praised on every side, but the artistic taste displayed in the patterns was of a low standard. But it drew attention to Irish work in that direction, and the convents began forming classes and giving instruction. The number of such students at each lacemaking convent is, of course, small, but apparently upon the training and influence of such students, who for the most part are nuns, the possible future success of lacemaking in Ireland will largely depend. At the different centres many of the children learning lacemaking, as well as a few of the adult workers, who come to the work rooms provided for their use learn to draw and so to accustom themselves to good flowing lines and a sense of proportion in ornament, though very few, if any, of them possess or can be expected to possess the capability or aptitude to compose ornament.

These scattered art classes, most of which are equipped with good examples or photographs of old laces and with other works displaying types of ornamental compositions, are in direct touch with groups of lacemakers. This feature, which is at least a new one in the conditions of lace-making in Ireland, has been developed since 1884. There are now eight of such classes at lace-making centres, besides six similar classes at convents where varieties of industrial instruction are given. At the Schools of Art in Dublin, Cork, Limerick and Waterford small classes of lace pattern designers have been established, and the students in them are sometimes commissioned by dealers to compose patterns for laces which may be made in different parts of Ireland.

At Innishmacsaint, Cappoquin, Newtonbarry, Borris and elsewhere ladies interested in lacemaking supervise the work done by little groups of peasant women. There is a prosperous lace school on the Bath and Shirley estate at Carrickmacross: but at none of these last named places are there any drawing and pattern making classes corresponding with those at the convents. Limerick has now opened a training school for young lace-workers. This school is supported by public subscriptions started by Mr. Shaw of Limerick, but has hardly been at work sufficiently long to prove its value in influencing the industry. Limerick and Carrickmacross embroideries on net are perhaps the more easily made of the different Irish laces.

Crochet work is in a most encouraging condition, the demand for fine grades exceeding the supply. One firm not long ago employing only 60 girls now has 600. The Americans and French are the largest buyers, a pattern called the "Royal Irish Guipure" taking the best.

The larger quantity of Irish needle-point lace is filmy and flat as compared with the substantial raised or relief lace, of which as a class the Gros Point de Venise is the heaviest and boldest in character. This flat-point lace is made principally at Youghal, county Cork, and Kenmare, county Kerry. Youghal, under the direction of the Presentation Convent there, has produced for a good many years some remarkable lace of this sort. Kenmare was the first of the lacemaking convents to establish an art class, and during the past five years has not only manifested much energy, but has also produced one or two quite remarkable bits of lace.

Very little pillow lace is produced in Ireland. There are one or two torchon-making centres in Galway and the west. Some of the Industrial School children under the Convent of Mercy at Parsonstown learn to do a sort of Honiton and Brussels appliqué lace, but the annual output is small. Attempts have been made by the managers of the Donegal Industrial Fund to introduce among Donegal peasants pillow lacemaking, especially with colored threads, after the style of certain Bohemian and Russian laces. Encouraging reports have been made of these attempts and of the trade in their results.

A POET'S LOVE AND PISTOL.

His Verses Saved Him From the Penalty Earned.

Poets are not always unfortunate, even in France, says a Paris despatch in The London Daily Telegraph. Although Jules Lorrin is only eighteen years of age and gains his living as a working jeweler, he composes poetry—epic and lyric—and not only writes it, but sings it with dramatic effect at cafes, where audiences are willing to listen.

Like most poets he was touched with the tender passion, the object of his affections being a washerwoman and shirt starcher, known among her comrades as "Suet Pudding," from the fact that her figure much resembled this homely product of the culinary art, but his oleaginous mistress did not content herself with a slim and slender poet, and shared her affections with an older gentleman of portly dimensions, who had money and set her up in business. Hence the tears of the poet, the purchase of a revolver, and the firing of two shots at "Suet Pudding," which were so penetrative that the doctors cannot extract them.

Lorrin afterwards fired twice into his own head, but recovered.

For shooting at his mistress he was tried at the Palais de Justice. Lorrin captivated the jurymen by his poetical appearance, and his advocate fairly "fetched" them when he recited some of the young man's verses addressed to his inamorata after he had begun to suspect her fidelity, in which, with the usual hyperboles, he declared he could not live without her, and that one day he would be found hanging up behind the door.

The members of the jury were so touched with the proof of the accused's poetic affliction that they gave a verdict of "acquittal," although they could not extract the two balls which still remain in his cranium. His poetry, however, saved him!

The same jury were in a forgiving frame of mind all day. Subsequently they had before them a "barber and dentist," who was also charged with shooting at his mistress in the Bois de Clamart. The woman escaped, and the prisoner assumed such an appearance of despair in court that the jury acquitted him.

The Rate of Taxation.

The Finance Committee of the Town Council met last evening and discussed the rate for the year. The rate was not fixed definitely, but there will probably be an increase above last year. There is a slight increase, which is to be expected in almost all the departments, but the town rate will not be much higher than in other years. The principal increase will be in the school rate. Last year's rate was 13 7-15 mills and this year's will probably be about two mills in advance of this.

The Work of Pick-Pockets.

While standing in the crowd on the sidewalk in front of the Brennan House, at Norwood on Tuesday, says the Register, Mrs. Robert Duncan, of Peterborough, had a purse containing a sum of money stolen from her pocket. It was the work, no doubt, of a professional pick-pocket, a number of that ilk having taken up their abode there that day. The lady applied to a policeman. but the crowd was so great that it would have been like "looking for a needle in a hay-stack" to attempt to ferret out the culprit.

Encomiums for the Grand Master.

This week's issue of the Dominion Oddfellow contains a very good portrait of Dr R. W. Bell, Grand Master of the Order, together with a short sketch of his career as an Oddfellow. In closing the official organ voices the sentiments of all the brethren in the words:—"The highly satisfactory manner in which Dr. Bell has discharged the onerous duties of Grand Master proves him to be possessed of executive ability; and now that he is about to make way for his successor, his brethren throughout the jurisdiction have nothing but kind words and hearty good wishes. May he long live to aid in the advancement of the best interests of Oddfellowship, and to wear the merited honors so heartily conferred on him by the Order in Ontario."

TO CELEBRATE LABOR DAY.

The Labor Men Decide to Celebrate Labor Day on September First.

Everyone, and especially the workingmen, will remember with what success labor day was celebrated by the Peterborough labor men two years ago when a grand demonstration and picnic was held at Hastings. The day was a pleasant success in every way and one which could not help but be a profit and source of strength to the labor organizations. At the time it was hoped that the day would always be one of celebration and pleasure seeking for the workingmen. This year the initiative steps have been taken and everything would point to as successful and satisfactory demonstration as that of two years ago.

A meeting of the labor men was held in labor hall last evening. Mr. Robt. McGreggor was in the chair. It was decided to celebrate labor day on the first Monday in September, which is also the first day of that month. The programme for the day was not definitely decided upon, but it was proposed that the grand, monster picnic be held in the grove at Campbellford. Sports, games and speeches will furnish a programme for the afternoon, and a day of pleasure and profit can reasonably be expected.

Committees to handle the different arrangements were drafted and the ball started rolling in good form. On Monday evening another meeting of the labor unions will be held and arrangements will assume a more definite shape.

One Night in a Bar-Room.

Two men were before the Police Magistrate this morning charged with having been in the bar-room of the Commercial House on Sunday night last. One of the accused pleaded guilty and was fined two dollars and costs. The other pleaded not guilty and the prosecution failing to prove the charge he was discharged. Those who ever frequent bar-rooms during prohibited hours should remember that they are as liable as the man who sells the liquor.

A Successful Sportsman.

The Norwood Register says:—"Constable Adams, of the Peterborough police force, and Mrs. Adams are renewing old acquaintances here. Mr. Adams is an enthusiastic disciple of Izaak Walton and at Trent Bridge on Saturday, opened the eyes of the natives by bagging, inside of an hour, six beautiful specimens of the finny tribe. In the management of a trawling line Mr. Adams has few equals and no superiors."

The Canton Competing.

On Tuesday next Canton Peterborough goes to Cobourg to compete in the drill corps contest which is to take place there in connection with the civic tournament which opens on Monday and continues until Tuesday night. The competition in which the Canton is entered has three prizes, $50 for first, $30 for second and $20 for third. Bowmanville and Belleville cantons are also entered. A drill will be held on Monday night at which the presence of every member is requested.

Opening St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wednesday next is the date fixed for an interesting and important event, viz., the formal opening of St. Joseph's hospital, Ashburnham. The ceremony is to take place at 2 30 o'clock in the afternoon, and will probably be witnessed by a large and representative gathering. Invitations have been issued to the clergy of this diocese, to the Town and County Councillors, medical profession, Ashburnham Council and many prominent citizens. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor will officiate, while Bishop Dowling, of Hamilton, and Rev. Father McEvay, will be present.

Peterborough Young Ladies Abroad.

The Belleville Ontario in speaking of the Peterborough excursion to that city on civic holiday says:—"The Peterborough excursionists to the number of some four hundred arrived in the city by special train yesterday, as was recorded in last night's issue, and spent a pleasant day in the Bay City. There was a good sprinkling of pretty girls, just enough to make one feel that Peterborough must be a good place for a bachelor to live. They were sensible appearing, too, and the boys seemed to appreciate their value." The Ontario young man has rare powers of observation and his sound judgment—in this case—cannot be disputed.

No Singing on the Streets.

Two young men, James Paton and John Grey, who live in Ashburnham, appeared in the prisoner's box at the Police Court this morning having been locked up last night for being drunk and disorderly on George-st. Acting-Constable Moore arrested the two young men last night about eleven o'clock in front of the George-st. Methodist church. There were four young fellows, all more or less under the influence of the invigorating, going up the street singing indecent songs at the top of their voices. The officer arrested two of them after a little scuffle and the Magistrate fined them each five dollars or ten days in gaol. They were each given a week to pay their fine.

APPOINTMENT OF TEACHERS.

The Board of Education Make the Appointments for Next Term.

A special meeting of the Board of Education was called for last evening, but general business was taken up and disposed of. Mayor Stevenson, chairman, presided, and present were Messrs. Hill, Denne, Dr. Burnham, Ferguson, Dr. Boucher, McKee, Hamilton, Bradburn, Corkery and Dumble.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The secretary presented a number of communications as follows:—

D. Appleton & Co., of New York, wrote re their annual Cyclopædia which they had forwarded for examination.—Received and cyclopædia accepted.

Mr. Geo. C. Robb, Chief Engineer, sent in a report of his inspection of the boiler at the Central school. The boiler was needing a general repairing. He said a new arch was required at the fire box door, top should be cleaned off and plates examined and covered afresh. The safety valve should be fixed and the water gauge connections put in good order. Other repairs were also suggested.—Property Committee.

Miss Mattie Macdonald applied for any vacancy which there might be in the teaching staff of the schools.—Committee on Appointments.

Messrs. Murphy & Miller, solicitors for Mr. J. H. Long, notified the Board that they had been appointed by Mr. Long to collect an account of $65 for balance of salary.—On motion of Mr. Dumble the demand was not allowed and the Secretary authorized to reply to the communication.

Rev. A. C. Wilson, of Ashburnham, asking the Board to allow him to send his children to the Institute on the same terms as regards fees as town children.—The Board felt that they could make no exceptions in the regulations and the Secretary was authorized to answer Rev. Mr. Wilson to this effect.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented:

George Benton, cartage	$ [illegible] 75
Wm. Wand	13 10
"	3 94
George Tighe, attending midsummer examinations	10 00
D. Appleton & Co., encyclopædia	6 00
G. W. R. Telegraph Co	25
Dickson Co., wood	19 80

The accounts were referred to the Finance Committee.

APPOINTMENT OF TEACHERS.

Mr. DUMBLE, Chairman, presented the report of the Committee on Appointments.

The report read as follows:—

The Committee on appointments beg to submit and recommend to the Board the following appointments:—Miss Broad to take Miss McLeod's place; Miss Lizzie McDonald to take Miss Davidson's; Miss Martin to take Miss Peter's, Miss Lough to take Miss Macdonald's in the South Ward, Miss Baulkner to take Miss Martin's. Miss Crebs to take Miss Rutherford's. The appointment of Miss McDonald, Miss Baulkner and Miss Crebs to be for the ensuing half year on trial.

Your Committee cannot recommend any change in the salaries of Miss Becket and Miss McLennan until their position is established, when it is recommended that they be paid the same salaries as teachers doing the same work in other schools.

As touching the application of Mr. Ketcham your Committee are at present unable to report as they will require to confer with the teachers before they can satisfactory consider it.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

D. W. DUMBLE,
Chairman.

The report was then adopted.

NO UNQUALIFIED TEACHERS.

A discussion took place as to engaging teachers without proper qualifications.

The Board then adjourned.

Blocking the Sidewalk.

For some hours Thursday part of the sidewalk on George-st., between Simcoe and Charlotte, was blocked by the extensive stock of ale being brought in by W. J. Morrow. Several complaints were made but Mr. Morrow after securing a large staff had it removed. The stock consists principally of the celebrated White Label, and the number of cars that have come to his address these few months past speaks volumes for the ale. d27w31

The Caledonian Tournament.

The Executive Committee of the St. Andrew's Society met in their hall last evening, when the principal business was the discussion of the proposed caledonian tournament in connection with the exhibition. Resolutions were passed endorsing the steps which have already been taken. The programme for the day has already been struck and the prize list is now being arranged. The second day of the exhibition will be the day of the tournament which will undoubtedly prove a great success and a drawing feature.

Brevities.

—There was a large market this morning.

—The Town Council meets on Monday night.

—A team of cricketers went to Lakefield to-day.

—The Fire Brigade band gave an open air concert in the park last evening. The excellent music rendered was enjoyed by a large crowd of citizens.

—If "A Lady Passenger" will kindly send her name to this office her communication will be published. This is a rule that cannot be broken.

—This forenoon a heavy weight fell from a crane in Mr. Wm. Hamilton's foundry and struck Mr. James Turner on the left shoulder, disabling him from work for a few days.

NORWOOD NEWS.

ACCIDENT AT HAVELOCK.—On Wednesday afternoon, at Havelock, a son of Mr. William Mathison's fell and broke his right arm at the wrist and his left arm at the wrist and elbow. Dr. Ford was summoned and together with Dr. Jeffs are doing all they can to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate young man.

A CLEVER BOY.—Master Willie Birt, aged 12 years, son of Mr Birt of the Norwood Roller Mills, at the examinations held here last month succeeded in taking a third-class teacher's certificate. We venture to say that, outside of Norwood, there is not another school in the Dominion that can boast of a student of Master Birt's age holding a third-class certificate. When nine years of age he succeeded in passing the entrance examination. "Willie" is now employed on the Register staff and we predict a bright future for him.

A DARING THIEF.—Tuesday about noon some person forced a drawer to a dressing case in the Brennan House and abstracted therefrom a gold watch and chain, several gold rings, lockets, etc., and a pocket-book containing six dollars, the property of Mrs. Brennan. The lock was broken and the drawer after being rifled was left on a bed in the room. The house was crowded at the time with people attending the Orange celebration. The thief must have been well acquainted with the premises as the room in which the theft was committed is one of the family compartments and one of which strangers could have no knowledge. It is to be hoped that the guilty party will be brought to justice.—Register.

MARRIAGE CEREMONIES.

CUSTOMS AT WEDDINGS IN THE OLDEN TIMES.

Civilization has Changed Most of These—Presents Were Asked for and Valued Publicly—The Left Handed Marriages—A Marriage Casket was Important.

When men stole their wives without the formality of considering in the least the feelings, wishes, or preference of the ladies concerned, there was no thought of presenting the bride with anything save the necessary utensils for housekeeping, and the promise of condign punishment in case they were not properly and efficiently used. When, however, marriage became a contract, and was recognized as such, the consent of the bride was an important preliminary, and was generally secured by gifts, sometimes of nominal, often of real value.

As civilization changed the conditions of life, the married state became much more expensive; the wife became a drag on the resources of her husband; and then the men began to demand that, instead of paying for their wives, they should receive some compensation for being willing to marry. Thus originated the bride's dowry, on the principle that, as marriage is a contract and the expenses of a married man are far greater than those of a bachelor, the bride should contribute to the resources of the household.

In every Welsh neighborhood, until almost the middle of the present century, there was a functionary known as the bidder. The duty of this important official was to give notice of an approaching marriage, which he did by perambulating the neighborhood and surrounding country, announcing the festivities, inviting everybody to attend, and stating in pleasant Welsh doggerel rhymes the important people who would be present, the merits of the groom, the beauty and graces of the bride, and the abundance and delicacies of the viands that would be placed before the guests. He also served notice on all persons indebted in wedding gifts to the groom and bride or to their parents to pay up at once, the meaning of which peculiar dun will be apparent in the light of the fact that on previous occasions the parents of the pair have contributed to the household effects of half the neighborhood, and naturally desire a return.

During the Middle Ages there were among the kings and noblemen of Europe two kinds of marriage—the one in which the wife shared the honor of her husband, and her children inherited his rank and fortune, if he had any; the other in which he gave his left hand during the ceremony, his wife was merely his legalized companion, her children could not inherit his property, and she herself did not take his name nor share his rank. The latter marriage was confirmed the morning after its celebration by a gift—the morgengabe—generally of deeds to property, the documents being enclosed in a small, but valuable box. In passing, it may be noted that many complications grew out of these two styles of matrimony, for certain noblemen conceived the idea that, besides a regular, right-hand wife, they were entitled also to a morganatic or left-hand spouse, if they wanted one. Philip, landgrave of Hesse, one of the supporters of the Reformation, was of this opinion, but, being a man of prudence, determined to take ecclesiastical counsel on the subject, and accordingly wrote to Luther and Melancthon, requesting an approval of his course. The question was exceedingly delicate, for the landgrave was not a man to be trifled with, and threatened to appeal to the emperor, or even to the pope, in case of the refusal of the reformers to sanction his action in the proposed second marriage. In answer they, therefore, drew up a most remarkable document, disapproving of such marriages in general, but confirming the act of Philip, who, thus fortified by clerical authority, married, morganatically, Marguerite de Staal, and gave her what was said to be the most beautiful wedding casket ever seen in Germany.

On the day of the wedding the presents are laid out in rows on tables, and an auctioneer, paid for the purpose, attends and values at a cash rate everything that has been presented. Receipts in due form are given, and, in case the gift is not the payment of a debt similarly incurred, a return of similar value is expected when a marriage takes place in the family of the donor. By this plan the drain on resources of families for wedding presents is, in some measure, made good by a return, for among the Welsh the same kind of article is, if possible, returned when payment is requested; so that he who gives a pickle dish receives a pickle dish, and to prevent a multiplicity of pickle dishes, consultation of neighbors is generally held, at which the gifts to be made are determined. Among the wedding presents, however, there is often one which, from its peculiarity, is observable. It is a gift from the groom to the bride, and is in the form of a small box; to contain such little trinkets as she may have. Once it was an invariable accompaniment of a wedding, but, like the bidding and the bidder, it is now falling into disuse, and is more rarely seen than even in the middle of the present century. But three or four hundred years ago the wedding casket was as important an accessory to the ceremony as the ring.

In those days the wedding casket was for the bridegroom a solemn reality, for he was expected not only to provide the casket, but also to fill it with the finest jewels his means could procure. When this species of gift was found to be too much of a tax, the jewels were omitted from the programme, but the box was retained and presented, usually with a single piece of money inside, as symbolic of "all the worldly goods" with which the groom, even to the present day, is supposed to endow his bride.

The museums of Europe contain many of these wedding caskets, there being no little variety in their material, form, and manufacture. In the fourteenth century there was an idea prevalent in most parts of Europe that at a wedding the nature of the groom's occupation should be symbolized in some way by the surroundings. Thus, the carpenter, in walking into the church with his new-found treasure, promenaded over shavings and chips which were strewed on the pavement. The shoe-maker had a friend precede the jovial party, carrying a pair of shoes on a pole; the tanner had an untanned hide borne in the van of the little procession; the rope-maker, a coil of his own rope; the blacksmith was preceded by his anvil, on which members of the company from time to time enthusiastically performed.—Domestic Monthly.

HOME CIRCLERS IN SESSION.

District No. 5 Has its First Meeting at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 16.—The first meeting of representatives from District No. 5 Order of Canadian Home Circles, met in Beaver Hall yesterday afternoon, Rev. R. J. Ough of Millbrook, supreme vice-leader, was in the chair. Rev. Canon W. T. Houston of Niagara offered prayer. The convention formed a permanent organization by the election of W. Smith, St. Catharines, as chairman, and M. Y. Keating, St. Catharines, secretary. It was resolved to recommend to the Supreme Lodge that permanent arrangements be made for the purpose of holding annual meetings of districts.

A resolution recommending district representation to the Supreme Lodge instead of one representative from each lodge, as at present, was voted down. Bro. John G. Cumming of St. Catharines was elected district deputy supreme leader of the St. Catharines district. The convention closed with prayer by Rev. J. W. Gribble of Port Dalhousie.

Going out West.

The Belleville Ontario has the following in reference to a young man who formerly resided in Peterborough and whose many friends here will heartily endorse:—"W. H. Campbell, B.C.L., Ph. D., leaves to-morrow for Superior, Wis., where he will locate. Mr. Campbell is a rising young lawyer, full of that energy and push which will one day put him in the front rank of his profession. He has made many friends in Belleville who will hear of any success which may be his with satisfaction. He was lately admitted to the firm of Flint & Anderson, now known as Flint, Anderson & Campbell."

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

"Why—where you recommended: in the farthest vault beneath your old bathing-house; and that is a place where he cannot be readily found."

"And what disposition can you make of the body after the work is done?"

"Why—that is simple. It can be hidden in the old conduit. You know the conduit still exists there, and probably in some places between there and the river it is perfect; but near the building it is all in ruins. The body can be hidden so far in that no stench can come from it in summer time even to those in the vault itself. So you see that is easy."

"Then let the work be done at once—say to-night."

"To-morrow night, my lord, will do as well, for I am engaged to-night."

"Very well—let it be to-morrow night. But mind—this is settled. There is no more question about this affair. When I see you again I trust you will have no reason to offer why Raric Novel has not been disposed of."

"You need have no fears on that head, my lord. You may consider that the gunmaker is dead."

"Right! So let it be."

And thus did the wicked duke dispose of Raric Novel!

Again Olga took a turn across the room, and when he stopped there was a dark cloud upon his brow.

"Savotano," he said, "there is one more man whom I at least would be assured is not in my way. I mean that infernal monk."

"I saw him this morning, my lord, and I am sure he is watching me. And he is not alone. He has others with him. I have been followed, and one of my men—the one who entrapped Novel—told me, not two hours ago, that he knew his steps had been followed."

"And do you think this monk is at the bottom of it?" asked the duke, with some uneasiness.

"I know it, for I have seen him when I knew he was watching me."

"Then why have you not got him out of the way?"

"Aha," uttered the priest with a dubious shake of the head, "we cannot always do as we should. But he shall not live long—if I can help him off; and I think the opportunity may offer itself."

"He is a bold fellow. Why—I found him only yesterday in my own palace—in the chamber of the countess."

"Ha! And could you not have disposed of him then?"

"Not well. It was in broad day, and people were about. But if I catch him here again my sword shall find his heart. I have given him legal warning. But," continued the duke, after some further thought, "you must be careful in your dealings with him. He may have some organized band always about him."

"I will be caught in no trap," returned the priest confidently. "He shall find that I can be as keen as he can. But it is very strange—"

"What is strange?" asked Olga, starting, for he, too, had been thinking of a very strange thing.

"Why—that this black monk should turn up here in Moscow so suddenly, and commence, the first thing, to dog my footsteps, and hang about your palace."

"Aye," responded Olga. "And the same thought was in my mind when you spoke. But never mind—he shall not escape me if he presumes much more. By heavens, they shall know that the Duke of Kula is not to be trifled with. There is but one power in Moscow above mine, and that is the Emperor himself; and I may say that even he is not above me. He cannot get along without me. Does anything turn up to puzzle him he sends straightway for me."

"Then use your power for your own good, my lord."

"I will. Fear not for me on that score."

At this juncture the priest arose to take his leave.

"You have your instructions," said Olga.

"I remember them well, my lord—and they shall be carried out to the letter."

"And when done, let me know."

"I will obey."

And once more the misshapen priest was in the street, and the duke was alone.

"Ah, my lord," muttered the giant tool to himself, as he walked thoughtfully along, "you may be a little too confident of your own power. I have known such things in Russia."

CHAPTER XIV.

Away back of the old cathedral of Moscow, and in a narrow, dark court which was overlooked by the towers of the giant edifice, stood a curiously constructed stone building, which, though not connected bodily with the cathedral, yet seemed to belong to it. It was low and broad, with a flat, tiled roof, and without a visible window. Within one of the apartments of this building—an apartment away down in the bowels of the earth, where the light of day never came—were seated six men. The room was of fair size, and the floor, the walls, and the ceiling were of dark stone. Wooden benches were arranged about the place; and there were some other articles of furniture there too—strange contrivances [illegible] were, and fashioned after various shapes [illegible]. But of that anon. The place [illegible] by a large hanging lamp, which [illegible] enough to make the room [illegible]. The six men, sat about [illegible] a hood and sword; and the most prominent man there was Valdimir the Monk!

And Valdimir alone exposed his face. All the rest wore black masks, their robes being of the same melancholy hue. They sat there silent as death, Valdimir gazing down upon the table, and the other five gazing fixedly upon him. They were great men all of them, and they bore themselves towards Valdimir as become a servant to his acknowledged master.

"The hour is growing late," said Valdimir, at length looking up from the table. His voice sounded in that place like the echo of a tomb. It was low and hollow, and the others started as they heard it.

"There's time yet to spare, master," replied one who sat next the monk.

"I trust we shall not be disappointed," said Valdimir, at the expiration of a few moments more.

To this no answer was returned.

At length there came a dull echo from overhead, and the six dark sitters started up to listen. The sound grew louder, and soon it sent down into that dismal chamber the notes of coming footsteps. In a few moments more the heavy iron door creaked upon its hinges, and three men entered, and soon behind them came three more. Those who came in advance were two of them leading the third as a prisoner. And so it was with those behind. The iron door creaked again, and when the heavy bolts had been shoved into their sockets, the two prisoners were led forward.

AN AUSTRIAN BARON

Plays a swindling Game in Montreal—Exploits in American Cities.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—A young man of pleasing appearance and address has been victimizing a number of people in this city lately. He passes under the name of Baron Von Katscher, and is said to be the descendant of of a rich brewer of Vienna. He came from Quebec on Saturday last and put up at the Richelieu Hotel, where he managed to borrow a $5 bill of Mr. Durocher. From the Richelieu he went to the Windsor, where he stopped some time, explaining the fact of his having no baggage by saying that it had been delayed on the road, but enquiries set on foot by the management revealed the fact that his trunks had been detained by the manager of the Florence Hotel at Quebec where he had stopped for some time.

During his stay here he tried to pass off worthless checks and succeeded in one or two instances. One of these was accepted by the firm of Schwob Bros., of which the vice-consul of France is a member. He won Mr. Schwob's confidence by his excellent manners and by his cleverly concocted story of knowing Mr. Schwob's family in Paris. Von Katscher has worked the same game in many American cities and was recognized here by an American detective. Chief Hughes was communicated with and as a result of the enquiries he made it was ascertained that Von Katscher victimized many persons in New York, Cincinnati, Baltimore and Middleboro, Ky., but none of these cities were prepared to extradite him.

THE DOMINION ALLIANCE.

Proceedings of the Council at Montreal—Election of Officers.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—The annual convention of the Council of the Dominion Alliance continued its session yesterday afternoon. A communication was read from the Northwest Prohibitory Alliance deploring the condition of affairs in the territories under the present system. Much discussion ensued as to whether it was advisable to call for a plebiscite on prohibition and a resolution was agreed upon embodying the principle that it would be better to devote their energies toward a prohibitory law.

These officers were elected: President, Hon. A. Vidal; corresponding secretary, F. S. Spence; recording secretary, J. H. Carson; treasurer, W. H. Orr; vice-presidents, Hon. J. C. Aikins, W. H. Howland (for Ontario), J. R. Dougall, S. A. Fisher, M.P., (for Quebec.) Executive Committee—J. J. McLaren, Jacob Spence, A. M. Featherstone, Rev. Dr. Sutherland, Dr. C. V. Emory, W. W. Buchanan, Rev. Dr. Williams, B. D. Fleming, W. Tees, James Baylis, Rev. A. M. Phillips, Rev. W. A. Hunter, Joseph Jamieson, M.P., Major Bond, Rev. Dr. Thomas Reid, T. W. Campbell, L. C. Peake, A. A. Batcheller, H. O'Hara, J. B. Hay, J. Brooks.

A large committee on legislation including many senators and M.P.'s was also appointed.

HE WAS HUNG IN EFFIGY.

The Return of an Eloping Couple Causes a Small Riot.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 16.—In December James Halstead, an insurance agent, living in Flint Village, the eastern section of this city, tired of his wife and quit town, taking with him Mrs. Swindells, the mother of six children. Mrs. Halstead continued to occupy a tenement in one of three large blocks that were Halstead's property, but mortgaged previous to his elopement. A week ago Mrs. Swindells returned and made up with her husband. Halstead re-appeared Thursday. He was travel-stained and penitent. Mrs. Halstead opened her arms to him.

"Jane," said Halstead, "I have had a vision, and the Lord said you would forgive me if I came back, and I have responded."

Mrs. Halstead's forgiveness did not suit the Flint Village people. Halstead had been a teacher in the church of the Latter Day Saints, a sect closely allied to Mormons. He had been in the habit of preaching curbstone sermons on morality, and they objected to his method. Just before midnight a thousand people surrounded Halstead's house and gave vent to their indignation. Horns and brass instruments and groans and hisses turned the village into a pandemonium. Stones were thrown, windows broken, and the people were preparing tar and feathers for the prodigal, when an effigy was brought in. It was labelled, and after midnight Halstead's mummy swung from a telegraph pole before his bedroom windows. Police broke up the gathering. The effigy hung until noon yesterday. In the afternoon it was rumored that Mr. and Mrs. Halstead had gone out of town.

Indignation increased and mischief brewed all day at Flint Village, and at 8½ o'clock the streets near Halstead's house were filled with a crowd determined to do him injury. About 9 o'clock Halstead and his wife arrived in a horse-car and attempted to reach their house by a back way. The crowd surrounded them, threatening Halstead with tar and feathers and bodily injury. The police appeared and protected the couple from the crowd. Two men were arrested. The village is in a state of excitement at present, and the people are ripe for mischief.

U. S. Silver Purchases.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The amount of silver offered to the Treasury Department yesterday was 704,000 ounces, of which 417,000 were accepted. The director of the mint refuses to give the price paid, but it is known to be more than $1.14. The price of silver in London is 53 pence and the New York equivalent is $1.04. The silver purchased yesterday is for delivery at Philadelphia, San Francisco and New Orleans. It was announced at the Treasury that yesterday's offers for the sale of silver were at rates ranging from $1.14 to $1.15½. The department accepted all offers at prices below $1.15.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face (pityriasis), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued used for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more importance and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude,
(Rev.) WM. CHEERLMAN, York Corner, Me.

Cuticura Remedies

Are compounded upon scientific principles, are absolutely pure, delicately manipulated and in every respect bear the stamp of a refined and cultivated origin. AFTER MANY YEARS.

AN OLD MURDER RECALLED BY A RECENT ARREST.

Poor Maria Colville's Fate—A Tragedy that in Some Features Resembles the Benwell Mystery—Cardinal Smith Charged with the Crime.

SIMCOE, Aug. 16.—In December, 1884, the decomposed remains of a young woman were found in the Cedar Swamp in the township of Townsend, lying east of the village of Bloomsburg. The affair attracted some attention at the time, as it was made very clear that the unfortunate girl had been murdered.

Her name it was ascertained was Maria Colville, and her home had been in Caledonia. The Government offered a liberal reward for the conviction of her slayer, but no arrest was made, though there was a good deal of idle talk floating around implicating one Cardinal Smith, a notorious character, who had been keeping a disreputable resort in the vicinity of Jarvis, with some complicity in the crime.

The excitement, however, soon died out, and poor Maria Colville was apparently left to lie unavenged and forgotten.

It would seem by recent developments, however, that one person had not been discouraged at the difficulty of clearing up the mystery of her death.

Lemuel Kitchen, a farmer who lives near the spot where her remains were found, had seen shortly before their discovery Smith and the young woman driving through the swamp, and he at least was certain that Smith knew more than he cared to tell.

From that time until the present he has not ceased his vigilance. Gathering up a thread of evidence here and another there, he now claims to have woven a coil of testimony around Smith that will lead to his conviction. What he may know, of course, is not yet public property, but he has at least satisfied Magistrate Kitchen, who issued a warrant on Thursday last.

Constable Clarke made the arrest near Hagersville, and on Saturday night Smith was a prisoner in Simcoe jail charged with the murder of Maria Colville.

A NEW KIND OF SARPENT.

The Paralyzing Sea Monster Seen by Veracious Skipper Knowlton.

HALIFAX, Aug. 16.—Capt. Obed Knowlton of the schooner Trader, reports that while on his way from Boston he sighted what he supposed to be the wreck of a vessel. He bore down on it, when to his astonishment he discovered it to be the dead carcass of a gigantic sea monster, unlike anything he had ever seen before. His vessel got within 12 feet of it. It seemed to be about 80 feet long and 20 feet broad, and was covered with a shell on its back. The monster tapered off at each end and was striped like a zebra. It had the appearance of being run into by a vessel, as the shell on its back was broken in.

Toronto Topics.

TORONTO, Aug. 16.—The introduction of an organ at the Jewish synagog in Richmond-street has led to angry discussion and some bitterness of feeling on the part of a small minority of the congregation. At a special meeting held yesterday it was voted, 40 to 8, to retain the instrument.

The position of hide inspector, left vacant by the death of ex-Ald. Pepler, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. E. A. Thompson.

Joseph Bullock was arrested last night under the Charlton Act, for the alleged seduction of his 15-year-old step-daughter, Jennie Beatty. Bullock's wife died a year ago last March and Jennie's child was born last week.

An Unknown Man Found Dead.

BRADFORD, Aug. 16.—This morning the body of an unknown man was found in the Holland River. He is about 70 years of age, five feet ten inches high, perfectly grey, dressed in dark clothes, the coat and vest being made out of striped duck. The lower portion of the left side of the face is eaten away by cancer, and he is badly ruptured. There is nothing on his person by which he can be identified, and he is a perfect stranger to everybody here. As there are no marks of violence on the body, it is concluded that the man committed suicide.

Wanted in Hamilton.

BUFFALO, Aug. 17.—Some time ago a boy named Mark Tomphins, aged 19 years, robbed a man in Hamilton, Ont., of $110 and then came to Buffalo. Word was sent to the Buffalo police and yesterday forenoon Special [illegible] located him at the home of his sister. He and Acting-Sergeant Kress went there about 5½ a.m., and despite the protests of the woman, who insisted that there was nobody in the house, effected an entrance and found the youthful criminal in bed. He was taken to Hamilton this morning.

The U. S. Pop. About 64,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The census office to-day practically completed the count of the population of the United States. The count up to this time shows an aggregate of 63,636,955, and when the entire count is finished the population, according to Mr. Porter's estimate, will be about 64,000,000.

Suicide of a Millionaire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Millionaire Joseph A. Jameson of Jameson, Smith & Co., bankers and brokers of this city, committed suicide to-day at the palatial residence of his sister, Mrs. Cotting, in Fifth-avenue by hanging. Temporary insanity caused by illness is given as the cause.

A FRESH COMPLICATION.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL TROUBLE FURTHER AGGRAVATED.

The Action of the Buffalo Switchmen Brings a New Labor Organization Into the Strike—Pinkerton Men Fire Into the Crowd at Albany.

BUFFALO, Aug. 16.—The strike on the New York Central Road was further complicated this morning. At 3 o'clock the switchmen in the Central yards struck work and those on the West Shore system in this city followed suit. There are upwards of 200 men in the movement and a freight blockade at East Buffalo is imminent. The closing of the West Shore Road for freight is the most serious aspect thus far, as it completely cripples the Central's facilities for forwarding freight.

There was the worst tangle of trains and engines in the Central depot this morning that has been seen since the strike began, a week ago this morning. West Shore and Central engines crowded every track from the north to the south side of the depot and for a long distance east. The belt line train, due at 8 o'clock, stopped at Chicago-street and the passengers walked in as they did from the same train last Saturday morning. All passenger trains on all roads entering the Central depot were behind time this morning and the big train house presents as confused a spectacle as at any time since the strike began. The Michigan Central through train due to leave here at 6½ got away at 9½, and other trains were even further delayed. No information could be had at the Central offices. Superintendent Burrows and Trainmaster Maloney were out at East Buffalo.

One of the men about the depot was asked what caused the switchmen to go out. "Here's all there is to it," was the reply. "A crew of men were ordered around here from the Erie-street depot last night to take the place of strikers in the train house. They came, but did not like the job and sent a delegation to Supt. Burrows, asking him to send them back to the Erie-street depot, as they, being union men, objected to being detailed to take the places of brother unionists out on strike. Mr. Burrows was determined that they should act as he desired and they struck. I guess the rest of the men were with them and will stand by them. So don't be surprised if you hear something drop. I don't know anything about the firemen going out: I only know the switchmen are out at Black Rock and East Buffalo on both the Central and West Shore roads."

The action of the switchmen gives a new phase to the Central strike. It has now spread beyond the Knights of Labor. The men who went out this morning are members of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association, an organization extending all over the country. It has a membership of about 800 in this city. Comparatively few switchmen are in the Knights of Labor here.

It was Grand Master Sweeney of the switchmen's organization, who ordered this morning's strike. He arrived here last night. It is said by the men that the strike is likely to extend all over the Vanderbilt system if the trouble here is not speedily settled, and that it certainly will spread should an effort be made to have non-union switchmen handle Central or West Shore trains.

It is also stated that should roads outside the Vanderbilt system consent to take Central freight, the switchmen on these outside roads will be called out. In this connection it is reported that the Erie road has refused to handle Central freight, fearing trouble with its switchmen. There is no concealing the fact that the switchmen's strike has greatly added to the gravity of the situation.

BLOODSHED AT ALBANY.

A Freight Train Stoned—The Pinkertons Reply With Bullets.

ALBANY, Aug. 16.—Early this evening as a freight manned by Pinkerton men was passing through the north part of the city several boys stoned the train. Two of the Pinkerton men fired in the crowd, one of the balls passing through the ankle of John McCarty, aged 22, a moulder, standing near by. The police arrested Robert Tyler, James Patterson and Thomas O'Connor, three of the detectives.

Shortly after the shooting affray at the Van Wert-street crossing Edward Canary, a Pinkerton man, assaulted Christopher Lang with a club and he was taken into custody. Another Pinkerton man named Charles Paulina, who was walking up the tracks at that point swinging a loaded gun and revolver, was arrested and jailed. The man McCarthy is in the hospital. The ball entered the leg just above the ankle and came out on the other side.

The leaders in the strike say their men were not a party to the trouble. They say Assemblies 10,740 and 10,854 have patrolled that locality since the strike began and will to-night double their force. When the new men quit work in the West Albany yards at 6 o'clock to-night three of them were approached by a committee representing the strikers who tried to persuade them to desert the railroad company. The men refused and some words ensued when a number of Pinkerton men who had been at supper appeared on the scene. One of them drew his revolver to intimidate the committee but he was arrested before any trouble ensued.

READY WITH THEIR RIFLES.

The Pinkertons Fire Recklessly Into a Crowd—Shot on Her Own Doorstep.

ALBANY, Aug. 17.—Trouble was expected all along the line of the Central road within the city limits to-day, owing to the fact that the Pinkerton men were all known to be armed. These expectations were in part fulfilled. Nearly all of the Pinkerton men were withdrawn to-day from duty at crossings within the city limits in consequence, as their presence served to excite the frenzy of the throng of onlookers. The police took their places and it is owing to this change that more than the following affrays are not recorded. The stoning of the Pinkerton men was continued to-day up to noon with no serious results.

About 1 o'clock James Hatton of New York city, a Pinkerton man, was patrolling the tracks in the vicinity of Van and West-street. He claims to have been struck with a stone in the chest while his companion who was on duty at that point was knocked down and severely hurt by a gang of roughs. Then he fired his revolver into the crowd, the ball striking a boy aged 15 named Richard Dwyer. Dwyer received an ugly wound in the hip and is now in the hospital. Hatton had no time to fire another shot. The crowd surged around him and before the police could interfere his clothes were torn off his back, he was struck with fists and clubs and presented a pitiable sight when rescued from the anger of the crowd by the police, who were obliged to draw their revolvers to stem the crowding mass of people. One policeman had his coat torn off him in the fight. Hatton was taken to the station house where after his wounds were dressed by the police surgeon he was locked up on the charge of assault in the second degree. Hatton would surely have suffered death had the police not come to his assistance when they did.

These occurrences aroused the passions of the spectators, mostly roughs and hoodlums, as nothing else has since the strike was declared. Their number increased, and the chief of police fearing further trouble established his headquarters in the station house nearby and placed all the reserves at that point. At interval after, three freight trains came down from West Albany past the crossing on their way to New York. About 3 o'clock one of these trains passed through the city which the Pinkertons say was stoned. The police claim such was not the case. At any event, when the train reached the Broadway viaduct the Pinkertons on top of the freight cars carrying Winchester rifles began a reckless fusilade on the crowd standing in that vicinity. Four or five shots were fired without any provocation and resulted in the injury of an innocent party. Mrs. Thomas Hogan was standing on the stoop of her residence on a near-by corner when a shot struck her in the right thigh. The train went right on and the miscreants escaped. Mrs. Hogan was carried to her room, where the ball was extracted, and physicians say she will recover.

After this incident Robert Pinkerton, who has had charge of his forces here in person, called on Chief Willard. He said his men had been assaulted continually and that the firearms had been put in their possession only yesterday, that they might be used when necessary in self defence and in the work of protecting the company's property, which task had been allotted to him. He declared his readiness to turn over to the police any of his men who had committed a crime and promised to investigate the shooting of Mrs. Hogan. He was sorry innocent parties had suffered, and added that it generally happened that way. Still he would stand by his men against the wanton attacks of the roughs.

Chief Willard expressed the belief that if the Pinkerton men had never been brought here the local police would have been abundantly able to cope with the situation. As it is, he fears there will be further trouble as long as these men stay here, and said in that event the local authorities could not be held responsible as he had repeatedly informed Superintendent Bissell that the company's property would be well guarded by his own men if no outside forces were brought here to inflame the passions of the sympathizers of the strikers.

While the two chiefs were talking a third victim was brought into the station house. He was Frank Park, aged 16, and had been shot in the right arm above the elbow by one of the Pinkerton men on a freight train which passed through at 4 o'clock. This assailant also escaped, the train continuing on its way. This assault was unprovoked. The boy claims to have been sitting on a post near a canal boat lying in the little basin on which he is an employe.

A Pinkerton man who fired into the crowd at the Van Woert-street crossing was pursued up the tracks to West Albany by Officer Dunn and captured. The officer brought his prisoner back to the city by train on the understanding that the engineer would stop and let them off near the station house. The train was not stopped, however, but continued on over the bridge to East Albany, where a crowd of Pinkerton men rescued the prisoner and handled the officer rather badly.

The Lake Shore Anticipates no Trouble.

DETROIT, Aug. 16.—The officials of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern road say no trouble is anticipated with their employes here.

The Situation in New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Trains arrived and left the Grand Central depot to day on regular time. No freight was started out to-day, but it is announced that freight will be received to-morrow at all the freight yards and regular freight trains started.

THE N. W. STATES WHEAT CROP.

Estimates Now Place the Quantity at 93,000,000 Bushels.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 16.—Colonel G. D. Rogers, Editor of The Market Record, having made a survey of the field, to-day estimates the wheat crop of Minnesota and the Dakotas. He has gone over all three States and made county averages. He says:

Reports of threshing in Southern Minnesota, and in central parts, are general and from such measurement, it is found that the crop is yielding from fifteen to twenty bushels an acre in portions that went some two or four bushels more last year. That is particularly true of the timber sections, where the yield was heavy in 1889. Several of the Mississippi River counties, as well as many others in the Southern tiers, put into wheat 50 per cent. more land than they did last year. The reports indicate fourteen bushels an acre, and if the State were averaged at that the result would be about 46,000,000 bushels for Minnesota. From general information it does not appear that the average would go more than about thirteen bushels to the acre, or in round numbers 43,000,000 bushels of wheat for this State, against 48,000,000 bushels last year. The yield in South Dakota, so far as known from threshing, is satisfactory in the southern part of the State, and in the north half there is the eastern tier of counties that produce a fair crop, and some along in other places, while the northern central portions do not exceed 50 per cent. of a fair yield. The yield does not probably exceed 10½ bushels. In North Dakota there is some heavy grain and some light. In the northern portion of the State wheat is expected to yield twenty bushels in large areas, while a little south of there and west are portions very light. In the Red River Valley there is a large amount of good wheat that will probably reach fifteen bushels, while in Ramsey and some other counties it will not probably reach more than seven bushels, but the most widely cultivated regions are where the grain is better, and that State will probably yield 11½ bushels, which would give both Dakotas a production of about 50,000,000 bushels, making for the three States of Minnesota and North and South Dakota 93,000,000 bushels. More extended threshing may call for some revision.

Uncle Sam's Fiscal Policy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Gen. Nettleton, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, spent some time to-day in consultation with the President upon the fiscal policy of the Government. It had been generally expected some change would be announced to-day in the Government's policy with reference to bond purchase, but after leaving the President Gen. Nettleton said there would be no change for the present. There might be some modification of this policy in the near future, however.

Losses Caused by Flames.

APPLETON, Wis., Aug. 16.—The machine paper mill of the Pattern Paper Company was burned to-day. Loss $150,000.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The Queen's theatre at Manchester has been destroyed by fire. There was no loss of life.

Holland's Mills, Miles Platt, near Manchester, has been burned, loss $600,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The stables of Bernheimer & Schmidt's brewery were burned to-night with 30 valuable horses; loss $175,000.

POTENTATES HUNGERING FOR A SLICE OF TURKEY

It is Said That the Dominion of the Sultan Will Soon Be Divided—Caprivi and De Giers to be Present at the Conference of Their Sovereigns.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A report prevails in diplomatic quarters that, a dissolution of the Turkish Empire having become inevitable, Emperor William's visit to his imperial relatives and neighbors have been undertaken with a view of securing, if possible, a peaceful division of Turkey among the interested powers, thus settling the Eastern question for many years to come. Concerning this Earl Granville, who was Mr. Gladstone's Foreign Secretary, said to-day:

"If anyone was to collect from day to day the evidence furnished by the telegrams from Turkey as to the condition of the Ottoman administration he would be convinced that nothing short of a miracle keeps the Turkish Empire in existence. Recently, for example, it was reported from Constantinople that the spread of brigandage in Asia Minor is so serious that additional troops must be sent to protect the workmen constructing railroads. The state of Anatolia has been much the same for the last 12 years. The Administration is powerless alike to preserve order and to carry on the ordinary work of government. Only a few days ago attention was called to the complaints of the Sultan's Mussulman subjects in regard to the misgovernment of Asia Minor. This is the most significant sign of the near collapse of Turkey. The Christians may be ill-used freely, but so long as the Mussulmans are loyal the stability of the Sultan's rule, at least in his Asiatic dominions, is not dangerously menaced from within. But as soon as the Turks themselves are ripe for revolt the end must come."

What keeps the fabric still in appearance erect and strong is not its own solidity, but the desire of the great powers that it shall not at present collapse. This will enable the show of government to be carried on so long as the machinery does not fall to pieces from within. But the dry rot within the Empire has spread so rapidly in recent years that the powers may at any time be confronted with a new problem—that of propping up the Sultan against the force of his own Moslem subjects. Whether in view of this necessity the powers will be able to make arrangements to put aside their quarrels is a question not to be settled by speculation. In all probability those powers which foresee the event and are prepared with a policy will best secure their own interests—their own share of the plunder."

The Traveling Emperor.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—The German ironclad Irene and the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, reached Reval to-day. On their arrival a Russian fleet of 16 vessels fired a salute and Grand Duke Vladimer received Emperor William. The German sentiment at Reval is strong and the Emperor goes there against the Czar's wishes. The German Colony desired to present an address to the Emperor, but any address beyond a final greeting has been tabooed in defence to Russian jealousy.

At noon the Emperor started for Narva. That city is already decorated. The Czar and the Emperor will meet at the villa of a wealthy citizen. A host of Russian police guarded the approaches to the villa and were assisted by 50 German police. Public traffic on the railway connecting Narva with St. Petersburg has been suspended and the line will be used solely for official business during the coming week. The road has been thoroughly inspected and a watch has been set along the line. A few newspaper men have been granted permits under conditions which will subject their reports to a strict censorship. The military manœuvres begin at Narva Monday.

The imperial conferences at which Chancellor von Caprivi and M. De Giers will be present are expected to last over three days. If the Emperor fails to persuade the Czar toward a permanent policy of peace, the conditions to be arranged through a revision of the Berlin treaty by another European congress, the official opinion is decided that rapid developments tending toward a European conflict are certain to follow.

The Russian Government appears to be acting in full concert with the French Government.

Leslie Duncan's Flight.

LONDON, Aug 16.—The great sensation of the week has been the flight to Paris of Leslie Fraser Duncan, the proprietor of The Matrimonial News, who is anxious to avoid a $50,000 verdict against him in favor of Miss Knowles. It is believed he has sold all all his property, as well as The Matrimonial News.

They Let the Steamer Go.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—The Portuguese have released the British African Lakes Company's steamer seized by Lieut. Continento. The crew have also been released.

An Augury of Peace.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 17.—The newspapers here extend friendly welcome to Emperor William. They admit the sincerity of his pacific declarations and declare that Russia is disposed to co-operate with him. At the same time they hold that Emperor William ought to operate in Vienna rather than in St. Petersburg, seeing that Russia will only accept a solution of the Bulgarian question in conformity with the Berlin treaty which has been violated with Austrian complicity. The Journal de St. Petersburg says the meeting of the Russian and German Emperors is certain to strengthen the friendship between them. The Grashdanin attributes great importance to the meeting and hails the German Emperor's visit as an augury of peace. The Czar and Czarina have arrived at Narva. After accepting from the authorities the customary offering of bread and salt they drove to the Polowtsoff villa, the route being lined with enthusiastic crowds.

The Cholera.

CAIRO, Aug. 17.—At Mecca Friday the deaths from cholera numbered 47, and at Jeddah 34.

CAIRO Aug. 17.—The reports that cholera has appeared here are untrue. The health of the city is excellent. Pilgrims arriving from Jeddah are detained in the desert near Abbasi yet under a guard.

CAIRO, Aug. 17.—There have been 13 deaths from cholera among 1800 pilgrims at the Eltor quarantine.

MADRID, Aug. 17.—One death from cholera was recorded here to-day.

The court martial which has been trying the persons implicated in the riot in the Armenian church at Koum[illegible] has condemned the ringleaders to death, and sentenced the others to terms of imprisonment ranging from six to fifteen years.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—A general strike of cigarmakers began last night. About [illegible] are out. The strike is for an advance of $1 per thousand for making all grades of cigars. Prices now paid range from $7 to $15 per thousand.

THE INTERNATIONAL RAILWAY QUESTION.

SIR JOSEPH HICKSON'S letter on the observance of the United States Inter-State Commerce law by Canadian railways shows that the clamor in the Republic against Canadian railways does not arise out of the operation or non-observance of that law, but from a desire to shut out the Canadian roads from United States traffic. This clamor originated with the railways on the other side that felt the competition of the Canadian roads and has threatened the abolition of the bonding privilege and a measure, more or less drastic, of non-intercourse. The railway interest on the other side is influencial in Congress, but opposed to it on this question are the business interests that are served by the Canadian railways. If the Canadian roads are not allowed to carry United States traffic they will not suffer alone, for the people of the States whom they now serve will also suffer, and this fact has had weight. The railway interest opposed to the Canadian roads has, however, on its side a large influence wielded by politicians who desire to harass Canada by commercial restrictions into political annexation direct or through the commercial union route. Unfortunately these politicians have been encouraged in this course, not only by Mr. Erastus Wiman's efforts to bring about the "capture of Canada," but also by the course pursued by politicians on this side of the line. They have been aided and encouraged by the course pursued by Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Laurier and other Liberal leaders. If the public men of the Dominion had stood loyally by their country, the American fillibusterers would have at once seen the futility of trying to coerce a united people, but the wailings of the disgruntled politicians over each aggressive expression on the other side and their largely unfounded lamentations over the injury that would be done, coupled with their beseeching of the people of Canada to knock under and accept any terms from the United States, have been such as to lead the politicians of the Republic to believe that all they had to do was to squeeze this country a little, through its railways or by tariff enactments, and the Dominion would be theirs. The strange spectacle of Liberal leaders and the present editor of the Globe appearing in Washington in consultation with these politicians has never been explained, though an explanation was certainly demanded by the circumstances. If, however, Congress does decide to try coercion it will find that Canada will not be coerced. This country has survived other attempts of the kind, and although they were injurious for a time they were not unmixed evils. It is well to understand the question in regard to the railways, and for this reason the letter from one so well informed on the subject as the General Manager of the Grand Trunk is of interest.

SMITH SIFTINGS.

Correspondence of the Review.

ROADS.—I wish to draw attention to the state of the Communication road, especially from the fourth line to town. The like of it is not to be found in Ontario to-day for roughness, large fast stones, loose stones and holes, hogs back grading and everything else combined to make it almost impassable. If the present road masters on the lower beats keep on with their new fashioned grading we will have a wheel in each ditch and the road in under the waggon. Now the law says the road bed is to be 40 feet wide and it ought to be wide enough so teams could pass without going into the ditch. There are some places on this road that are not over 12 feet wide and a deep ditch on either side. Now who is to blame for this kind of work? Does not the people pay taxes enough to keep the roads right? But our Council will scarcely give money enough to pay for the gravel that is used when the farmers are doing their statute labor. But if any of the roads in north Smith want fixing our Reeve is off at a minute's notice to see about it and shove up lots of money to fix them right too. He knows who to keep in with. They are the people who keep him where he is and he knows it too. Now, sir, I do not went to censure anybody too severely, but there is no excuse for anybody to make for this state of things. There is one piece of the road near Bell's gate that has never been repaired this summer that is a shame. The road master says he has no money to fix it or he would repair it. Our Reeve says he cannot get men to repair it or it would be done. He did not look for men very much or he could have lots of men that would be glad to get a job not 2 miles from his own door. Now, sir, I do hope those whose duty it is to look after these things will attend to it before some accident occurs and they then will be called upon to pay heavy damages.

ENGLAND'S ROYAL FARM.

QUEEN VICTORIA AS A FARMER DAIRYWOMAN AND STOCK RAISER.

Her Majesty's Magnificent Farms at Windsor in the Fertile Valley of the Thames—Pure Bred Cattle, Horses, Hogs and Sheep—A Profitable Business.

As all students of history know, Windsor Castle stands on a sharp bluff overlooking the river Thames, and in the midst of one of the most beautiful pastoral valleys in the world. The domain of this ancient stronghold has an extent of many acres, to practically use which the late Prince Consort established the Shaw farm within its boundary. One of the most interesting features of this is the Dairy. This building is of yellow brick, with sandstone facings. It consists on the ground floor of the milk-room, the churning-room, and the scalding-room; the upper floor contains the rooms set apart for the use of the woman in charge; the milk-room is fitted up with due attention to labor saving. The walls and the floor are of subdued coloring, being lined with encaustic tiles; the shelves and the butter-table are of ordinary veined marble; the decoration though simple is in excellent taste, consisting of several small portrait medallions in bas-relief of the royal children, a few pieces of antiquated porcelain, and a small fountain at either end. In the center of one side wall stands the butter-table, on which presides a bisque figure of a nymph emptying a stone jar; the milk vessels are shallow white china jars of two gallons capacity each. The cows which supply the milk are milked twice daily, at 5 a. m. and 3 p. m. The milk is skimmed twice a day, and butter is churned on six days of the week, except when the court is at the castle; then, when required for immediate consumption, butter is made twice every day. The dairy herd numbers twenty head of Jerseys, beauties, all pedigreed cattle; to supplement these, thirty-five head of non-pedigreed Shorthorn cows are kept. These latter are equal in appearance to pure-bred Shorthorns. There is also a herd of pure-bred Shorthorns, sixty head in number, which are a comely lot. Some individuals of this herd are in progress of preparation for the coming summer shows, and later on will be exhibited at the Fat Stock Show, in Smithfield. The treatment of the cows in milk is as follows: They are put on pasture about the 15th of April for midday relaxation until the middle of May, when they range both day and night. Then, according to the state of the weather, they are brought in about the 15th of September, or the first week in October. They are allowed daily exercise at pasture until the second or third week in November, when they are finally taken up for the winter.

The dairy cows during the non-pasturing months of the year are fed three times during every twenty-four hours. The allowance is liberal, and consists of cut feed; the component parts are chopped hay, chopped roots (the yellow mangel is preferred) wheat bran, crushed oats, and about two pounds of corn meal subdivided through the three feedings. The cows which are in full flow of milk have daily in their feed an extra allowance of two pounds of linseed cake. A large lump of rock salt is kept in every manger; two cows stand in a twin stall and share a water tank between them; Extreme care is taken to keep the cow stables at an even temperature and fully ventilated; thus animal heat is economized and the capacity of the cow is increased as a milk-producing machine.

In March last one hundred head of young stock-calves and yearlings were in the stables of the Shaw Farm. This farm proper consists of eight hundred acres of pasture land, and one hundred and fifty acres of arable. There are in all on the Shaw Farm twenty Clydesdale horses; of these ten are mares from which three to five foals are annually obtained. The system in vogue is to sell the colts and to retain the fillies. The glory of the Shaw Farm is in its pigs; these are super-excellent. In one pen resides a Berkshire boar which is a gem in his family; the creature is dish-faced, of a most attractive countenance, his nose is upward, and absolutely perfect, being button-shaped, with a latent power for rooting equal to a double weed-grubber with a steam attachment; close by his beauteous mate, and also near at hand are to be found many of their youthful progeny. There are some specimens of the large white Yorkshire, as also of the small Windsor Whites. To complete the Shaw Farm a pretty sheet of ornamental water faces an aviary where handsome breeds of poultry are kept.

As the dairy herds could not consume all the pasturage of the grass lands, a flock of four hundred head of cross-bred ewes is maintained. The animals are half-bred Cheviots and Leicesters. The fleece is medium and the mutton excellent. These ewes are bred to Hampshire Downs, the lambs thus produced are sold fat toward the end of the season as "hoggets." In August the ewes are annually sold off, being then in good flesh and ripe for slaughter. In the same month also lean four-year-old ewes are purchased in the south of Scotland, which are shipped by rail direct to Windsor. A stringent reason for this change in the flocks is that the rich lowland soil causes the feet to become delicate, and more hardy flocks are needed to take the place of those fattened and sold off. Last March the lambs on the Shaw Farm which had one and all been dropped at pasture were in a most thrifty condition, being then about thirty years old.

An annex to the Shaw Farm is the Flemish Farm, two miles from the central range of its buildings. It consists of one hundred and ninety acres arable, and two hundred acres pasture land. Here the Clydesdale horses are bred and stabled; here also are herds of pure-bred Devon and Hereford cattle. The youngsters of this herd always prove easy of sale, as they are sought after for breeding purposes. The choicest individuals are retained to fill gaps in the parent herds. A herd of Tamworth pigs is kept on the Flemish Farm, the beauties of which rival but never eclipse their neighbors, the Berkshires at the Shaw Farm.

The combined resources of these two farms supply all the food needed for their herds and flocks, save what oil-cake is used; the soil being over-rich to grow oats. A wheat crop is preferred, the produce is sold, and oats bought.

What Do You Keep Poultry For?

Some farmers ignore profits in keeping hens. They want simply enough to supply their table with eggs and broilers. Others aim for profit as well. Market poultry is the foundation of the poultry business, as pork is the foundation of fancy breeds of hogs. Like any other business, it requires knowledge and experience. One who is without experience should try a small number, learn to care for them and study the wants and characteristics of each fowl. He will then be able to increase his flock. Pleasure is a secondary aim if the aim is to make a business of poultry keeping. Every farmer should keep a few fowls; they can be cared for with little attention, when a large flock always means work to the owner.

Richard Carmichael, of Queen Anne County, Maryland, has kept a diary for thirty years, and it shows that it has invariably rained on the 26th of July during that time.

HOW TO BUILD CULVERTS.

Some Practical Hints Given on This Important Work.

Every farmer in the country knows how to build a culvert. It would be a disgrace to a farmer's boy ten years old if he could not tell just how one ought to be made, even though he lacked strength to put in the work. There is the stone culvert—that is best of all when the stone can be had. Then the log culvert, with poles and planks on top. There is the culvert of heavy planks, strong, and supposed to be durable.

The farmers of the Easten States have been building culverts for at least one hundred years. They ought to know what they are built for, as well as how to build them. But they don't. Practice speaks louder than words. While they say that a culvert is to carry water under a road, their practice says that it is only a little bridge over a hole. Is proof wanted? Every heavy rain-storm washes out innumerable culverts—perhaps the very same that was washed out in the same way two or three years ago. And they will be washed out again in a little while. And why? Because, when they are built, no end of pains are taken with the top and sides, while the bed on which the water is to flow is left just as the man with the hoe or shovel dressed it. It's dry weather. Nobody thinks it worth while to prepare a way for the water which will come in the spring or fall. When a smart rain comes and fills the ditch, a little stream struggles along the broad, flat bottom of the culvert. It is spread out in a wide sheet. The leaves it has brought along with it are piled up here and there, and it barely trickles through. A heavier rain brings in some stones. The rough, flat water-way gets more and more obstructed each time the water finds its way under the road. "Of course," says the farmer, "culverts get stopped up." Yes, and then they are washed out bodily, and the farmer has to pay for building them over again. And perhaps he has to wait a couple of weeks until the road surveyor gets ready to see to matters. When there is a stream flowing all the time, who ever saw any one take pains to have a clear bed for it under the road? There is always space ample for the flow, but so obstructed with rocks or stones that, when the flood comes, the stream begins at once to attack the sides. Perhaps it rises and flows over the roadway. Figures 1 to 4 represent primitive forms of culverts of different degrees of defectiveness, but all of them may be found in country roads. Fig. 1 belongs to the "corduroy" period of road-making. A rough log is thrown down of either side of the hasty excavation, and short string-pieces are placed across them, to support the planks. Fig 2 is of similar construction, save that planks are set up edgewise in place of the logs. Fig. 3 is bad and expensive Fig. 4 is still more costly, and equally bad in construction at the fundamental point.

Now, a lesson from the engineers who build sewers will cost nothing, and it may save some culverts next year. It is a lesson that pertains to the bottom, and not to the top of the culvert, the water-way and not the roadway. The engineers have found that when they want a stream of variable size to keep its course clean, the best form of pipe or conduit for it is an egg-shaped section, with the small end down, as shown in Fig. 5. The tiles rest upon planks properly graded. Much drain-pipe is made of this form. Then, again, when they want water to flow anywhere, they give their pipe a down-grade in that direction. The culvert bottom is usually not only flat, but level. Water does not run fast when on level ground. When there is a brook to take care of, make its bed smooth in the culvert, and on the up-stream side remove any loose, round, or other stones which high water might lodge under the road-bed.

If it is too costly to buy an oval pipe for the culvert, make a plank bottom. But do not lay the planks flat. It will take a broad and heavy stream to carry a single bunch of leaves through under such conditions. Make the bottom a blunt V-shape, as in Fig. 6. Then a small stream will have a small channel. A slight obstruction will back up the water so fast as to remove it at once. In a word, what the engineers call the "scour" will be great.—W. E. Partridge.

A MONSTER CATTY.

An Indiana Colored Man Has an Exciting Tussle.

Bill Anderson, a negro, fished around considerably recently on the falls near the Indian shore. He was using a cast-net, and about 5 o'clock, in attempting to make a haul, met with such resistance that he fancied it had caught on a rock. But it had not. The trouble was a monster Mississippi River catfish, which had become entangled in the meshes. When Bill saw the size of the fish he was dazed, and only recovered from his astonishment in time to prevent the bewhiskered giant of Southern rivers from escaping.

He made several mighty plunges that broke many of the meshes, and a hole big enough for freedom was almost finished before the captor decided to adopt desperate measures. The negro plunged into the swift water, grabbed the net, and tried to pull it ashore. The fish was too strong for him, though, and instead of negro catching "cat," "cat" was catching negro. To add to the interest of the situation, both had become entangled in the net. After an exciting struggle, in which Anderson was carried several yards down stream to the edge of a deep and dangerous eddy, where he would have been surely drowned, he struck a big rock, and fortunately was able to brace himself against it.

Then he reached over and caught hold of one of the big fins, which was a foot long, and drawing his knife from his hatband, where he always carried it, stabbed the fish in the head until it expired. Anderson was wet to the armpits, but he was also the proudest man in town. He sold the fish for $12.75 to a Twelfth-street dealer, who shipped it to Elizabethtown, where it will lend distinction to a colored picnic to-day. The fish weighed 175 pounds, and was six feet two inches in length.—Louisville Commercial

Relieved of His Onerous Duties.

Dr. R. W. Bell, Past Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, returned on Saturday night from the Grand Lodge which closed in Toronto on Friday night. Dr. Bell has closed a year of successful, laborious and faithful services as head of the Oddfellows in Ontario and his relief from his high office will also relieve him from all the labors and time-taking services which were attached to it. He will, therefore, in future be enabled to give his whole and undivided time and attention to his practice and patients.

Shun Evil Companions.

Joseph Gray and Robert Jameson, two youths who were in company with the two young men who were fined at the Police Court on Saturday for singing an indecent song on George-st., appeared before the Magistrate this morning and were charged with having been disorderly on the street. Acting Constable Moore, who arrested the other two young men, swore that Gray and Jameson were singing the chorus with their companions. The prisoners denied this and said they were helping their comrades home. The Magistrate fined them five dollars each or ten days in gaol.

A SATURDAY EVENING ROW.

Four Men Taken by the Police—Three of Them Charged with Offences and Two Fined.

Ten dollars in cash was added to the town exchequer at a session of the Police Court held by Magistrate Dumble between eight and nine o'clock on Saturday night. The court was held in order to dispose of prisoners who were arrested about six o'clock and who did not wish to remain behind the bars over Sunday unless the Magistrate so decided their fate.

The arrests arose out of two rows which occurred at or near the Kenneally House. The first row attracted Constable Stewart to the scene. Upon entering the sitting-room, he found two men engaged in a rough-and-tumble, catch-as-catch-can fight. John Montgomery and a Frenchman by the name of Arthur Alcombick were the names of the two pugilists. Constable Stewart jumped into the ring and arrested the two men, when another Frenchman by the name of Wm. Guerin undertook to interfere. The sturdy Constable floored the last mentioned individual for his trouble of interfering, when Chief Roszel and Constable Adams appeared on the scene and relieved him of his two prisoners, one of whom, John Montgomery, however, walked to the station willingly. Constable Stewart then arrested Guerin and took him to the cells. Not many minutes afterwards Acting-Constable Moore arrived on the scene just as another disturbance was beginning on the street. This second row had arisen out of the first one. John Montgomery, a thresher, of Bridgenorth, was one of the principals in the second row and Constable Moore arrested him. A scuffle ensued, but the officer was not to be thwarted and, although his prisoner was a big, powerful fellow, he held to him. Montgomery struck officer Moore in the face a couple of times, but he had met his match and was proceeding slowly on his way to the station, when Constable Stewart returned and the man was locked up without further trouble.

At the Police Court John Montgomery, of town, had no charge laid against him, but, on the other hand he preferred a charge of assault against Alcombick and Guerin. On these charges Guerin was discharged and Alcombick was fined five dollars. John Montgomery, of Bridgenorth, was then charged with disorderly conduct, and he was fined five dollars and costs.

The first quarrel it seems arose over some money matters which Alcombick and Guerin were settling with an old gentleman in the hotel sitting room. John Montgomery thought that the two were trying to get the best of the old gentleman and his interference led to the row.

Scott's buss brought up 28 passengers on the last two trips Saturday night, besides a large amount of freight.

Passengers on the three o'clock trip Saturday were treated to a free concert by Messrs. Bowie and Moloney. Mr. Bowie greatly pleased by singing "Allister McAllister." He was in fine voice. The immitation of the bag pipes was complete.

CRICKET AT LAKEFIELD.

The Peterboroughs Again Defeat the Villagers at the Wickets.

A team of cricketers from town went to Lakefield on Saturday and played a match with the club of that village. The match was decided in favor of Peterborough on the first innings, there not being sufficient time give the Lakefield players their second innings. Peterborough played with only ten men, and they made an excellent score in their second innings, running up 170. The stand made by Stocker and M. Hamilton was especially worthy of mention. Attewell's bowling was a feature of the match. He captured eight wickets for two runs, an extraordinary performance. The score was as follows:—

A Silent Alarm of Fire.

A silent alarm of fire was sent out this morning about eleven o'clock and several members of the brigade responded to the call. Before the general alarm was sounded it was discovered that the fire was a false alarm. A burning smoke stack in the Grand Central hotel was the cause of the alarm.

Stealing Fruit.

This morning between 5 and 6 o'clock a number of boys were seen by a neighbor stealing apples from the trees in the Barnardo Home garden. The practice of robbing fruit trees is a bad one and the next visitors of this class who favor the Home with a visit may find it a dear way of procuring fruit. The police have been notified and are on the look out.

A Labor of Love.

The Montreal Star of Saturday last says:—"Edith G. Welsh and her little friend Gertie Kendry, of Peterborough, held a bazaar of useful articles, most of their own work, at 87 Mackay-st., and the proceeds, $21.25, were handed to Miss Livingstone, Lady Superintendent, Montreal General Hospital, to be used for a little sick boy in that institution."

Blocking the Sidewalk.

For some hours Thursday part of the sidewalk on George-st., between Simcoe and Charlotte, was blocked by the extensive stock of ale being brought in by W. J. Morrow. Several complaints were made but Mr. Morrow after securing a large staff had it removed. The stock consists principally of the celebrated White Label, and the number of cars that have come to his address these few months past speaks volumes for the ale. d27w31

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Mr. Wm. Wallbrook gave an impressive address at the young men's meeting on Saturday evening, being followed by the General Secretary on camp work. The attendance and interest was good.

Mr. Albert Hamilton led the consecration meeting on Sabbath morning. It was good to be there.

At 4.15 an open air service was held in Central Park. Short gospel talks were given by Messrs. Hamilton, Smart, Hannah and the General Secretary, and were listened to by the large concourse present with much attention, and we trust profit. The singing was under the direction of Mr. John Miller and the band and was lively, and all present assisted and enjoyed the same.

At the gospel and song service last evening Mr. Wm. Wallbrook gave a thoughtful and practical address, and the large numbe present enjoyed the service very much. We praise God for what He is doing for us and with us.

BOBCAYGEON BUDGET.

A Fire at the Stables of Mr. John Ritchie—The Successful Pupils.

Correspondence of the Review.

FIRE.—On Saturday morning, about 8 o'clock, the fire bell was heard once more pealing its unwelcome notes of alarm, and our villagers were soon seen wending their way at a lively pace towards the Esturion's wharf. It was soon discovered that Mr. John Ritchie's stables and hen house were on fire, and as the building was a frame it was impossible to save it, but by the prompt action of the firemen the devouring element was confined to the one set of buildings, in consequence of which no other buildings were at all damaged. Mr. Ritchie is insured, but not to the value of the loss.

SHE HOLDS THE ICE CREAM RECORD.

Six New Jersey Girls in an Interesting Contest in Pennsgrove.

The Sunday school of the Trinity M. E. Church of South Camden had a picnic at Pennsgrove, N. J., the other day, and Miss Annie Tice was the heroine of the day. On the printed programme was announced an "Ice Cream Race, by Five Ladies, the first one done gets another plate." It was 3 o'clock when the 500 picknickers were summoned to witness the race at swallowing congealed cream under the shade of the elms on the brink of the Delaware. They gathered at once. In the centre of the grove was placed a long table.

Six young ladies presented themselves as candidates for the prize. At the word from Benjamin Mellor, who acted as judge, they ranged themselves on either side of the table, while the crowd gathered around and fought for vantage ground. Judge Mellor solemnly asked the contestants if they wished to eat sitting or standing. With one voice they replied: "Sitting." They were seated. Judge Mellor called out in a firm voice: Seven plates of cream." A dusky waiter scurried away to fill the order. Then John D. Courter was chosen as timer. A moment later the crowd parted and the sable Ganymede appears with seven heaping dishes of vanilla ice cream.

Six of them are placed before the maidens, and the seventh—the prize—is placed in the centre of the table. There is a death-like silence. For the glory of South Camden and the Trinity M. E. Church everyone hopes to see the ice-cream-eating record broken.

Timer Courter looks at his stop watch and nods to Judge Mellor. The latter gives the word "Go." Six uplifted spoons descend together on six pyramids of glistening cream. Then comes a babel of voices from the friends of the contestants. There are cries of encouragement for all and various predictions of victory. In a few seconds, however, it is patent that Annie Tice is forging ahead. At the descent of the spoon the apex of the pyramid disappeared. The second spoonful was sufficient to mark her as a sure winner.

Then the crowd became excited, and one man yelled. "Go on Annie, our money's on you." Another voice shouted, "I'm backing you, Annie; go in to win!" Encouraging shouts went up from all sides, and Annie certainly stood by her friends. The movement of her spoon were like the scintillating revolutions of a sabre. But they did not last long. There were but seven movements and the contest was over.

Timekeeper Courter shouted "Time!" and his watch showed that Miss Tice had won the race in 7 movements and 45 seconds. Bella Long came in a good second in 1¼ minute, and Miss Hammond finished last in 1½ minutes. As Miss Tice finished, a voice shouted: "I knew I was safe in backing you." "Yes," retorted Miss Tice, with a pretty pout, "you knew I had a good mouth for ice cream." After winning the prize Miss Tice was unable to eat it and gave it to her brother.—N. Y. Sun.

A great number of European starlings and chaffinches have recently been set at liberty in Central Park, New York, for the purpose of introducing their species into the United States. Both birds are fine singers and are a decided acquisition. The starlings are as large as black birds and have a plumage of unusual beauty.

The Dirge of the Seaside Belle.

There are no young men at the beaches this summer.—Current Item.

The Atlantic Ocean is a tolerable ocean,
Perhaps a desirable sea;
And the waves on the beach are good enough waves—
But not good enough waves for me.
And the sky above is a pretty fair sky,
The surf, there are many to laud;
But there's no man in sight from morning to night
And I think the whole thing is a fraud,
For the waves as they curl,
With their swish and their swirl,
Without a young man are a bore to a girl.

The Atlantic Ocean is a popular ocean
With people fond of the sea,
But the sea without men is a dull kind of thing,
And its no kind of ocean for me,
They rave o'er the glow of the sunset sea
And the moon with its lane of light;
But in the broad day or beneath the moon's ray
There's never a mandu sight,
And the sun and shade
And the moon, I'm afraid
Without a young man are a bore to a maid.

The Atlantic Ocean is a good enough ocean,
A pretty well advertised sea;
But without the young man all that sort of thing,
It's no kind of ocean for me.
I know that the poets have sung of the sea,
As soft silly poets will sing:
But a bare stretch of beach and no man within reach
Is a very lugubrious thing,
In the summer hotel,
And the surf and the swell,
Without a young man are a bore to a belle.

Mayor Wilson of Seaforth Injured.

SEAFORTH, Aug. 16.—Thursday afternoon Mayor Wilson after exercising a horse entered for the races on Aug. 26, was leaving the driving park and got out of the rig to open the gate when the horse, in trying to get through, jammed Mr. Wilson between the buggy and the gate post, fracturing two ribs on the left side. Medical assistance was soon obtained and yesterday His Worship was able to leave for Toronto, where he had urgent business.

Better Than a String.

"I want something," said a farmer as he entered a Michigan avenue drug store the other day.

"Well, what is it?"

"I didn't tie a string around my finger, but I guess I can get around to it all the same. What's the name of the lake below us?"

"Lake Erie."

"Exactly. What's the name of the bay which the boats run to?"

"Put-in-Bay."

"Correct. Now, then, who put in there?"

"Perry."

"Straight as a string. I want ten cent's worth of perygoric. My old woman said I'd be sure to forget it, but here's the proof that I didn't."

CANADIAN RAILWAYS.

They Observe the United States Inter-state Commerce Law.

The following letter from Sir Joseph Hickson, General Manager of the Grand Trunk, appears in the Globe:—

SIR,—In a leading article of the Globe of the 12th upon the relations of Canada to the United States, the following passages occur:—

"In the enforcement of this law (the Inter-state Commercial law), however, our neighbors have struck a snag, from the fact that the two great Canadian railways which operate on American soil are at liberty, being alien corporations with their main lines situated in a foreign country, to ignore its provisions.

"The latter (the American railways) complain to Congress that it is unfair to subject them to a statute designed for the better protection of the public interests, when their Canadian rivals are not required to obey it."

It is true that the American companies, with whom the Canadian companies compete for traffic, have complained as stated; but it is a fact which has been repeatedly pointed out that their complaint is not well founded, and it is no secret that their desire is to prevent the Canadian companies carrying United States traffic at all, and not that they should be subject in their traffic arrangements to the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act of the United States Congress.

The Canadian companies, from the date when the Interstate Commerce Act came into effect, have recognized that it was incumbent upon them in dealing with traffic to or from the States and Canada, or traffic passing through Canada from one State to another of the United States, to observe the terms and conditions of the Interstate Commerce Act.

A moment's reflection will show that with respect to traffic going from Canada to the States, it must be delivered by some company which, in respect of that traffic, is subject to the terms of the Interstate Commerce Act; and the commissioners appointed under the act can therefore deal with such company in the United States, if the Canadian company should assume to ignore the terms of the act. In like manner traffic coming from the States must originate on some railway which is subject to the conditions of the Interstate Commerce Act and can be dealt with.

Then, with regard to traffic passing through Canada from one State to another, the Act provides that, if there is a departure from its terms, the property handled can be treated, when it reaches the United States frontier from Canada, as an importation, and subjected to duties.

It is obviously true that the terms of the Interstate Commerce Act, do not apply the local business of Canada; but there is no difference in the position of Canada in this matter and the State of New York, for instance. The terms of the Interstate Commerce Act do not apply to the business of the New York Central Railroad, done within the State of New York, any more than they apply to the business of the Canadian Companies, done within the boundaries of Canada.

After a somewhat extensive experience, I am prepared to assert that the Canadian companies do not derive from the operation of the Interstate Commerce Act any advantage whatever over the United States competitors.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

master," spoke one of the new-comers, "we have brought the prisoners—two of them—as you commanded."

"It is well," said Valdimir. "Let them be brought before us!"

As the two men are brought where the light can strike upon their faces we see the two guides who conducted Raric Novel to his place of confinement. One of them was he who met Raric in the street, and the other is the one who guided him into the old bath-house with the lantern in his hand. They shuddered fearfully as they gazed around upon the dismal scene, and their looks plainly showed that they knew not why they had been brought thither.

"I, the Totma!" pronounced Valdimir.

The first of the prisoners—he who had met Raric in the street—started as he heard that name, and tried to speak.

"Are you the man?" asked the monk, looking into his face.

"Yes, holy father," the wretch tremblingly replied.

"Then stand you here in front of me."

The fellow was moved up in front of the table, and surprise and fear seemed to be struggling for the mastery over him, for he recognized now the strange monk about whom he had probably heard so much.

"Look Totma," said Valdimir, lowly and slowly, "you have been seen much in the company of a humpbacked priest named Savotano. You know such a priest, do you not?"

The man hesitated. He gazed furtively about him and trembled more than before.

"Answer me!"

"Yes, sir, I know him."

"And now, sir, be sure that you answer me directly and truly. Do you know a young gun-maker, named Raric Novel?"

The fellow started with a perceptible quake as this question was asked, but he seemed to be prepared for it, for his answer was direct.

"No, sir; I do not."

"Ha—beware! Think well before you speak."

"If you mean the man who fought the duel with the Count Damonoff, then I have heard of him; but I do not know that I ever saw him."

"Then you are sure of this?"

"Of course I am."

"Frederick Viska!"

The second prisoner now came forward. He was a few years younger than his companion, though somewhat larger and evidently more bold. Totma was conducted out of the apartment as Viska came forward.

"You, too, have been in the company of this priest, Savotano, have you not?" the monk asked.

"I know him," the fellow replied, with a slight touch of defiance in his tone. He had not surely looked about him to see those strange contrivances by which he was surrounded, or he would not have ventured such a tone.

"And you have been some in his company?"

"Perhaps so."

"Very well. And now do you not also know Ruric Novel?"

"I have seen him, too, sir."

"And now—can you tell me where he is at this present time?"

"No," was the answer short and quick.

"Beware! If you have any regard for your own welfare you will answer me truly. Where is Ruric Novel?"

"I tell you I know nothing about him—nothing at all."

"And of this you are sure?"

"Who are you that assume to question me thus? I know you not."

Viska spoke this in a tone of just indignation, probably thinking that that turn might serve him.

"We will let you into the secret by and by," the monk returned, with a peculiar shake of the head. "But I will ask you once more: Do you know where Novel is?"

"No!"

"You need not speak quite so loud. We hear easily."

"Then don't ask me impertinent questions," retorted the prisoner.

Valdimir started half-way up, and his fists were clenched; but the quick flush passed from his face, and he sat back again.

"Look ye," he said, as soon as he was sure his anger would not manifest itself, "Were I not sure that you know what I ask I would not question you thus. And now, once more, I ask you: Will you give me some clue to the whereabouts of Ruric Novel?"

"I'll answer you once more. I know nothing about him. You must not think that this dark place, and you men all dressed in black, can fright me into telling a lie as it might a child."

At this point Valdimir turned to one of his men—one of those who helped bring the prisoners in—and said:

"You know this to be the man?"

"Yes, my master."

"And you have seen him in private confab with the humpbacked priest?"

"I have."

"And the other things you told me are true?"

"They are, master."

"Then let down those interpreters."

At this command two of the attendants moved to the back side of the room, where they unhooked a stout chain from the wall, and as they allowed it to slide through their hands a curious piece of machinery descended directly in front of the table. It consisted of a stout bar of iron, which was suspended midway, upon the chain, and there rested parallel with the ceiling. Upon each end of this bar were straps of iron, armed with springs and screws. At a motion from the monk the prisoner was led back till he stood directly beneath the bar, and then his arms were seized and raised up. He struggled some and cursed more, but he was soon overcome. The iron bands were passed around his wrists, and connected with these were two small cups which were slipped over the thumbs. After these had been firmly secured the chain was tightened, and the fellow's hands were raised far above his head. There were two results produced by tightening the chain; It not only tended to draw the thumbs back upon the wrists but it also twisted the thumb, the two cups being armed with file-like teeth within, and closing tightly upon the flesh.

"Now, sir, spoke Valdimir, lowly and deeply, "I am going to ask these questions again, and you will do well to answer them truly. Will you tell me where Ruric Novel is?"

"I don't know."

"Will you tell me where you saw him last?"

"I haven't seen him since he fought the duel with Damonoff."

"Beware!"

"I have not."

"Mark me; I have had you watched, and I know that you have seen Novel within these three days. This I know, so I have no hesitation in the course I am about to pursue. Once more—where is Ruric Novel?"

TRANSPORTATION IN BOND.

The Privilege to Be Abrogated by the United States Government.

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—The Dominion Cartridge Company has received from an American transportation company a copy of a letter from the Treasury Department at Washington recommending them not to accept for shipment to Mexico a consignment of cartridges, as at the time the goods will be ready the bonding privileges which Canada enjoys will be abrogated.

The letter was laid before Mr. Bowell, Minister of Customs, who will bring it before a Cabinet meeting to be called at once.

Last spring the cartridge company sent a consignment of 1,000,000 cartridges to Mexico and as a result received an order for 10,600,000 more from the Mexican Government, but before filling it they thought it prudent to take advice of the American road, with the result stated.

This is the first definite statement that has been made of the intentions of the American Government and created considerable surprise here.

The Minister of Customs passed through here to-day, but he thought it not advisable to make any statement of the case, as it would interfere with any action they might take in the matter.

The same company has a large New York order for which they will probably erect a factory in the United States in opposition to the American Cartridge Trust, in which Mr. Blaine and other American politicians are interested.

Dunster's Debts.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 16.—A meeting of the creditors of George Dunster, lumber merchant and contractor, was held yesterday in the office of Messrs. Knight & Brown. The creditors were about all represented, and included lumbermen from Toronto, Barrie, Woodham, Walkerton, Victoria Harbor, Paris and Hamilton. The liabilities were shown to be about $10,000, while the assets will scarcely reach $3,000. This statement of Dunster's affairs, considering that he has only been in business two years, startled the meeting. The creditors were perplexed and endeavored to obtain from Dunster a more satisfactory statement of his affairs, but without success. It will be remembered that Dunster claimed he was robbed a short time ago of $3900, but the creditors yesterday seemed inclined to doubt this. Last January Dunster gave the bank a statement showing a surplus of $17,000, but the books showed yesterday a shortage of over $7000. The meeting voted to continue Mr. J. H. Brown as assignee and the estate will be wound up. Messrs. D. Peacock, Woodstock, and R. Gillis of Gillis Bros., Paris, were appointed inspectors.

Port Arthur's Progress.

PORT ARTHUR, Aug. 16.—Arrangements have been made for the necessary funds to complete the Port Arthur, Duluth & Western Railway to Gunflint Lake, on the Minnesota boundary. Twenty miles are now ironed and 20 more ready for the rails, which have been ordered from England. It is now a certainty that it will be completed by spring and next season will witness some active mining on both sides of Gunflint Lake.

Port Arthur is going to have an electric railway to connect it and the suburbs of East Fort William. The elevators and round houses here are only distant half a mile from its boundary.

Judge Fourgee Sued.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Charles H. Blair has brought suit against Publisher and Author Albion W. Fourgee and his wife, Emma K., to recover $25,000 on a note executed by Fourgee, March 24, 1884, for the benefit of the Our Continent Publishing Company. The note is endorsed by Fourgee's wife. Judge Beach to-day granted an order making the company a party defendant.

Charley Ellis' Libel Suits.

STRATFORD, Aug. 16.—Proceedings have been taken by Charles Ellis, editor of The Stratford Times, against H. T. Butler, editor of The Stratford Sun, for criminal libel, and against Mrs. A. Matheson, proprietor, and A. Matheson, editor of The Beacon, for libel. The reason of the action being brought against The Beacon is owing to The Sun being printed on The Beacon press.

Cold in Their Tents.

MONTREAL, Aug. 16.—Reports from outlying districts state that there was a slight frost last night, but no material damage is reported as having been done.

The Royal Templars of Temperance found it uncomfortably cold in their tents and betook themselves to the city hotels. The night was the coldest since last May according to the observatory reports.

An Extraordinary Operation.

Probably the most extraordinary surgical operation on record is reported from Paris. Dr. Lannelongue, an eminent specialist in the Children's Hospital, has just succeeded in the effort to give intelligence to a poor little idiot. The child, a little girl 4 years old, had a deformed head, only about one-third the size of an ordinary little one of her age. She never smiled, never took notice of anything, and she could neither walk nor stand. The doctor became convinced that the condition of the little creature was due to the abnormal narrowness of the head, which hindered the natural growth of the brain. About the middle of May last he made a long and narrow incision in the centre of the skull and cut a portion out of the left side of it without injuring the dura mater. The result of this operation was something astounding. In less than a month the child began to walk. Now she smiles, interests herself in everything around her, and plays with a doll. A tolerably bright little child has taken the place of the idiot.

BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.

NO PROGRESS MADE IN THE CENTRAL TROUBLE.

Engineers, Firemen and Other Railway Employes Ready to Go Out at a Moment's Notice—The Correspondence Between Powderly and Webb.

BUFFALO, Aug. 18.—The strike situation continues about the same. The passenger traffic remains practically uninterrupted, while the freight situation is serious. Every siding has its complement of freight cars; mainly loaded with perishable freight, and even the Lake Shore tracks, to a distance of 20 miles out, are packed with standing and abandoned trains. Between East Buffalo and Idlewood a very long "dressed beef" train lies motionless, its contents, to say the least, not improved by the delay. An attempt will be made to move some of the freight at East Buffalo to-day.

"We have got men enough, though they are green," said one of the yardmen this morning, "and will put them to work if the strikers will let them do anything. We have got to move the stuff in the East Buffalo yards. They are full now, and whatever else comes has got to lie outside till we can make room for it in the yards."

There was a general air of expectancy among the men interested in the strike this morning. Everybody was waiting to hear the result of Mr. Powderly's conference with Third Vice-President Webb. If it is adverse to the labor cause, the movement of Central freight by "scab" labor may be interfered with. At least the railroad officials fear interference.

The executive committee of the Knights of Labor has finished its deliberations and presented the result of its consideration of the strike on the New York Central Railroad to Third Vice-President Webb.

A QUIET DAY IN ALBANY.

Men Hired to Take the Strikers' Places Refuse to Work.

ALBANY, Aug. 18.—There has been no trouble at the Van Woert street crossing. A number of freight trains have passed through the city, but the police say not one of them was stoned nor a shot fired. Charles B. Dillon, a Central Railroad passenger conductor, while proceeding down to go out on a train this morning was set upon by three of the striking yardmen from West Albany and severely beaten. Warrants are out for them.

Forty-five railroad men were brought from Chicago to New York on Saturday to work in the Central yards there. When they arrived at New York they were huddled into a car and brought to Albany to go to work in the West Albany yards, but not before all but 24 of them had slipped away from the men who had them in charge. One of the men who is now at East Albany said they were hired by a saloon keeper in Chicago, who told them the strike had ended and they were wanted to take the places of men who would not go back. On learning the true condition of affairs they refused to go to work.

THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Powderly's Letter to Webb and the Vice-President's Reply.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The correspondence between Grand Master Workman Powderly and Vice-President Webb was given to the press to-night.

Powderly wrote, complaining that old and faithful employes of the company had been summarily discharged, because they were members of and active in the K. of L.

Mr. Webb replied, denying that this was the case, alleging the dismissal of these men had been recommended by the various superintendents, and stating that the company could not submit the question of the discharge of any of its employes to arbitration.

Freight Traffic Tied Up.

ALBANY, Aug. 18.—The situation of the strike in this vicinity appears to be the same as on the night it was inaugurated. The strikers claim they intended no interruption of the passenger service on the Central, merely being satisfied in tying up the road's freight traffic. This program so far seems to have been successfully carried out.

POOR GUATEMALA.

Bad Condition of Affairs—Everybody Must Fight or Be Shot.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 18.—A letter from Guatemala says a proclamation has been issued to the effect that all men who are not ready for military duty will be shot. Nearly all the men who first went to the front have been killed in battles with the Salvadorans. If Ezeta marches to the city, the letter says, he will probably sack the town. The Americans are safe, for they receive protection at the legation. Every servant, even those on the coffee plantations, has been drafted into the war and there are not enough left to supply food. Provisions bring enormous prices. Business is at a standstill and the city is under martial law. About 25,000 soldiers have already left the city for the frontier. Men are attracted to public entertainments and are then seized by the police and drafted into the army.

A West Virginia Cyclone.

WHEELING, W.Va., Aug. 18.—A cyclone struck the town of Belmont in the centre of the new Eureka oil field yesterday and did several thousand dollars damage. Oil derricks and buildings were levelled in all directions. No lives were lost.

DOMINION NEWS NOTES.

A BREAK IN THE NEW ANTICOSTI CABLE.

One of the Workmen Caught, Drawn Under and Badly Injured—A Toronto Mother Abducts Her Child from a Hamilton Orphan Asylum.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—The following was received to-day from F. N. Gisborne, superintendent of the government telegraph service:

GASPE, Aug. 18.—Joseph Macdonald, our most experienced cable man, was caught by the cable while paying out from the tank and was drawn under. His chest was crushed and one leg badly broken. Although the brake was instantly applied the cable parted 1½ miles from Anticosti. Macdonald was landed here. Dr. Smillie, who is attending him, is hopeful of his recovery. The Newfield returned to Anticosti to complete connection.

ABDUCTION AT HAMILTON.

A Toronto Woman's Ruse to Gain Possession of Her Child.

HAMILTON, Aug. 18.—This afternoon a woman went to the orphan asylum in Park-street and asked to see a child. It was taken into a room to her, and while the nun's back was turned the woman put the child out of the window, jumped out after it and ran away with it. Her name is supposed to be Mrs. Jeffrey, and she is supposed to be the mother of the child, which is 5 years old. Mrs. Jeffrey lives in Toronto.

Seneca Swayzie was charged at the Police Court this forenoon with kicking his wife's head to a pulp and striking her with a hammer. The woman, who turned out to be a Mrs Cane and not the prisoner's wife, declared that she received her injuries by falling from a ladder, but Seneca was sent to the Central Prison for three months.

There is a fair prospect that Percy Kerr, who was so badly injured by the breaking of a steamboat fender at Windsor, will recover.

A caveat was filed with the county clerk to-day by Osler, Teetzel, Harrison & McBrayne, asking that no probate be issued in respect of a will of the late Judge Miles O'Reilly, made in March last, and alleging that the said will was not executed by him or was executed by him under the pressure of undue influence or while he was of unsound mind.

THE ANGLICAN CONFERENCE.

Proposed Basis of Consolidation of the Church in British North America.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 18.—The conference of Anglican delegates from the provincial synods and dioceses of the Dominion adopted a report recommending the consolidation of the Church of England in British North America. This is the proposed basis of confederation:

There shall be a general synod consisting of the bishops of the Church of England in the Dominion of Canada and the diocese of Newfoundland, and of the delegates chosen from the clergy and the laity. Delegates shall be chosen by the several diocesan synods according to such rules as they may adopt, or in a diocese which has no synodical organization they may be appointed by the bishop. The synod shall meet for the first time in Toronto on the second Wednesday in September, 1893, and shall be convened by the metropolitan senior bishop by consecration.

The synod shall consist of two houses, bishops constituting the upper and the clergy and laity together the lower house. The houses shall sit separately, excepting at any time by unanimous consent of both houses. The president of the general synod, who shall be styled the primate, shall be elected by the house of bishops from among the metropolitans. The primate shall hold office for life, or so long as he is bishop of any diocese, but may resign at any time. The general synod shall have power to deal with all matters affecting any of the interests and the well-being of the church within its jurisdiction, provided that no canons or resolutions of a coercive character, or including penalties or disabilities, shall be operative in any ecclesiastical province or independent diocese until accepted by the synod of such province or diocese

The following or such like objects may be suggested as properly coming within the jurisdiction of the general synod: (1) Matters of doctrine, worship and discipline; (2) all agencies employed in the carrying on of church work; (3) missionary and educational work of the church; (4) adjustment of relations between dioceses in respect to widows and orphans of clergy and superannuation funds; (5) regulations of the transference of clergy from one diocese to another; (6) education and training of candidates for holy orders; (7) constitution and powers of an appellate tribunal; (8) erection, division or rearrangement of the provinces. But the erection, division or rearrangement of dioceses and the appointment and consecration of bishops within a province shall be dealt with by the synod of that diocese.

COULDN'T ENJOY HIMSELF.

So Barber Zimmerman of Windsor Took the Laudanum Route.

WINDSOR, Aug. 18.—Elijah J. Zimmerman, a barber employed at the Davenport Hotel, committed suicide this morning by taking a 4-ounce dose of laudanum. Dr. Cruickshanks was called but could not save the man's life. He was a single man and has relatives in Springfield, O. On the body was found an insurance policy for $2000 and $71.50 in money. Written on a sheet of paper was the following: "I am tired of life and to enjoy myself seems impossible."

Another Mastodon Found Near Highgate.

RIDGETOWN, Aug. 18.—Another great find has been unearthed in the Mastodon country. The discovery was made by Charles Holman while digging a ditch on the farm of John Wade, Lot 6, concession 7, township of Orford. About 4½ feet below the surface in quicksand he found a tusk larger than that of the mastodon on Mr. Reycraft's place. The tusk is decaying, and has been buried by Mr. Wade to keep it from the action of the air, but a piece which could be got at, and by no means the largest in circumference, was found to stretch the tape line a foot and a half around it. The largest bone as yet unearthed is a shoulder blade. It measures 28x30 inches. The bones as yet found consists of ribs four feet long, scapula, vertebræ, leg bones and tusk found within a radius of three feet. No further explorations have yet been made, but there is scarcely a doubt that all or nearly all of the monstrous skeleton can be got.

A Stranded Shark.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—The body of a shark 20 feet long was found stranded on the beach at Portage near River Du Loup yesterday.

BRAZIL AND UNCLE SAM.

The Wonderful Trade That is to Result From a Visit by the "Fleet."

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—A letter from Rio Janeiro says: Brazilians of all classes are delighted at the delicate attention of the United States Government in sending the "white fleet" here on an unofficial visit, and take it as a sign of sympathy and friendship on the part of the American people. Of this there is not the slightest doubt, and the great riches of Brazilian trade so long monopolized by monarchical nations are ready to be poured into American enterprise if American business men only know how to profit by the experience of other nations in this regard. Goods should be prepared especially to suit Brazilians' wants and tastes and furnished exactly in the mode practised by Brazilian business men. Sample trade will neither be suitable nor accepted. The English, Germans and French tried it, but in vain, and only built up their large and profitable business with this country by first studying the taste and wants of the people and then sending out their goods in bulk, to be offered for sale. American enterprise will be welcomed here and will receive special favors. The Brazilians look upon the lowering of duties on sugars as a favor extended for Brazil, and should the American Government treat other Brazilian products in the same manner the import duties here on kerosene, breadstuffs and other American products will very soon be fairly regulated by the government.

THE TROUBLE ABOUT MONEY.

That Bothers the Rulers of the Argentine Republic.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—A Buenos Ayres special says Senor Lopez, Minister of Finance, has declared that the government will issue no notes based on the security of land. It is intended to cancel the law for the emission of $100,000,000 in hypothecatory notes. Whatever emission may be decided upon, it will be relatively small, and will be supervised by a committee, including leading foreign bankers, who will also supervise the withdrawal of the emission when confidence has been restored. Senor Lopez hopes in four months to see the moral and economical position normal and in a year to have the entire finances on a sound working basis. President Pellegrini confirmed these views. It is reported that the Government is seeking means to compensate the shareholders of the National Bank for the losses incurred by them through the Celman clique and it is trying to place the bank in a sound position without liquidation. Export merchants are not averse to a small duty on exports to help the treasury. The overdue bills of the Cordova bank are said to amount to $11,000,000. Further scandalous revelations are expected.

Cheese Markets.

Buffalo reports: There has been stagnation in cheese here for the past three weeks, and during that period most of the factories have stored or consigned through their products. There was but a limited supply boarded Monday, and of this the only sale was 1600 boxes of Cloverfield at 8c.

Little Fall reports: The cheese market has been unusually active, the home trade showing the most life. There was a little hesitation at first till the positive information was received that the Central road would run the usual cheese train and promised it should promptly reach its destination. Transactions: 12 lots at 7c, 44 lots at 7¼c, 42 lots at 7½c, 12 lots at 7¾c, 11 lots consigned, total 10,965 boxes. There were also 1375 boxes farm dairy cheese sold at 7½c to 8¼c. There were four or five lots sold at 8½c. Sales of 35 packages of creamery butter were made at 19c to 21c and a small number of farm dairy at the same figure.

Utica reports: The market shows an improvement, exhibiting a general advance of ¼c. The tone is uncertain and buyers are inclined to be cautious. The strike on the Central Railroad has interfered considerably with shipments and delayed the arrival of cheese in New York, so that the market has been firmer at that point than otherwise would have been the case. The shrinkage in the production of milk is about ¼. This fact, together with prices, leaves but a small margin for the dairymen: Transactions: 153 lots, 15,849 boxes, ruling price 7½c.

William in Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 18.—When the Emperor of Germany arrived at Narva last evening he was attired in the uniform of the Viborg regiment, and wore the decoration of the Russian Order of St. Andrew. The Czar was in the uniform of the Alexander regiment, and on his breast was the decoration of the German order of the Black Eagle. The Czarewich, Gen. Von Schouvaloff, Russian ambassador to Germany, and a number of other prominent personages accompanied the Czar, and received his majesty at the railway station. After the members of the Czar's and Emperor's suites had been presented to each other the Czar and the Emperor were driven to the Polowtsoff villa, where the Czarina extended a hearty welcome to the imperial guests. A large crowd lined the route from the station and cheered the Czar and Emperor William and Chancellor Von Caprivi.

Killed by a Train.

TORONTO, Aug. 18.—The horribly decomposed body of Oliver S. Ferguson, a bookbinder of Toronto, was found in the high weeds along the Rock Island Railway track, four miles east of Ottawa, Ill., by section hands on Saturday afternoon. Ferguson had been in Ottawa the latter part of the previous week, after which time he was not seen until the body was found. As one of his legs was broken it is surmised that he was struck by a train and killed. The deceased was well known here as a private in the Grenadiers and a member of the Central Fife and Drum Band.

Sons of Scotland Escurt to Guelph.

GUELPH, Aug. 18.—The Toronto Sons of Scotland had their eighth annual excursion to-day to this city. They were met at the depot by representatives of the local St. Andrew's Society and Sons of Scotland. Acting Mayor Howard made a brief and cordial speech of welcome. There were about 200 uniformed men in the procession. The afternoon was devoted to games and contests of various kinds and the excursionists left for home at 7½ this evening.

A Patent Office Clerk's Fate.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—The body of Elmar Dantstail, one of the chief clerks of the patent branch, Agriculture Department, was found in the canal to-day. A small sum of money and marks of violence were found on him. He has been missing since Friday.

An Exodus Threatened.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—Le Canadien appeals to the patriotism of the leaders of the Ottawa and Quebec Governments in order to provide work for the population of the counties below Quebec whose crops are a total failure. Le Canadien ascertains that thousands of families are preparing to leave the country, and unless the projected Matane Railway is pushed ahead in order to provide these families with daily bread an emigration will take place which will be ruinous to the Dominion.

PARLIAMENT PROROGUED

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH READ BY THE LORD CHANCELLOR.

African, Behring Sea and Newfoundland Questions Touched Upon—The Late Duke of Manchester's Will—A Scandal in High Life—General Cable Notes.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Parliament was prorogued to-day. The Queen's Speech was read by the Lord Chancellor. It says that the relations of Her Majesty's government with the foreign powers continue to be pacific. Friendly attention has been called to the inconveniences which might arise from a possible conflict over territorial claims in Africa, therefore the Queen's Government was negotiating with the powers mainly concerned with the purpose of defining the boundaries within which the action of the respective Governments should be confined. The arrangement with Germany closing the most difficult of the questions was complete, and Her Majesty's Ministers laid before Parliament the history of these negotiations which had resulted in the cession of Heligoland to Germany.

The speech then announces arrangements with France whereby the Franco-Algerian territory is separated from that of the Royal Niger Company. The agreement for a British protectorate over Zanzibar and yielding Madagascar under the protection of the French is also explained.

With regard to the Behring Sea complications Her Majesty informs Parliament that she offered to submit them to arbitration for settlement.

The speech states that the case of the Newfoundland and French fisheries dispute is one which is occupying the anxious attention of the Government.

A LONDON SCANDAL CASE.

Story of an English Guardsman and His Wicked Wife.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—An extraordinarily sensational case has just been concluded at the Lewes Assizes, in which a fashionable West End costumer named Pickett sued Capt. Lyon of Goring Hall for payment of £1800 for goods supplied to Mrs. Lyon. The latter was noted as having been one of the most beautiful of the London demi-mondaines. Lyon met her in the Burlington Arcade and after a short intimacy married her. Capt. Lyon is a young Guardsman, son of Major Lyon, formerly a Middlesex magistrate and well-known as having been chiefly instrumental in closing the Argyle Rooms and Evans' Music Hall.

Mrs. Lyon testified that previous to her marriage she had been provided for by Capt. Warner, who gave her $4000 a year. Lyon proved that this intimacy was kept up after his marriage with her but unknown to him. Mrs. Lyon swore that her husband had threatened to make Warner a co-respondent in a suit for divorce unless he disgorged £3000. Lyon denied this and said the truth was his wife wished to keep the marriage from Warner's knowledge and so continue to enjoy the allowance he made her. Though the jury failed to agree, on account of the traditional obstinacy of one of their number, Baron Huddlestone gave judgment in favor of Capt. Lyon, saying the charge against him rested solely on the word of an adventuress.

Mandeville's Creditors Can Whistle.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The will of the late Duke of Manchester, which has just been made public, is a hard-and-fast document. Neither his heir nor his widow is allowed much rope at present. The present duke, who is better known in America as Lord Mandeville, is bequeathed a third share for his life so long as he does not go bankrupt again or seek to alienate or anticipate his share. This protects him against creditors and money-lenders for the term of his natural life. The trustees have immense discretionary powers. Should the trusts of the will fail through any act of the present Duke they have power to carry out the intentions of the testator and still to make the Duke his allowance of a third share. This mode of defeating his son's uncertain behavior is termed a contingent determinable discretionary clause.

The present young Duchess of Manchester, who was Miss Consuela Yznaga, is not mentioned in the late Duke's will, and her son, who is the present Viscount Mandeville, is not referred to by name, but as the possible heir. The dowager Duchess has her share for life only so long as she remains a widow, but in spite of this it is not likely that the lady will forego her marriage with Lord Hartington, which is definitely fixed for next April.

Tributes to Cardinal Newman.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—There were special sermons in all the Catholic Churches yesterday on the late Cardinal Newman. At Hawarden "Lead, Kindly Light" was sung and Mr. Gladstone read the lessons. Cardinal Manning will deliver the funeral oration in the Brompton Oratory Wednesday. The Chronicle says Mgr. Stoner will succeed Cardinal Newman. Rev. Mr. Mesle, an American Episcopalian of Paris, declined to make mention of Cardinal Newman's death, saying he could never forgive Newman's secession.

Blaine's Pitiful Sophistries.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The News says the Behring Sea blue books show the pitiful sophistries to which Mr. Blaine is reduced in trying to justify a high-handed proceeding. "America's claim is repugnant to common sense and only needs to be stated to defeat itself."

Will Russia Start the Ball?

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—People usually well informed believe that an insurrection in Armenia is close at hand, which will be followed in due time by Russian occupation of Erzeroum. The Russian garrisons in Kars, Batoum and other fortified towns have been increased and the army of the Caucasus is in a full state. Russian statesmen seem to be making up their minds that the Armenian question is not one about which the triple alliance will ever concern itself.

Admiral Courbet's Monument.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—A monument to the late Admiral Courbet was unveiled yesterday at Abbeville. M. Ettienne, Under Secretary for the Colonies, in a speech declared that when the nation possessed such sailors and warriors as Courbet it was time for her to emerge from her isolation and make her voice heard and her rights respected everywhere.

Proposed Balloon Trip to the North Pole.

PARIS, Aug. 18.—The French Aeronaut Besancon and the Astronomer Hermite propose to make a balloon expedition to the North Pole, starting from Spitzbergen.

Ottawa Accepts the Howland Offer.

OTTAWA, Aug. 18.—The City Council tonight adopted the agreement with W. H. Howland for an electric street railway.

WELLAND, Aug. 18.—Arthur Hay, who is in jail here on the charge of murdering his wife by pushing her over the Niagara precipice, says she fell over as she was picking blackberries. There are no bushes anywhere near the spot where the woman went down to her death.

A TRIP OVER SIXTEEN LAKES.

Beautiful Scenery—An Abundance of Trout—Huckleberries to no end—Grand Stereoscopic Views.

A party of six, consisting of J. T. Robinson, his two sons Willie and Joe, Master Wesley Wright, W. Hickson, all of Bobcaygeon and H. Fowler, photographer, of Lindsay, packed their boats on Monday, August 4th, and started for a two weeks trip over the northern lakes. The first day we made our way as far as Rosedale and camped on Balsam lake shore for the night. The next day we passed up through Coboconk and Norland, and pitched our tent for the night above Elliott's Falls. The third day we made our way past Minden and portaged over a distance of three miles to Mountain lake. Here we thought we would get some new potatoes as we had heard what excellent potatoes were grown in the county of Haliburton, hence we sent one of the boys to a farmer who lives on the south shore of the lake, and to our amazement he returned with about a hatful (just enough for one meal) of the precious tubers, for which he had paid 25 cents. Of course we thought we had secured something like Scott's "Talisman," and that these very valuable underground stems would keep in life when all other things failed, but alas, after a trial, we found that we had paid about $2.00 per bush. for poor soft potatoes. Thursday we passed on up through Mountain Lake and admired its beautiful scenery, which is certainly picturesque. This lake is surrounded by mountains, which seem to form semicircles which make a very pretty wave-like view when seen from a distance. From this lake we portaged into Twelve Mile Lake, which is about two and a half miles long and is beautifully fringed with evergreens. From this lake we sailed into Little Bushkong, which is almost round in shape and about a mile in diameter; thence we passed through the Narrows into Big Bushkong, which is oval shaped and about six miles long. From this we portaged over half a mile at Buck's slide into Little Oosh-a-Wig-Mog, and paddled along through it into Big Oosh-a-Wig-Mog, which is about seven miles long. From this we passed into Lake Honore, having portaged ten times and CANOED ABOUT 70 MILES.

As this lake was a very pretty one and at the height of land we concluded to pitch our tents and enjoy a few days trout fishing. The first day we succeed in landing two very nice ones, but our second trial was not so successful, as we never got a nibble of anything except lunge, and we hauled in about a dozen, some of which would weigh 5 or 6 lbs., but as we did not care for lunge fishing we started to climb the mountains in quest of huckleberries, which we found in great abundance. We were told that there was fine fishing of speckled trout in the Black river, which runs from the height of land into Muskoka, so on Saturday we secured bait, fixed our fishing tackle in firstclass condition, packed our dinner and started over a distance of 5 or 6 miles, but to our disappointment, when we got there the speckled trout had turned into chub. One of our party told us to "keep believing" and the speckled trout would come all right, and so we did believe that there was nothing but chub to be caught in those waters. On our way home we fell in with five young men from Lindsay who were making their way home from Muskoka where they had been on a canoe trip. They all seemed hale and hearty, only a little tired after making the long portage. They seemed surprised to meet us, and especially at meeting Mr. Fowler, but a chance meeting like this in the wilderness is always welcomed. Mr. Fowler had his lens along with him and took about three dozen stereoscopic views which will no doubt be superb. As the speckled trout fishing proved a failure on Saturday we went in for the salmon on Monday and succeeded in landing six beauties. After this it was almost impossible to keep our friend, Mr. Fowler, from the end of a trout line. In fact he was even fishing in his sleep, but after a day or two he took it quite cool, though he thought it rare sport to be hauling in the "daisies" as he called them. On Wednesday morning we turned our freckled faces towards Bobcaygeon, which we reached on Saturday about two o'clock, all well pleased with trip.

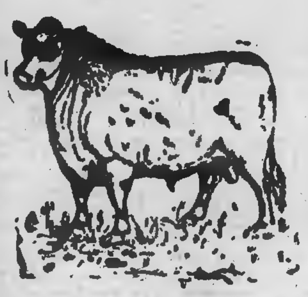
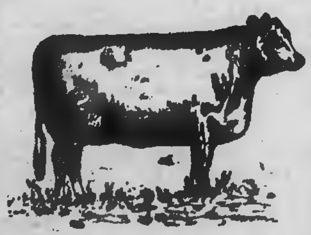
Aberdeen-Angus.

This illustration shows the imported Erica bull Energy of Ballindalloch 7796 (4643), the property of T. W. Harvey, of Turlington, Neb. He was bred by Sir George McPherson Grant, of Ballindalloch, Scotland, and is a correct representative of the breed, possessing size, strength, substance and symmetry in a marked degree. Of all the favorite tribes of the Aberdeen-Angus cattle, the Ericas is one of the most aristocratic families of the present day, and they have proved worthy of the high celebrity they have obtained. They trace through a long line of reliable Angus ancestry; through the indefatigable energy and good management of the founder, this family has been brought into a distinguished position by reason of the long list of show-yard honors, and the group of meritorious bulls now to be found in the herds of Scotland and America. As a family, the Ballindalloch Ericas are distinguished for their stately heads, fineness of bone, short legs, lightness of offal, levelness and superior quality of flesh, well-laid shoulders, gayety of style, and, in a remarkable degree, family resemblance.





Black Cap of Lins, 6814 (15178), in her one year old form, is illustrated in Fig. 2. She is also owned by T. W. Harvey. This family, the Blackbird (Lady Ida), is one of the most highly prized of the day—they are particular favorites in America. Lady Ida was a most remarkable cow, she breeding past her sixteenth year, and never missing a year. The breeding of the sires of this family is remarkably rich and valuable. This family is peculiarly noted as being blocky, of early maturity, and the females are extra good milkers.

Protection Against Some Farm Pests.

An excellent authority advises perseverance in the use of a remedy one selects to rid himself of any variety of pests. This undoubtedly is true in most cases; but if every method chosen were as successful as that employed by a New York gentleman in a crusade against rats, there would be little need of its frequent repetition. Having some knowledge of chemistry, he opened the floor in several places in the upper stories of his house, and set therein vessels containing sulphuric acid, black oxide of manganese and common salt, and afterward closed down the boards. The result was a slow chemical decomposition and recombining of elements, in the progress of which the heavy, stifling gas chlorine was disengaged. This penetrated all the open spaces down to the cellar. A few breaths of the poisonous atmosphere served to convince the rats that danger was brewing. Seizing a portion of whatever plunder was at hand, every rat rushed from the premises, sneezing and weeping copiously from having inhaled the noxious chlorine. It was months before a single one ventured to return. The acrid chlorine also penetrates the room, rendering it nearly untenable for a few days. Powdered potash scattered about the haunts of rats and mice, and rubbed on the edges of their holes, makes their feet sore and often drives them away. It is also a good plan to sprinkle potash on cotton batting and stuff it into holes and crevices which they frequent. Another excellent remedy, that the writer has tested, is to stir strychnine with Indian meal and add either grated cheese or the oil of anise. Sir Humphrey Davy's great destroyer for rats was hog's lard and carbonate of baryta, mixed well together and smeared upon the inside of a skillet, which he placed well out of the reach of any other animals than these mischievous little rodents.

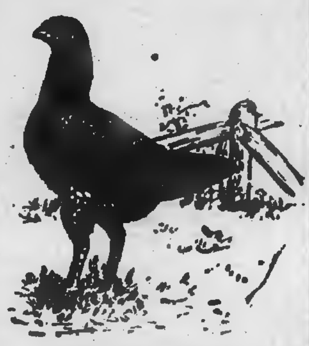
Western farmers have formidable enemies in two varieties of the spermophiles, and in the gopher, which is hardly less abundant. Many a wheat field, promising an abundant yield, has been so ravaged by the ground squirrels as not to be worth the harvesting. The favorite means employed for their destruction are poisons such as strychnine and phosphorus. A drachm of the former is dissolved in a quart of whisky, and the solution poured over dry wheat in such quantity that the surface of the liquid is on a level with the top of the grain. In twelve hours the wheat will have absorbed all the liquor, and a few grains are thrown in front of every squirrel hole. Two kernels are sufficient to kill a squirrel. Not only this, but if a cat breakfasts on the squirrel, it, too, is doomed; and woe betide the vulture or raven that feasts off the cat's carcass or even makes a tid bit of its eyes! The average farmer boy, however, will invariably prefer the "smoking out" process of killing squirrels. It has a barbaric flavor which is eminently suggestive of strategy and unconditional measures. A rag is wet with kerosene, sprinkled with sulphur, set on fire and crowded into the nearest hole, which is then carefully filled in with dirt. Often the smoke issues from numerous surrounding holes. These are immediately covered like the first. Thus dozens of squirrels have been known to be smothered by the burning of a single prepared rag. An ingenious experimenter invented a scoop with a chamber for holding sulphur which can be utilized for blowing poisonous fumes into the holes. A mixture of phosphorus, [illegible], flour, and which is one of the commonest preparations employed to destroy spermophiles and gophers. The latter are regularly set in various parts of the field or orchard.

Rabbits, though far less prolific than gophers, are not less injurious to the garden and orchard. Trunks of trees can be preserved from gnawing by binding strips of cloth, tarred paper, or even newspapers around them as high up as a rabbit can reach. A still easier way to protect an orchard is to daub the trees with grease, scented with some disagreeable odor. Nothing short of a close fence of wire pickets will prevent Master Bunny from making depredations on a garden of cauliflower or pea-vines. In a single night, the fresh green pods on long rows of vines will be all opened and robbed by these neat little workers. Under such circumstances, the barking of a good watch dog will often keep these timid animals at a discreet distance.

Speaking of dogs, one certainly is not justified in classing them as pests, and yet, a dog that will suck eggs, particularly if he be otherwise valuable, is one of the most aggravating of trials. A farmer had a dog which he declared was worth all of a hundred dollars to him for catching gophers and rabbits, but, unfortunately, he showed an equal fondness for new-laid eggs. In fact, he would spring up wildly from the softest bed at the cackle of an overjoyed biddy. This dog was finally cured of his expensive habit by showing him a hot boiled egg before his jaws were forcibly opened and shut upon it. Of course, he howlingly ejected the blistering mass and from that time on would run at the sight of an egg.

Indian Game Fowls.

The Indian Game, of which one is illustrated herewith, is the largest of the game family. The adult cocks weigh from eight to ten pounds, and in exceptional cases even more, and the hens from five and a half to seven and a half pounds; exceptionally heavy hens, in full flesh, sometimes reaching nearly nine pounds. If the weights of adults be placed at nine pounds for cocks, and seven for hens it will not be far from the average of well-bred specimens.



As table fowls the Indian Games are "chief among equals." They have exceptionally broad breasts and are throughout heavily fleshed. Their flesh, too, is of the finest quality. Bred pure or crossed upon other varieties they make the finest dressed poultry. In England, the Indian Game-Dorking cross is a favorite, and the Indian Game Plymouth Rock is also greatly prized.

As layers they are fairly prolific; they will lay nearly as many eggs as the Plymouth Rock, and lay reasonably well in cold weather. The egg is of good size, has a tinted shell, and is excellent for use.

Enemies of the Potato.

One could almost say that man is one of the worst enemies of the potato, if we may judge from the manner in which he sometimes neglects one of his best of vegetable friends. While it requires a warm, rich soil, he gives it a water-soaked clay bed, and when the feeble plants come to the surface no encouragement is given them to struggle against the weeds that threaten to choke out the last spark of life.

Many insects prey upon the narcotic herbage of the potato, the most destructive of which is the Colorado beetle. But with this well under subjection by a fully understood plan of applying London purple or Paris green, there remains now only to develop the methods of overcoming the blights and rots, the worst of which is the so-called wet rot. This is due to the growth of a low form of vegetation closely related to the mildew of the grape. It first appears on the leaves as frosty patches, and from there it grows down the stems, and finally its slender threads reach the tubers, causing them to rot.

From the fact that the leaves are first attacked, and the rot works down the stems to the potatoes, it is evident that when the leaves and stems are dying prematurely the tubers should be dug at once. Let the potatoes dry thoroughly in the field after digging, and store only the sound ones in a dry place with a good circulation of air. Avoid a damp, poorly ventilated room. The vines and all decayed tubers left in the field should be burned.

As preventive measures at planting time it may be suggested that a second crop should not be grown where the previous crop failed from the rot. The seed should be free from the trouble, and therefore only sound potatoes are suitable for planting. Early varieties, planted early, are most apt to escape, for the rot does not get started usually until midsummer. Experience has demonstrated that it is best to hill the potatoes somewhat at the last plowing, as many germs of the disease fall from the leaves and are washed down to the tubers with the rains.—American Agriculturist.

HYDROPHOBIA, FALSE AND REAL.

The Distinguishing Differences Plain and Conclusive.

It may be laid down in the very beginning of our consideration of the subject that the victim of false hydrophobia can only have those symptoms of which he has knowledge. Unfortunately the real disease has received so much notice from newspapers and other popular publications that a tolerably correct knowledge of its phenomena has been acquired by the laity. Hence, we find that the picture ordinarily presented by the unconscious simulator is, at least to cursory observation, not unlike the real affection. There are, however, great differences which the educated physician will not fail to detect, and which will enable him to do what has never been yet done with real hydrophobia—cure the patient.

Hydrophobia never originates, in the human subject at least, except by inoculation from a rabid animal, and death always occurs in four or five days after the development of the disease. A case of so-called hydrophobia came under my notice, in which it was stated that the patient had been bitten some three months previous by a dog undoubtedly hydrophobic. I inquired as to what became of the dog, and was informed that he was still living, having recovered. It was not necessary to examine any further into the particulars of the case, for if the dog had really been the subject of hydrophobia, he would have been dead very shortly after biting my patient.

Again it often happens that a person easily affected by suggestions has what he conceives to be the symptoms of hydrophobia developed very soon after having been bitten by a rabid animal, whereas the real disease rarely supervenes until after a month has elapsed from the time of inoculation. It is true, there are cases on record in which the period of incubation was less than that, but they are exceedingly rare. In my own cases the time has varied from twenty-five days to four months and a half. Cases in which the disease is said to have supervened many years after an alleged inoculation ought to be received with doubt. The interval probably never exceeds two years or less than ten days.—Dr. Hammond in North American Review.

The Two Names Mixed.

In the paragraph in last evening's issue regarding the row at the Kenneally house on Saturday evening, the names of the two John Montgomerys, who were mixed up in the affair, unfortunately got in each others places. It was John Montgomery, blacksmith, of town, whom Acting-Constable Moore arrested after a scuffle and who was subsequently fined at the Police Court, and not John Montgomery, thresher, of Bridgenorth. The latter went to the Police Station himself and had no charge laid against him, but on the other hand laid the charges against the two Frenchmen.

THE A.C.A.

The Annual Central Meet on Long Island New York.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—According to promise I will try and give you a short sketch of what is going on here. Of course you know we did not have the best luck in getting here on time. We are making up for what we lost and the manager of the REVIEW does not know what he lost when he missed this trip. The camp is just immense. It is one continuous time of enjoyment from morning until night and from night until morning, bathing in lovely warm water, sailing around in canoes of all kinds, and sail boats and yachts. There are steam yachts and any kind of craft you choose from a schooner down. We are enjoying a separate mess and by all accounts we have the advantage. The Vesper boat and canoe club gave a camp fire on Thursday evening. They did it up as they know how. They are a fine lot of fellows. Paul Butler was there, quite as usual, and if he is not large in stature he knows how to do large camp fires and make people enjoy themselves. The camp in general is much larger than ever before. In fact I think it is getting too large. In general people do not enjoy themselves in such large numbers as well as they do when in smaller camps. We are having our share of enjoyment, and it does one good to meet all the old faces once more. There is general regret that Col. Harry Rogers and Col. James are not here. Col. Harry filled the position of Commodore and general manager as no other man can. Wilken is here, genial as ever, and is a man that would be missed at a meet. I could fill up two or three sheets with the names of familiar faces that we all know. The managers have done everything they can to make the meet a success, and they have succeeded. As I said, the manager of the REVIEW has missed one event in his life that he could have looked back to without regret. I cannot do the meet justice and must give up. But I will say that I would like to see the old familiar face of former A.C.A meets once more, and from what I am enjoying at this meet I intend if possible to do so again. There was a ladies' race got up yesterday. It was for double paddles, tandem. Four ladies started. Miss Alice was bow paddler in one of the canoes, and, of course, Canada won the first event of the meet, or at least Canada came in first. The lady in the stern was an American. Of course we gave three and a tiger for Canada. I hope it is a good omen for the rest of the meet.

Yours,

W. ENGLISH.

THE RACES.

JESSUP'S NECK, Aug. 16.—The weather was beautiful to-day when the races commenced, but a dead calm prevailed. The paddling events were brought off.

There were five starters in the paddling unlimited, half mile straightway. It was a splendid race, and J. Hilliard Carnegie, of Coboconk, won by about one and a half lengths, H. R. Tilley, Toronto, 2nd, and J. W. Cartwright, Puritans, 3rd. The tandem paddling, 1½ miles straightaway, had nine starters. McKendrick brothers took the lead at the start and were never headed. They won by four lengths. The Ubiques were second and the Red Dragons third.

FIFTEEN MILLS THE RATE

THE ESTIMATES FOR THE YEAR PASSED AND THE RATE FIXED.

An Increase in the School Demand and Some of the Departments—Councillor Davidson's Budget Speech—The Increase in the School Demand Explained—Councillor Moore Complains that the Board is too Willing to Increase Salaries—The Allegation Denied—A Civic Holiday on Labor Day—Annexation of Ashburnham Again Brought up and a Committee Appointed to Meet the Village Council—Other Business.

There was just a bare quorum present when Mayor Stevenson took the chair at the special meeting of the Town Council held last evening. The principal business for which the meeting was called was the passing of the estimates for the year. This was done and the rate of taxation fixed at 15 mills. General business was taken up and it was after ten o'clock before an adjournment took place. Mayor Stevenson presided and the ward representatives present were Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Dawson, Moore, Langford, Kelly and Kendry.

COMMUNICATIONS AND PETITIONS.

After Town Clerk Macdonald had read the minutes of the last meeting the following communications were presented:—

THE BUDGET SPEECH.

Councillor DAVIDSON appended a few remarks to the statement. He said that the entire Council would be sorry that the rate this year exceeded that of any former year, it being higher than it had been for fifteen years past. This Council, Councillor Davidson said, could take no claim for the higher rate whatever. The increase was made up mostly from the increased demand of the Public schools and Collegiate Institute, which increase alone amounted to one mill. This increase the Board could explain and if they got value for the money expended on the schools he did not suppose any person would grumble at the increase. A few items made up the remaining difference. There had been a slight increase of five hundred dollars in the fire department which was made up principally by the loss of hose at the Wm. Hamilton fire which had necessitated a large expenditure for new hose. Councillor Davidson said he thought it would not be amiss to take action now and see if they could not have Peterborough classed in "Class A." When the deputation was at Brockville recently they inspected the fire hall, and the fire department there was no better than ours, except that they had six paid men. Brockville was in "Class A." We had three or four paid men here and with an addition of two men we could easily be raised to "Class A." Another item which was larger than former years was the interest account, which amounted to $1100. This increase was principally made up on the town buildings. The debentures for these had not been brought officially to Mr. Pearce's knowledge, and no provision had been made by them, but the Council had made provision for the interest and sinking fund. The law account was larger than former years, made up by the costs of the Croft vs. Peterborough suit. The losses were greater than in any other year, amounting to $1,200, which was unusually large. This had to be paid for charity, etc. They had to build a powder magazine which had cost $760. There had been a decrease in the revenue of about $1,800. While this was financially a loss yet it was a moral advantage, for the falling off in the police court revenue spoke well for the morals of the town. The Commissioners demand was the same as before. Councillor Davidson said he had had a conversation with the Secretary of the Town Trust and the Treasurer and from what they had told him Peterborough was in a most enviable position, for they would be able to assume all their debentures without asking for one dollar from the outside public. In closing he said the Nicholls Hospital was $800 less than last year. This demand he said would probably be the last which would be made for that institution, as in future he believed it would be self-sustaining or nearly so. He then moved the first reading of the by-law fixing the rate for the year at 15 mills.

The Council then went into Committee of the Whole to give the by-law its readings. The date for the adding of the five per cent. for uncollected taxes was fixed as in former years on Dec. 5th. Councillor Dawson wanted the time extended to December 14th before the 5 per cent. was added, but the old time was adhered to.

THE SCHOOL INCREASE.

While in Committee Councillor KENDRY and Mayor STEVENSON made a short statement regarding the increase in the school demands. Both these gentlemen pointed out that the increase had been made by necessary improvements and additions made to the school accommodation and by the improvement of and additions to the teaching staff. Mayor Stevenson also went over the estimates, repeating what Councillor Davidson had said, and regretting the increase in the rate. He referred to the effect of the increase in taxation on the landlord, who he held should pay the taxes in all cases, which would be more satisfactory to the town and to the landlord.

Councillor MOORE laid the burden of the increase of the rate on the shoulders of the School Board, whom he complained were increasing salaries from year to year and quarter to quarter. This was something the Board could control and they should remember that when they are making these increases in salaries. The last jump was from twelve to fifteen hundred dollars for a principal in the Collegiate Institute.

Mayor STEVENSON said not a salary had been increased during the past year, but additional teachers and a janitor had to be engaged for the North Ward school. As regarded the increase in the principal's salary, he said the principal before Mr. Long received as much as the new one.

Councillor KENDRY endorsed what the Mayor said, stating that no increase had been made in the salaries, but the increase in the demand was due to the exceptional expense of improvements and necessary additions to the staff. He claimed there had been no unnecessary expenditure.

The by-law was given its three readings, passed and numbered.

LABOR DAY A HOLIDAY.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the prayer of the petition of the Trades and Labor Council asking that September 1st, labor day, be proclaimed a civic holiday, be granted and ask that the Mayor proclaim the holiday as requested.—Carried.

CHARITY, CRIBBING AND CLOCK.

Councillor KENDRY moved, seconded by Councillor LANGFORD,—That the balance of Mrs. J. Gross' taxes be remitted.—Carried.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor CAHILL,—That the Street and Bridge Committee be authorized to let the contract for the building of the cribbing on the Little Lake and to be completed as high as high water mark and loaded sufficiently, the balance to be completed next season.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—That the Property Committee be authorized to make arrangements with the caretaker of the town clock to have the same removed to the new town building.—Carried.

ANNEXATION AGAIN.

Councillor MOORE brought in a motion regarding the annexation of the village across the Otonabee. He said he had been spoken to on the question and was told that the village was anxious for annexation. He moved the following motion:—"Resolved, that it having been represented to members of this Council that the Village of Ashburnham is willing to be united with and become part of this town that Councillors Davidson, E. H. D. Hall, the Mayor and the mover be a committee to ascertain if the Council of Ashburnham is ready to take the necessary steps for the union and report to this Council for action on our part.

Mayor STEVENSON said he thought it was a desirable step. He said if the Council took this step they need not take any more.

Councillor LANGFORD seconded the motion, which was carried.

A NEW WHARF.

Councillor LANGFORD said he had been told by Mr. R. B. Rogers that he had received money from the Government to build a new wharf in the south end of the town and wanted Water-st. opened at the lower end. He therefore moved, seconded by Councillor Kendry.—That Water-st. be opened from the C. P. R. road to Wolf-st.

Councillor CAHILL wanted Water-st. opened from Sherbrooke-st.

Finally the motion was carried, it being pointed out that this work would cost almost nothing.

Councillor CAHILL gave notice of the following motion:—That Water-st. be opened from Sherbrooke to Wolfe-st.

The Council then adjourned.

Newnham Notes.

Among the numerous visitors at Newnham, Haliburton, may be noted:—Mr. Hoig, Detroit; Mr. Mathiew, Paris, France; Miss Seagraw, Mr. and Mrs. Mussen, Toronto; Mrs. and Miss Martes, Mr. W. Stewart, Port Hope; Messrs. Pringle Bros., Cobourg; Mr E M Dennistoun, Mrs. Dennistoun and family, Peterborough; Miss Kirkpatrick, Peterborough; Mr. W. Trayes, Port Hope.

Mr. Irwin, of Peterborough, is kindly giving Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and their guests another picnic to be held a few miles from Drag Lake.

On Saturday evening there were prizes awarded in Newnham pavilion to all the different ladies and gentlemen who distinguished themselves by swimming, rowing, racing, etc. The best recitation was given by Mr. W. Trayes, and the tennis tournament prize was won by Mr. Mathiew. The prize was a very pretty landscape, painted by Miss M. Dennistoun and presented by Miss Jessie Dennistoun.

The "Merchant of Venice" was well played last week, also several readings from Hamlet.

A negro minstrel show and concert will be given in Newnham pavilion next Tuesday, and the second fancy ball of the season will take place next Wednesday.

It is the opinion of many visitors that there is not another place like Newnham for varieties of amusement and recreation. The many fine drives and good roads round Haliburton, render the riding parties numerous and successful.

Mr. George Mussen, our amateur photographer, is giving great satisfaction to the Newnham guests and friends by his skilful groups taken on the ground; groups from 6 to 12 people have all turned out beautifully, and each one is well pleased and many thanks are given to Mr. Mussen for kindly offering his services.

Blocking the Sidewalk.

For some hours Thursday part of the sidewalk on George-st., between Simcoe and Charlotte, was blocked by the extensive stock of ale being brought in by W. J. Morrow. Several complaints were made but Mr. Morrow after securing a large staff had it removed. The stock consists principally of the celebrated White Label, and the number of cars that have come to his address these few months past speaks volumes for the ale. d27w31

Ashburnham Notes.

Mr. H. Calcutt has commenced an addition to his brewery for the manufacture of lager beer, which he will have in running order for the next season.

Craig & Co. have commenced building a mammoth ice house on the old Ludgate property on the edge of the Little Lake. They will fill this by the use of a small steam engine. A platform will be run from the house out into the lake, and as soon as ice is cut will be hoisted up to the top storey. This will save a large expense in filling the house. Craig & Co. expect to ship ice to the States as well as supplying the town.

Brevities.

—There was an entire absence of business at the Police Court this morning.

—The Ashburnham Council did not meet last evening. The next meeting will be held next Monday night.

—The East Toronto Cricketers are playing in Campbellford to-day and will be here to-morrow.

—The regatta at Cobourg yesterday was very successful. Mr. R. M. Roy was there with his camera and secured some very fine views.

Fire in the Presbyterian Church—Building Improvements.

Correspondence of the Review.

FIRE.—On Friday evening, just as choir practice was over in the Presbyterian church, the front chandelier fell and the oil ignited, setting fire to the floor, the front seat and the screen in front of choir seat. Mr. McIntyre, the janitor, and a few others put out the fire, although at first it looked as though the church was doomed. Damages about $75.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Bryce and Leckes have no less than three houses in Keene to fit up. Mr. P. Elmhirst sr., intends to brick his house and move in, giving up the farm.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY ULYANES COBB, JR.

The man hesitated now; but his answer was still the same. He would not tell.

Valdimir made a motion to the two men who stood by the wall, and they gave a pull upon the chain.

"Oh—God!" gasped the prisoner, as the painful twist and wrench came upon his thumbs.

"Will you answer?"

"How can I? How can I?"

"By speaking what you know."

"I know nothing."

Another signal was made to the men at the chain, and they pulled again. Another groan from the prisoner, but no other response.

Another signal—and another pull.

"Mercy!" shrieked the poor wretch, quivering with pain.

"Will you answer?"

"I don't know."

"Then we must try again."

"No, no,—oh, God, no more!"

"But you must answer."

"I don't know."

"Then you must have forgotten, and such treacherous memories need starting up."

As Valdimir thus spoke he waved his hand again.

"Oh! God have mercy! Save me! Save me!

Save yourself."

The wretch was in torment now without ceasing. Nearly the whole of his weight bore upon his wrists and thumbs, and the latter were drawn over almost to the wrist. But he would not answer. He had a deeper fear than this. He feared to break the horrid oaths by which he was to the scheming priest.

One more pull upon the chain, and the man's feet were clear of the floor. His whole weight now bore upon his thumbs, and he groaned in the agony of torture. He bore it a few moments, but his coward soul could bear no more.

"Oh, God! Down! down! Let me down!"

"But answer. Where is Ruric Nevel?"

"I—I—don't—"

"Hold, thou false-hearted villain!" shouted Valdimir, in a voice of thunder. "This is the last of this torture; but when we take you from here we can put you into a state compared with which the pain you now experience is real joy! Each particular limb shall be wrenched all out of shape, and your very eyes shall start out like—"

"Down! down! Oh, great God, down!"

"Where is Ruric Nevel?"

"I'll tell you—I'll tell if you spare me!"

"Tell me first!"

There was a moment more of hesitation—one single moment—and then the miserable wretch gave up.

"He's in the old bath-house."

"Ha! Where?"

"In the old bath near the river—on the Tula pass—in one of the vaults!"

"Very well. Let him down."

The chain was slacked up, and Frederic Vlaka was once more upon his feet. He trembled yet, for there was pain in his arms.

"Now carry him out," ordered Valdimir, "and bring the other one in."

In a few moments more Lasko Totma was before the strange tribunal. He trembled fearfully, for he had been where he could hear his companion's groans without hearing what he said.

"Lasko Totma," spoke the monk, in a low, deep tone, "we have given you time for thought, and mayhap you have your memory brightened by this time. Now, where is Ruric Nevel?"

"I don't know."

"Ah—you still forget, eh?"

"I never knew."

"A most strange forgetfulness, I must confess. Let the interpreters be adjusted!"

"Oh—mercy! Don't murder me!"

But no notice was taken of his cries. The straps and conical cups were adjusted, and the chain drawn tight. At the first turn of the self-acting screw the fellow shrieked. It was not so much with present pain as with the fear of what was to come. The very presage of the place, so dark and dismal, had more effect upon his mind than it had upon his companion.

At a second pull of the chain he groaned and begged for mercy. He had heard of this dark place, and he fancied that men who came there seldom went away alive.

"Hark ye, base wretch," the monk said, "If you do not tell me where the young gunmaker is I'll have you torn limb from limb! Another pull, there!"

As the wrench came again the villain fairly shouted with pain.

"Oh, let me go! Let me go! I'll tell all!"

"Then tell. You leave not this place alive until you have told!"

"He is—oh, God! He is—in the old bath!"

"Where?"

"The duke's bath—on the Pass of Tula!"

"Whereabouts there?"

"In the lowest, farthest vault. Oh, spare!"

Valdimir waved his hand, and the quaking wretch was freed from his torture.

"Now, conduct them both to the dungeons, and lock them up. They must not run at large for the present. Let them be secure."

"No, no," cried Vlaka, who had been brought back. "You were to let me go if I told you."

"Not free, sir," said Valdimir.

"But you have no right to hold me thus. I am nearly dead with pain now where you have torn my hands in pieces. By the—"

"Silence, dog! My authority here is my power. My right is my might. I have you, and I will keep you. Were I to let you go I might not have the power to catch you again, as legal officers could. Lead them off, and then we'll turn our attention to the Duke's Bath!"

CHAPTER XV.

Ruric Nevel could keep no account of time. Darkness, and darkness only, dwelt with him in his prison house—darkness so utter that the only effect of opening the eyes was the nervous reality of the motion. In fact, 'twas lighter with the eyes closed than with them opened, for when tightly closed there were peculiar fantastic shapes floating in the imagination, and even this was a relief; and then there was a sort of kaleidoscopic succession of colors when the lids were tightly pressed, that seemed grateful to the nerves, and gave variety to the mind. But when the eyes were open only a penetrable blackness was present, within which there were no shapes—no forms—save the one form of utter chaos.

Ruric felt sure he had been there four days, and at times it appeared longer than that. Food and drink had been brought to him thrice, and he was now without both. His strength had not yet left him, though there were pains in his limbs, and a chilling sensation about the heart. He had broken the rope from his arms on the first day of his confinement; and he had hoped to overcome the man who brought him food and drink, and thus make his escape; but no human being had yet come in to him. His food had been passed in through a small wicket.

Losses Caused by Fire.

MONTREAL, Aug. 18.—Pierre Cadoret's grocery store in Ontario-street was completely destroyed by fire this morning. Loss $12,000.

LINDSAY, Aug. 18.—Fire in the lumber yard of Kilaby & Kennedy yesterday afternoon did $1200 damage, fully insured in the Queen's.

QUEBEC, Aug. 18.—News has been received from [illegible] County [illegible], stating that a Roman Catholic church [illegible] was completely destroyed by fire this morning, caused by a lamp exploding. Nothing was saved. Loss about $40,000, about $9000 insurance.

WYOMING, Aug. 18.—The residence of Thomas Mead, [illegible] agent, was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. The fire is supposed to have started by the explosion of a lamp which was kept burning all night. Mr. Mead received [illegible] injuries in jumping to the ground. He was forced to leave his pocketbook containing $600 behind. It was found afterwards [illegible] the safe but the contents were a total loss.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—About 10 o'clock this morning fire started on the lower floor of the apartment house No. 98 and 100 East 32nd-street and Nos. 415 and 477 Fourth-avenue. The flames shot up through the air shaft with great suddenness, and when the alarm of fire was given the occupants of the building took flight without trying to save their property. Several persons were overcome by smoke and carried out in an unconscious condition. The building was gutted.

Robbed in Broad Daylight.

ST. JOSEPH, MO., Aug. 18.—George Hadden, a live stock dealer of Terkio, Kan., came here yesterday with a carload of hogs and went to a restaurant, where he engaged two negroes, John Debal and John Fowler, to help him unload the stock. In paying his bill at the restaurant he displayed a large roll of money. Being unfamiliar with the city he was easily led in the wrong direction by the negroes on the pretence of looking for a street car. When opposite South Park Hadden grew suspicious and refused to go further, whereupon one of the negroes knocked him down, and they took from his pocket $400 and his way bills and escaped. Fowler was captured but Debal is still at large. Fowler had $165 tied in a knot in his undershirt. Debal had the balance of the money and the way bills. The affair occurred in the heart of the city at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Was the Wrong Man Hanged?

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Much interest has been excited here by the developments in the case of the murder of the man Babbington, a gamekeeper in the employ of Lord Tollemache, and for which a poacher named Blagg was hanged on the ground that his boots fitted into certain footprints made by the assassin. As a man in New Orleans has now confessed that he is the murderer and borrowed the boots worn by Blagg, a reporter called on the latter's widow with regard to the circumstances. Mrs. Blagg declares that she distinctly remembers a man named James Jones coming to the house on the night of the murder, borrowing her husband's boots and leaving his own clogs in their place. This would seem to indicate that there is some foundation for the story that comes from across the Atlantic. Should the facts be still further authenticated they will be laid before the Home Secretary. He will be asked to pension the widow. She now receives aid from the parish.

The Choral Festival at Vienna.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—The first concert of the choral festival yesterday was attended by 20,000 persons. All joined in singing "Das Deutsches Lied" and "Die Wacht am Rhein." A commers followed at which many speeches were made. The mayor emphasized the community of Austrians and Germans. Two hundred thousand persons entered the gardens of the Festhalle yesterday, where there was music, chorus singing and dancing. The behavior of the crowd was admirable. Special fetes were held today in honor of the Emperor's birthday. Archduke Charles Louis, on behalf of the Emperor, and all the ministers attended the concert yesterday. The Emperor telegraphed his thanks to the vocalists.

Found in Detroit River.

WINDSOR, Aug. 18.—Yesterday Chief Baines and Officer Nash found the remains of a man apparently about 40 years of age floating in the river near the Michigan Central Depot. He was dressed in a dark colored suit of clothes, with green shirt. In his pocket were found his citizenship papers, taken out at Oswego, N.Y., and from them it was ascertained his name was Herman Conrad. The body was taken to an undertaking establishment. It is probable that the drowned man was a sailor.

Natural Gas Booms Kingsville.

WINDSOR, Aug. 16.—Since the Kingsville Gas Company struck gas they have received numerous letters from manufacturers making enquiries as to what inducements Kingsville will give in the way of free gas, building sites, etc. One company offers to establish a smelting works, with a weekly pay-list of $1500, if sufficient inducements are held out, and another company will start a glass works with a pay roll of $1000 per week if gas can be had.

A Sorrowful Case.

Deacon Jones—"You have met with a sad bereavement since I saw you last."

Widow Brown—"Yes; he was the cunningest thing you ever saw. You should have heard the little darling bark when he sat up for a bone. He was—Oh, you referred to my husband! Yes, John died two weeks ago. I thought you meant Fido. You can't begin to know, deacon, how I miss him."—Boston Transcript.

A VICTORY FOR BLAINE.

Proposed Sugar Reciprocity Amendment to the McKinley Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Senator Edmunds (Rep., Vt.) to-day offered the following amendment to the tariff bill, which was referred to the Committee on Finance:

"That whenever the President of the United States shall be satisfied that a sugar-producing country, whence sugar is exported into the United States, has abolished its duties or taxes on the importation of the principal agricultural products of the United States, he may by proclamation diminish or wholly remit the duties imposed by law on sugar or any grade of sugar produced in and exported directly from any such country into the United States, so long as such products of the United States are admitted free of duty or tax into such country and no longer."

Mr. Edmunds also gave notice of another amendment which he intended to propose to the tariff bill authorizing the President of the United States, whenever he shall be satisfied that unjust discriminations are made by or under the authority of any foreign country against the importation of any product of the United States, to make proclamation excluding products of that country from importation into the United States. He said this amendment was identical in all respects with one of the sections of the "Meat bill," which had passed the Senate two or three times almost unanimously but had never got any further than the Senate.

TRANSPORTATION IN BOND.

No Change Contemplated in the Present Arrangement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Regarding the alleged notification to the Montreal Cartridge Company not to ship a consignment of cartridges for Mexico, Acting Secretary of the Treasury Spaulding said this afternoon he was not aware any change is contemplated in the present policy of the department.

To Rectify Turpentine.

As it is difficult to obtain nice, clear turpentine for microscopical purposes, I want to give other workers the benefit of my experience in rectifying the ordinary fluid. I proceed as follows:

Take one pint of the common turpentine and mix in a quart bottle with four fluid ounces of 98 per cent alcohol. Agitate well, and let stand until the two fluids separate. Decant the turpentine (which will form the lower layer) from the alcohol, and mix it with one pint of clear water. Agitate thoroughly, and let stand until these two fluids separate, then from the water decant the turpentine (which this time will form the upper layer), and, finally, mix with the turpentine about one ounce of powdered starch, and filter through paper.

By pursuing the foregoing plan any one may secure a pure, limpid, and brilliant turpentine. The alcohol used in rectifying it need not be wasted, as it will do to burn, to clean slides, or for other purposes. I usually make a large quantity and recover the alcohol by distillation.—The Microscope.

THE WORK OF THE WIND.

DISASTROUS CYCLONE IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Wilkesbarre in Ruins—Hundreds of Buildings Wrecked and Many Lives Lost—Other Towns in the Keystone State Suffer—The Wires All Down.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 19.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon the most terrible cyclone that was ever experienced in this locality struck this city. It came up the river. From what point it originated is not now known. The suddenness of its coming was one of its most awful features. The heavens were as black as night, the wind blew with most frightful velocity, whole rows of trees were blown down. Following this hundreds of houses were unroofed, partially blown over or completely demolished and, worse than all, the visitation of death was sent upon a number of people. How many were killed is not known at this time. Large districts in several sections of the city are in absolute ruin and the women and children are in the streets crying and wringing their hands in absolute dismay. The damage will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Passenger trains and locomotives at the depot were blown over and every wire in the city, electric light, telephone and telegraph, is down. The devastation is to be compared with nothing in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Everybody is rejoicing that no fires have as yet followed, for the streets are impassable with trees and fallen buildings and the engines could not be drawn through them.

The total death loss so far as is ascertained is 12. Four men are known to have been killed in the Hazard wire rope works. A house in Scott-street occupied by miners who had just returned from work fell in and three of the inmates were killed. The huge stack of the Kytle planing mill fell on a man and two horses, and all were killed. A little colored girl was killed by a falling building in South Main-street. Two men suffered death by the falling of a portion of Stegmair's brewery and a third incurred the same fate through the almost complete demolition of S. L. Brown's handsome brick business block in East Market-street. There are undoubtedly 15 or 16 others killed.

Reports are coming constantly to that effect. It is impossible to give names or particulars. Many poor people have suffered heavy losses and it will be months before all the damage can be repaired. One hundred tin roofers have been telegraphed for, and building mechanics of all kinds can find employment here for weeks to come, as it is already known that fully 200 buildings have been blown down or otherwise damaged.

Many of the structures were large and of great value. In addition to the large buildings hundreds of citizens have suffered losses running from $500 to $5000. The Murray shaft fan house was blown down and the fan stopped. There are 27 men in the mine, but it is hoped they can be got out safely.

Reports come from Sugar Notch, a mining town three miles from here, that the destruction of property is terrible, and that 15 persons were killed.

At Parsons and Millbrook, four miles from here, coal breakers in all directions have been more or less damaged and the number of killed will reach 10.

Mayor Sutton to-night issued a proclamation calling on members of the 9th Regiment to assemble at the armory early to-morrow morning to aid in the police supervision of the city. He also requested all workingmen to report to him for cleaning up the debris.

The wires are working so badly that it is impossible to get anything off. The estimated loss at midnight is $500,000, although it may reach higher figures. The suffering is great. A terrible rainstorm set in shortly after the cyclone and drenched the exposed property in the track of the cyclone. At midnight the rain was pouring down in torrents.

IT MAY BE MURDER.

John McDonald of London Beaten by Toughs—An Artery Severed.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 19.—Last evening John McDonald of 960 William-street in company with two friends while walking homeward in Piccadilly-street were met by a crowd of six men, who assaulted them. McDonald received a severe blow on the nose, which severed one of the arteries besides breaking his nose. His companions carried him home and a doctor was summoned.

The injured man bled profusely all night. The doctor plugged the nostril, but twice the stoppage gave way and the immense flow of blood weakened him so that at 8 this afternoon there was scarcely any hope of his recovery. If a third plugging is found necessary the man's death will certainly occur.

McDonald has made an ante-mortem statement. He knows who the men were and to-morrow it is expected that they will be under arrest.

The Peninsular Saengerfest.

WATERLOO, Aug. 19.—The town is rapidly filling up with strangers for the 10th Peninsular Saengerfest. The main street is gorgeously decorated, as is also the rink in which all the concerts will take place. It is expected that fully 15,000 people will be present.

SCALDED TO DEATH.

FROM 15 TO 20 PEOPLE KILLED ON THE OLD COLONY ROAD.

Twelve Dead Bodies Taken from the Wreck—Three More Succumb to their Injuries—Dozens Badly Hurt—List of the Maimed and Burned Victims.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—A serious accident happened to the Vineyard express on the Old Colony road at Quincy at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The train jumped the track 100 feet on the other side of President's Bridge. The first passenger coach fell on the engine, the latter having toppled over. The engine set fire to the train. The fireman was instantly killed and the engineer fatally injured. As far as learned 8 passengers were killed and about 20 injured. The latter were for the greater part injured by escaping steam, having been frightfully scalded. The Quincy fire department was called to the scene as quickly as possible, and shortly afterwards the fire was extinguished. The dead and injured were removed from the scene, the latter being taken into private houses and to the Quincy Hospital. The scene of the accident is near the scene of the frightful Woolaston disaster of a few years ago. The train was due in Boston at 11 p.m., and consisted of five or six parlor and passenger cars, usually fully loaded. It generally runs at the rate of 40 miles an hour at this point.

William Fennelly, a house builder of Boston, was a passenger in the fourth car of the train. It was in this car, he says, that most of the casualties occurred. The train was running through Quincy at the rate of 30 miles an hour. When near President's Bridge there was a rumbling sound followed by an awful crash. The three forward cars lurched and left the track. The fourth kept the rails and swept right along upon the broken locomotive, which lay in its way, forcing itself right on top of it. The shock was terrific, and it seemed as if the car drove up 20 feet in the air. When the car descended on the engine it whirled suddenly over, the occupants being thrown violently about.

The boiling steam came into the car in dense clouds from the locomotive beneath, scalding and almost suffocating the people penned inside. Upon the descent of the car a hole was torn in the bottom of it, through which many of the 40 or 50 people were taken out. Mr. Fennelly thinks six or seven persons were killed and about 25 lightly injured.

William Fennelly said: "Thirty seconds after the car struck I would have given $1000 for a drink of any kind from whisky to water. I thought I should suffocate. The death-dealing steam entered the car in dense clouds from the locomotive boiler. It filled every crevice and nook and almost suffocated those whom it did not burn to death. It caused all the deaths. In my opinion serious injuries would have been the worst to report but for those deathly fumes. Men and women were gasping about me as they tried to shriek and shout, and as they became weaker and weaker as the steam filled their lungs, I could see them push their hands or feet through the broken windows, trying in vain to get a breath of fresh air. It seemed as though 8 or 10 died right there before me. There were 40 or 50 passengers in the car, and all seemed wounded more or less, 20 at least seriously. I saw them crying for help and I did what I could. I saw the flesh burned from men and women as the cursed steam enveloped them, and I heard them groaning in their death struggles as the scalding fumes became hotter and denser. The sights I saw and the sounds I heard will never go from memory.

"Finally I reached the hole in the bottom of the car and in some way crawled out. All about was wreck and ruin. The passengers from the other cars had then hardly gathered themselves together and were not to be seen. But over on a fence bordering the railway track were 10 or 20 men, and it seemed to me 100, watching the ruin and powerless from fright and astonishment. I screamed, shouted and swore at them but they would not move, and the more I cursed the more helpless they became. These men—I hate to call them that—saw me rise from my perilous position, saw me tear at boards of the car bottom with all my might, saw me pull helpless women from the interior of the steaming cars, saw me caught beneath a falling bar of iron and unable to extricate myself to aid others and they refused to aid me. I do not know whether they were fools or cowards, but they received a sound and thorough cursing from me. I got out of the car as best I could and did what I was able to do in assisting others.

The following twelve dead bodies were taken from the wreck:

MRS. ORCUTT ALLEN, Philadelphia.

MRS. MARY E. FENNELLY, aged 70, Louisville, Ky.

F. J. JOHNSON, Montpelier, Vt.

JOHN RYAN, South Boston, fireman of train.

Four women.

Two men.

Two children, one a boy of 14.

The following died during the afternoon and evening:

MRS. A. C. WELLS, Hartford, Conn., a daughter of H. L. Welch of Waterville, Conn.

ALICE FENNELLY.

CATHARINE FENNELLY.

The last named two were daughters of Mrs. O. Fennelly of Louisville.

The following are fatally injured:

MRS. O. FENNELLY, Louisville, wife of the cashier of the Citizens' National Bank of Louisville, scalded over her whole body.

C. M. COPP, Cleveland, scalded over whole body, not expected to live till morning.

E. C. BAILEY of Dorchester, formerly proprietor of The Boston Herald, scalded in face and hands.

The following were seriously but not fatally injured:

Mrs. Martha E. Chase, Santa Rosa, Cal., face and left arm burned.

Rev. T. M. Dimmick, Los Angeles, Cal., face, arm and hip scalded.

His wife had her face and hands scalded and suffered a compound fracture of both bones of the left leg.

Mrs. George P. Welch of Cleveland, scalded, condition critical.

Her son, Henry James Welch, face, arms and neck scalded.

Mrs. F. A. Addison of Chelsea, face and arms burned and thighs bruised.

Mrs. Andrew Fowler, Charlestown, spine injured and back scalded.

Her daughter, Mrs. George M. Snow, face and hands scalded.

Mrs. Mary F. Snow, Charlestown, face and hands badly scalded and internal injuries.

Mrs. A. R. Abbott, Louisville, face and hands scalded and compound fracture of left thigh, condition critical.

Capt. W. R. Abbott, Louisville, hands scalded.

J. C. Brown, Lawrence, slightly scalded on hands and face.

R. F. Benson, Pullman conductor, right side of face cut and ear nearly torn off.

R. W. Edwards, judge in chancery, Louisville, wrists cut.

Gen. N. Wales, Boston, finger broken.

Elizabeth Fennelly, aged 8, Louisville, hands, arms and legs burned.

Jessie McAlister, Fort Wayne, face, side and hands burned.

Ruth Blackburn, Lowell, Mass., face, side and hands burned.

Mrs. McHaile, Fort Wayne, compound fracture of the nose and knee sprained.

Lucy, negro maid of the Fennelly's, badly burned.

Engineer Babcock, wrist broken and head and legs lacerated.

R. T. Needham, Mrs. J. S. Needham and Mrs. J. C. Brown, Lawrence; Mrs. S. F. Stowe of Somerville; Dr. P. B. Warner of Canandaigua, N.Y.; Moses Farnham of Franklin; M. Hirschberg, Boston; Miss Minnie Hubbard and Miss Rose Tucker, Lexington; and Miss Eva Bullard, Nashville, all scalded slightly or hurt.

It is reported that the name of one of the unidentified dead is W. H. Grady and that two others are Mrs. E. P. Johnson and her 15-year-old boy. It is also reported the niece of Mrs. A. C. Wells of Hartford is among the unidentified dead.

When the engine jumped the track it plunged into an embankment 12 feet high and was buried. Upon one side the tender, baggage car, smoker and Pullman passed by the engine and were stretched along for 160 feet beside the track. The foremost passenger coach, No. 236, left the rails and its foremost trucks swerved to the left and plunged diagonally through the car floor. The car fell on its left side on the engine. The lower forward portion was torn to pieces, and of the passengers in the rear car, some 50 in number, many were thrown into the rear corner, from which 11 dead bodies were taken out.

The escaping steam and smoke from the engine instantly filled the car, so that those within could see nothing. The forward cars were forced over upon the outward-bound track, completely blocking traffic, and up to 9¾ p.m. no train had passed the wreck. The three rear passenger coaches did not leave the track and the occupants received only a slight shaking up. All the surgeons of Quincy busied themselves at the wreck. Twenty-five surgeons from Boston also went to Quincy on a special train. All that human skill could accomplish was done to soothe the last hours of the dying and quiet the pain of the injured.

A SMASH-UP ON THE MIDLAND.

The Mail Train Dashes Into a Special Freight—Three Persons Injured.

ORILLIA, Aug. 19.—A smash-up occurred yesterday on the Midland Railway, near Mud Lake, 3½ miles from Orillia. There is a steep grade here, and a special freight from Midland was unable to climb the grade and split the train in two, leaving part standing on the track. The mail train from Midland dashed around the curve, the engineer not seeing or not paying attention to the flagman.

Seeing collision inevitable the engineer jumped and was severely injured. The fireman stuck to his post and escaped unhurt. The rear car of the freight mounted the locomotive, damaging the smokestack, bell and front of engine. The injured are:

James Deans, Midland, driver, cut on head, breast and arm seriously.

Charles Mallory, Oshawa, cut on leg and knee.

Mrs. Minns, cut on head and face.

The front truck of the passenger engine was derailed. A wrecking gang from Orillia was sent up and the track was cleared at midnight.

COLLISION AT GRAVENHURST.

A Way Freight Runs Into a Gravel Train—The Hands Escape Injury.

GRAVENHURST, Aug. 19.—As a way freight attached to engine No. 671, driver Arthur Burns, was coming from the north it collided with a gravel train on the main line in the north end of the town. The gravel train was being backed down by engine 689, driver W. Campbell. Two flat cars and a caboose were derailed, the two flats also being thrown off the track and one end of the caboose being smashed. Engine 671 mounted the other one, breaking and damaging the fronts of both, also partly derailing the tender of 689. Nobody was hurt, all the train hands and navvies jumping after having done all they could to prevent the accident.

A MEXICAN MUTINY.

Soldiers Kill Their Commanding Officer and Desert in a Body.

MEXICO, Aug. 19.—One of the most sensational events that has taken place in the military garrison here occurred late last night in the Santiago Zaltheolo ward, where seventeen soldiers, acting as patrol for the city custom house, deserted in a body after killing their lieutenant. They first struck him on the head with the stock of a gun, and then shot him and stabbed him five times in the face with a bayonet. The emeute was headed by a sergeant, who formed the men into line and marched to the nearest city gate. Under some pretext they got the keeper and guard to allow them to pass. Once outside they fired upon the keeper. The minister of war and the garrison commander went personally to the scene of the murder and ordered a detachment of the Second Cavalry in pursuit, and it is said that three of the deserters have been captured. One soldier was left behind by the deserters; he was not aroused in time to be a witness of the bloody affair, but was the one to communicate the news of the desertion to police headquarters.

He Belongs to Millbrook, Ont.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 19.—Harry Hamilton shot himself through the heart this afternoon and died instantly. He was a hotel porter and worked in the St. James' Hotel, Denver, and had been employed in the Palace Hotel here for a year. He was discharged three weeks ago. He came back looking for work to-day. He had been drinking. Failing to obtain employment he started for Litchfield, a country town near here.

He had two valises, and after visiting several saloons left them temporarily with a storekeeper. Then he stepped into an alley and put a bullet through his heart. He said to a companion a few minutes before that he had consumption, that the girl he had loved had gone back on him and that he did not care to live.

His relatives are not known here, but live in Millbrook, Ont., and the body will be sent there.

WON WITH THE PRINCESS' HELP.

Prince Caraman-Chimay Elected to the Belgian Parliament.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—A despatch received to-day announces that Prince Caraman-Chimay, who married Miss Clara Ward a few months ago, has been elected to parliament from his district by a large majority. The district in which the Prince resides has been represented in Parliament by the Opposition for nearly 30 years. The Princess took an active interest in the campaign and participated to a degree hitherto entirely unknown in the history of Belgian politics. She accompanied her husband throughout the district and was received with great honors everywhere.

A CASE OF ASIATIC CHOLERA IN LONDON.

The Disease Brought to the Metropolis by a Recent Arrival from Calcutta—The Forthcoming Meeting of the Austrian and German Emperors.

LONDON, Aug. 19.—A sensation has been caused here by a case of Asiatic cholera. Robert Teigh, a coat trimmer aged 46, landed Sunday from the steamer Duke of Argyle, and secured lodgings in a coffee house. To-day he was carried to a hospital where the doctors pronounced his case one of Asiatic cholera.

Edmund Yates' Gossip.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—There is no doubt, so Edmund Yates cables The Tribune, that the forthcoming meeting of the Austrian and German emperors, following closely on the visit of the latter to England and Russia, is of the highest political importance. It is to take place Sept. 17 at Castle Rohnstock, in Silesia. Although described as strictly private the discussion of certain weighty political questions will be facilitated by the presence of the King of Saxony, Chancellor Von Caprivi, Count Kalnoky and Count Waldersee.

In spite of all remarks to the contrary Mr. Smith will still be the leader in the House of Commons when parliament meets in November. Mr. Goschen will assist from time to time.

It is a pity that Lord Salisbury cannot give to the public the Errington correspondence in the foreign office. It would throw wonderful light on the crookedness and perversity of the Gladstonian policy. For months Mr. Gladstone's government carried on a series of intrigues with the Vatican, the object of which was to secure the support of the Irish Catholic episcopate for the British Government. While the Pope was not unfriendly to Mr. Gladstone's overtures and the quid pro quo which he wished was the establishment of direct diplomatic relations with the Vatican and the creation of a completely equipped Catholic university in Ireland, before the scheme matured the Irish bishops scented it and made most energetic protests against it. The correspondence unfortunately cannot be given to the world, for it is nearly as damaging to the Pope as to Mr. Gladstone, and the consent of His Holiness is necessary to its publication.

ATTEMPTED UXORICIDE.

Joseph Slater of Georgetown Fires Three Bullets Into His Wife.

GEORGETOWN, Aug. 19.—While intoxicated yesterday afternoon Joseph Slater attempted to murder his wife. He fired three shots at her. The first bullet struck her about the middle of the stomach, below the breast, and glancing aside entered her right breast. The second bullet lodged between the skin and flesh near the abdomen, and the third bullet went through her right arm near the wrist, shattering the bones frightfully.

The wounded woman then grappled with her would-be slayer. In the scuffle the revolver went off again, the bullet this time passing through Slater's arm near the elbow, inflicting an ugly wound. When he was shot himself, he put on his coat and strolled unconcernedly towards the village. The tidings of the shooting were carried to the paper mills and a telephone message from the mills put the constables on the alert. He was quickly arrested, offering no resistance to the constables when they put the darbies on his wrists. The quarrel appears to have originated over a most trifling matter. When Slater came home he commanded his wife to stop sewing on a child's garment to do some needlework for him. She replied that she would do so in a moment, whereupon he flew into a towering rage, grasped the revolver and attempted to murder her.

Mrs. Slater is resting comfortably, the bullets having being extracted, and unless blood poisoning or inflammation sets in she will probably recover. Slater is still in custody.

ISOLATED INDIANS.

The Yava Supai Tribe Discovered in a Colorado Canon.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—Col. Holabird of Los Angeles has returned here from an exploring expedition in the canons of Colorado. He penetrated districts never before explored, and found in an almost inaccessible canon, 100 miles north of Williams and near the Grand Canon of the Colorado, the Yava Supai Tribe of Indians, who had never seen any white man except John D. Lee, the Mormon, who was shot for the Mountain Meadow massacre. Col. Holabird says:

These Indians are of the Apache family, but of ancient origin. The men are magnificent specimens. The valley in which the tribe has lived for many years in seclusion has only two ways of approach. It contains 2000 acres and is enclosed by almost perpendicular walls 400 feet high. We traveled over fifteen miles along a canon, over a lifeless country. Suddenly we came to two boiling springs under cottonwood trees. From these springs a river starts which winds its way through a luxuriant valley. The water in the river is clear as crystal and so strongly impregnated with lime that it petrifies everything it touches. There are three immense cataracts in the canon. These look as if centuries ago a huge cottonwood tree had fallen across the stream and lodged. Mosses, ferns and creepers formed a barrier. All these turned to limestone. The grass caused the deposit to increase until the barricade extends across the canon, making a fall of 250 feet. Along the front of these high cataracts limestone ridges have formed, 20 to 50 feet one above the other. Over all these the water falls like a sheet of glass. Underneath, between the ridges, thousands of plants with flowers in full bloom, are seen, while millions of humming birds dart in and out.

The chief of the strange tribe is an old man of 60, "Captain Tom." The name was given him by John D. Lee. I found these Indians in a starving condition, subsisting upon berries and grass seed. I applied to the government for them, but the Indian Department said it could not help wandering people. Gen. Miles, who says he has heard of these Indians but could never get a guide to their canon, will investigate their condition.

A NEW MARKET FOR EGGS.

THE introduction of two-rowed barley to build up an export trade in barley with England is not the only step that has been taken to provide offsets should the United States pass the McKinley bill. The Belleville Intelligencer say:—The Grit Press, with its leaning towards Yankeeism, has been harping upon the McKinley Bill as an argument in favor of commercial union. It is within the memory of most of us that the abrogation of the reciprocity treaty of 1854-66 was the cause for the foundation of our great cheese interests, and it would appear that the passing of the McKinley Bill would only have the effect of opening a more direct and better market for our produce. As for instance, a cheese shipper of this city was in England when the bill was first mooted, and he at once opened negotiation with a number of prominent produce commission brokers with a view to shipping eggs to them direct. As a result he shipped half a dozen cases, and on Friday received a cablegram quoting sales at a highly remunerative price, and stating as well that the eggs arrived in excellent condition, and asking him to ship all he could. Thus our farmers need have no fear that the passage of the bill will effect the egg market otherwise than by directing our export from the United States to Great Britain.

ANOTHER fad has been found, or revived, to help make up a platform for the Liberal party. The London Advertiser wishes a law passed compelling ever elector to vote. The adage that one man can lead a horse to water but ten men cannot make him drink, is recalled by the advocacy of compulsory voting.

MR. ERASTUS WIMAN, of New York, having been mentioned in connection with the Liberal leadership, he was asked about it and said that he had been offered four constituencies for the House of Commons, but had declined them. It would be interesting to know what constituencies these were and who made the New Yorker the offer, but the knowledge that Mr. Wiman declined should, perhaps, be satisfactory without any more information on the subject.

OWING to the retirement of Hon. A. M. Ross from the Cabinet, Hon. J. M. Gibson has taken temporary charge of the Treasury Department and public institutions.—Toronto Globe.

Mr. Gibson, although he has charge of two departments, is not a member of the Legislature. And as he seems to be waiting to see what the result of the protest against Mr. Stinson's election in Hamilton will be, he is not likely to be a member for a long time.

A Painful Accident in a Sawmill—Other News Notes.

Correspondence of the Review.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—About a week ago, while Mr. Edward Fitzgerald, who is employed in the sawmill here, was cutting slabs at a small circular saw, he unfortunately, through some mishap, got his right hand on the saw and his thumb and two fingers badly cut. The third finger was amputated. The thumb and other finger, Dr. Leabeer thinks, will come all right in the course of a couple of weeks.

SAWDUST.—Mr. Gilchrist, from Rice Lake all the way, was up here one day last week examining the sawmill here and where the sawdust goes. Whether the sawdust is deposited in a cart for the purpose with proper carriers or allowed to go into the river, your correspondent has not yet learned. If there was a local man appointed as Fishery Inspector for these waters instead of one coming from such a distance it would be better. The last one who came here in the spring was all the way from Port Perry.

THE SCHOOL.—The re-opening after the holidays of the Public school in this section commenced on Monday last, A. Smith, teacher. Therefore the parents will now enjoy five hours of peace and quiet per day.

HARWOOD HAPPENINGS.

Correspondence of the Review.

THE DOINGS AT "PEARL" CAMP.—One of the merriest camps about the lake was the Pearl camp at Idle Wild. The party was made up of Commodore Calcutt and the Misses Calcutt, Mrs. Wm. Calcutt, Chicago, Mrs. N. Calcutt, Memphis, Tennessee, Miss Lottie Calcutt, Chicago, Miss E. Maynard, Woodstock, and Messrs. B. H. Hopkins, Lindsay, C. N. Brown, G. G. Hall, Peterborough, Gordon Logan, W. Allen, Bowmanville (handsome Willie). The camp lasted eighteen days and joy supreme reigned all the time. A pleasing and lucrative event was the excursion to Dodgers' orchard, across the bay, where the lady from Woodstock rescued the apples and tobacco from a watery grave. The ladies, it is understood, participated in the expedition. Several of the lady campers made a trip to Pandash Point under sail, and had the felicity of rowing all the way back. Mr. Brown is credited with the largest catch of the camp, he having after 17 hours incessant trolling brought to camp one bass and a junior maskinonge of 3½ lbs. weight The camp fires at night were a feature of each day. The camp closed with a dance on Saturday night, a very enjoyable and recherche affair, and in which Mr. Hopkins especially distinguished himself. Prizes at progressive euchre were awarded to Bunthorne Brown, 2nd Commodore Calcutt, 3rd Mr. Cornell, Brooklyn. The party broke up on Monday morning, all pleased with the outing enjoyed. Mr. Bunthorne's friends will be glad to learn that he came out of the feint inside of three hours.

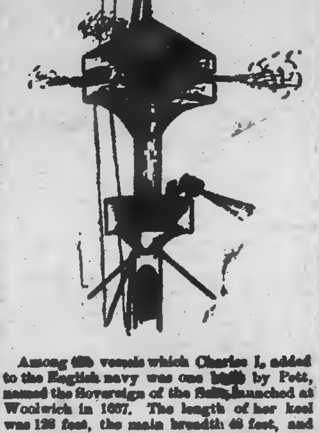
The Mast of the Modern War Ship—Quicksilver in South Africa—Revival of Ship-Building—Civility in Trade—Other Notes.

Although modern warfare is as different from that of the days of Greek fire, the catapult and the cross bow as is our mode of living from that of the ancients, still in some of our modern appliances there is a remarkable resemblance to some of the very ancient enginery. In early naval warfare the mast of a vessel was an important aggressive point, and from the mast head were thrown javelins, arrows, hot shot, Greek fire and other destructive missiles. The masthead was then, as now, the chief lookout, and as all naval battles were at short range, equivalent almost to actual contact with the vessels, the mast was perhaps even more important than the main armament of the vessel.



Among the vessels which Charles I. added to the English navy was one built by Pett, named the Sovereign of the Seas, launched at Woolwich in 1637. The length of her keel was 128 feet, the main breadth 48 feet, and the length from stem to stern 232 feet. The description of this vessel by Thomas Heywood, states that "she bore five lanthorns, the biggest of which would hold ten persons upright had three flush decks, a forecastle, half deck, quarter deck and round house. Her lower tier had thirty ports for cannon and demi-cannon; middle tier, thirty for culverins and demi-culverins; third tier twenty-six for other ordinance; forecastle, twelve, and two half decks, thirteen or fourteen ports more within board, for murthering pieces, besides ten pieces of chace ordinance forward, and ten right aft, and many loopholes in the cabins for musquet shot. She had eleven anchors, one of 4,400 pounds weight. She was of the burden of 1,637 tons." On trial, this vessel was found to be too high for good service. She was therefore cut down to a deck less, and became an excellent ship.

Gunpowder was used as long ago as 1338, and it seems strange to read that this early period of 1338 iron cannon having several chambers were used. In these early days, arms and ordnance bore such names as these; cannon, demi-cannon, culverins, demi-culverins, sakers, mynions, falcons, falconets, etc.; now we have rifles and howitzers, Gatling and Hotchkiss guns, the mitrailleuse, etc.

Our engraving represents the mast of a modern war ship, with its lookout and its turret. The mast is made hollow, and of sufficient diameter to allow the men to ascend. The lower tower is provided with a search light, which receives its current through wires extending up the hollow mast. The turret is armed upon one side with a single piece ordnance, and upon the other with a Gatling gun. Above all is located the lookout or watch tower. With such an auxiliary as this, a war ship can seriously harass the enemy, besides doing a great deal of actual damage. By the aid of a strong electric light, aggressive movements may be carried on at night. Not only can these movements be carried forward, but by means of the light the entire vicinity of the vessel may be searched for torpedoes and torpedo boats, thus rendering practical at night the means of defence against the attacks of these wary enemies.

Civility in Trade.

A gentleman bought some machine tools of a certain firm, and, not receiving them when promised, wrote, requesting to know why they were not delivered. To this he received no reply. Waiting for three days longer than it would take for an answer, he telegraphed briefly: "Send tools at once, or let us know why; in great need of them." This brought a reply from the superintendent, who fancied that this called for what he thought was a dignified rebuke. So he answered: "Tools will be sent when we are ready, not before." The customer took the next train to the works—only one hour's ride—and brought the telegram with him. He ignored the superintendent, and went to the president with his grievance, who, being a sensible man, soon arranged matters to the buyer's satisfaction. Then the president interviewed the superintendent, and gave him some good advice on the subject of politeness in trade, which it is to be hoped he profited by.

Human nature is weak, and the best of us are liable to err, but it is a bad thing to err on the side of incivility. No matter how large or small an order may be—five cents or fifty thousand dollars—the buyer is entitled to courteous treatment and prompt attention. The mouse gnawed the lion free of the net, and the five cent order man may know a fifty thousand dollar order man, whom he will take where he will be well treated. As the Engineer, from which we copy, says, civility pays every time. It is a cardinal point in business, and boors should remember that rudeness always recoils upon those who exhibit it.

Quicksilver in South Africa.

Mr. W. J. Smith, of Zeerust, is at present in Cape Town, and advantage was taken by an Argus reporter to ask him a few questions about the alleged valuable deposit of quicksilver at Marico, in the Zeerust district. The substance of Mr. Smith's statement is that some time ago, while inspecting Witkop farm, his attention was attracted by a peculiar formation of rocks there, and also by the color—vermilion—of the rock itself, indicating, as it did, the presence of quicksilver.

Since then operations have been carried on by Mr. Lemmert, Jr., and specimens of the rock have been submitted to experts, including Dr. Hahn, with the result that a rich mineral discovery has been made. Quicksilver exists in very large quantities and of excellent quality, while silver, zinc, lead, and other minerals are abundant. The Witkop mine is at present worked by a syndicate with successful results; and this success led to prospecting operations on the adjoining farm of Buffelshoek, where precisely similar conditions were observed, and where a scratching of the surface has revealed the fact that there are equally good results to be anticipated from the mine being worked.

A syndicate has been formed to work this mine as well as that of Witkop: and a movement is also in progress for further exploration in the district, where quicksilver is evidently abundant. Professor Hahn has expressed an opinion that the quicksilver mine at Witkop is one of the richest in the world.

Revival of American Ship Building.

According to the Marine Record, the new tonnage of the first six months of the present year is represented by 77 steam vessels, with a tonnage of [illegible], and 30 sailing and tow vessels with a gross tonnage of 15,550, making a total of 169 vessels having a gross measurement tonnage of 79,461 tons, including steel, iron, composite and wooden vessels of first class design and equipped with all modern inventions.

Of the new steamers, 18 are vessels having a tonnage between 1,000 and 2,000 tons, and 13 have a tonnage between 2,000 and 3,000 tons. The average tonnage of the above 18 is 1,600, and of the 13 it is 2,397. It must be said, however, that from 15 to 25 per cent should be added to the foregoing tonnage, as several of the modern high classed, steel built propellers are already on record as exceeding 3,000 tons capacity.

Of the above new steam tonnage (excluding the smaller vessels), Cleveland shipyards are to be credited with at least 20,000 tons, as against 12,000 tons for West Bay City, 11,000 tons for Detroit, and still smaller totals for Buffalo, Milwaukee, Grand Haven, Duluth, etc.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Alleged Queer-Shovers in Quod—The East Hastings Election Case.

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—Minnie Thompson appeared in the Police Court yesterday in answer to a charge of passing counterfeit money. A boy, Joseph Furnace, supposed to be an accomplice, was in the dock with her false coin, a very bad leaden imitation of a 50-cent piece. The case was remanded.

William Murphy and Edward Miller, two members of "C" Company, School of Infantry, were charged with assaulting Police Constable Jarvis Monday night and pleaded guilty. The constable is badly hurt and may have permanent internal injuries. The case was adjourned.

Frederick Groft, a German, appeared in the dock wearing a uniform of the United States army, charged with stealing a watch chain and two gold rings belonging to a waitress at the Royal Hotel. Groft was sent down for 30 days. He said he had been in the United States army for 10 years.

Richard Rowe and Walter Keller were committed for trial on the charge of highway robbery. They are accused of taking $4 from G. W. McMaster.

Joseph Bullock, charged with seducing his stepdaughter, was remanded for a week.

In the matter of the East Hastings election there was yesterday filed in the office of the Court of Appeal a cross-petition by Charles Hudson, sr., farmer, of Tyendinaga township, against Nathaniel Vermilyea, the defeated candidate, who has already petitioned against the return of Mr. Hudson, the Conservative member elect. The cross-petition sets forth the usual grounds of bribery, corruption, treating, etc. The original petition against Mr. Hudson was filed on July 28 and served Aug. 2, and omitting the intervening Sundays the cross-petition would seem to be within the required 15 days limited by the statute for the filing of the same.

GEN. MIDDLETON OFF FOR HOME.

He Talks to a Montreal Reporter—His Future Movements Uncertain.

OTTAWA, Aug. 19.—Gen. Sir Fred Middleton left for England to-day. A local auctioneer created a sensation by demanding payment of a $35 bill; the General, however, satisfied him with a check, which was promptly marked good by the local manager of the Bank of Montreal, who was among the crowd of friends at the station to bid the General good-bye.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—Gen. Middleton sails to-morrow morning on the Allan liner Sardinian for Liverpool. In an interview with a Herald reporter he said:

"Yes, I'm leaving Canada. You don't care a rap for me, nor I for you. The cause of my hasty departure is that I wish to put my son in Sandhurst.

"As to Hayter Reed I don't care to say anything that will damage any man in the eyes of the public, therefore I will withhold my opinion.

"My removal was caused by the Government, and I hold them to blame, although the Opposition pushed them. They could not carry a vote of censure, however. I foresaw the whole trouble at the time the Bremner fur motion was introduced into the House.

"I don't feel prepared to state my future movements."

QUEBEC CABINET CHANGES.

Robidoux Appointed Attorney-General and Langelier Provincial Secretary.

MONTREAL, Aug. 19.—A Provincial Cabinet meeting took place here to-day, at which Hon. Messrs. Mercier, Langelier, Robidoux and Turcotte were present. Mr. Robidoux was appointed Attorney-General, Mr. Langelier Provincial Secretary and Mr. Turcotte prothonotary. Mr. Turcotte was immediately installed.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—The New England terra cotta works at Revere were burned to-day. Loss $50,000.

Big Timber in the Northwest.

Capt. E. Farnham, the pioneer lumberman speaking of big timber, said: "I think the biggest stick of timber ever cut on Puget Sound was gotten out at the Port Gamble mill ten years ago. It was 140 feet in length and 30x30 inches square. It was shipped to China, where it was cut up into spars for bridges. I was on board the vessel on which it was shipped. The timber protruded over both the bow and the stern."

"What was the idea in shipping such a stick?"

"Just simply to have the name of cutting the largest stick ever got out on Puget Sound."

"What is the largest stick of timber that you have ever seen?"

"That one was. At the World's Fair in London I had dinner in a house made from the bark of a redwood tree, which was cut California. The house was two stories in height, and was eighteen feet in circumference in the upper story."

"How large a stick do you think could be cut on Puget Sound?"

"I think that it might be possible to get out one perhaps 180 feet long and 30x30 inches square at the small end. Such a stick could not be found near the coast, however. One would have to go into the interior for it. A great deal of care would have to be exercised in cutting it to prevent its breaking when it fell. If such a stick were cut I have no doubt it would be the largest stick of timber ever cut in the world."

The largest tree in the world is in Mariposa, California. It is called the Father of the Forest, and is 450 feet in height. It is a fallen monarch, however, and it would be impossible to cut a stick of timber 150 feet in length from it, as it is partially decayed.—Seattle Press.

No Fugit on Her.

She had just returned from boarding-school, and when she told him that she "could discern no fugit" on his new summer suit he was very, very unhappy until by the aid of a latin grammar he translated fugit as "he or he flies."

One of Worth's Bridal Veils.

"Let us have a look at that bridal veil," says Mr. Worth, and forthwith two or three of his assistants, who, by the by, are all highly superior people, go to a box, and with the greatest care take from it the loveliest bit of modern lace it has ever been my luck to see. "It is," says M. Gaston, "the handsomest bit of Alencon lace ever made. It was made specially for the Exhibition, and took five years to work. It is, you will see, of light workmanship at the top, and gets heavier at the foot." "And it is worth?" "Sixty thousand francs."—Herald's Paris edition.

Distinguished Visitors.

Hon. C. H. Tupper, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Gen. Cameron arrived in town last evening, having come here to spend a couple of days on an invitation from Mr. James Stevenson, M.P. This morning Mr. Tupper and General Cameron went to Lakefield to take a run through the northern lakes. In a conversation Mr. Tupper said that he had had the pleasure of a sail through Rice lake and up the Otonabee on a previous occasion, and he was greatly impressed with the scenery of these waters. In fact he did not know where more beautiful scenery was to be found than on Rice lake and the Otonabee at the time of year in which he had visited them. He had heard much of the northern lakes and anticipated a couple of days of pleasure in visiting them for the first time. He spoke highly of the general appearance of Peterborough and thought it was a highly favored town, both in itself and in its proximity to the waters of the south and north of it. Mr. Tupper and Gen. Cameron return to-morrow night.

This afternoon at 2 30 o'clock a very large congregation assembled in St. John's church to be present at the marriage of Mr. James Morris, of the Bank of Ontario, Cornwall, and Miss Letitia Kate (Dolly) Cottingham, daughter of the late Wm. Cottingham, of Omemee, who was Warden of Peterborough County from 1862 to 1868 and afterwards Warden of Victoria county. When the wedding party arrived at the church the seats were filled, the available standing room was taken up and many were forced to remain outside. At the door of the church the bridal party was met by the choir and the Rector and escorted to the altar, the choir singing hymn 350, "The Voice that Breathed All Eden." The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Walter Cottingham, of Montreal, who acted in locus parentis. Miss Maggie Roper was bridesmaid and Mr. M. Morris, of Toronto, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman. The bride and bridesmaid were prettily attired in cream China silk. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A., Rector of St. John's, with a full choral service, the choir singing the responses and the versicals being admirably intoned by the Rector. The choir then sang "Deus Mesereator" in the first Gregorian tone, and after the benediction hymn 251, "How Welcome is the Call." At the conclusion of the ceremony the bride was presented with a handsome bouquet by Master Bertram Davies, on behalf of the choir boys. The tones of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" filled the church as the bridal party retired to the vestry to sign the register, and as the bride left the church the bridal march from Lohengrin was played by Dr. Davies, who presided at the organ. The party returned to the residence of Mr. E. B. Edwards, where the reception was held. Mr. Morris was formerly a resident of this town having been connected with the branch of the Ontario Bank here, and the bride was also a resident of Peterborough and a valued member of the choir of St. John's. They have many warm friends in Peterborough whose heartfelt good wishes will be for their continued happiness.

Story of a Conversion.

A very fair audience assembled in the George-st. Methodist church last evening to hear the lecture which was delivered by Rev. Amand Parents who is making a tour of Canada in the interests of the Methodist French evangelization. Rev. G. H. Davis occupied the chair. Rev. Mr. Locke, pastor of the church, was also present and opened the meeting with a few remarks. Rev. Mr. Parent's lecture proved to be an interesting one, extending over an hour. He related his own experience, which was of a very interesting character. He was born in Quebec and was a Roman Catholic. By reason of his connection with the rebellion he was forced to fly from Canada and went to the States. While there he was led to study the scriptures and ultimately was converted to the Protestant faith. Returning to his home he was the means of converting his father, mother and others. He joined the Methodist church, studied for the ministry and labored for eight years as a missionary among the Oka Indians. The lecturer also referred to the work among the French-Canadians in Quebec. A silver collection was taken up.

Gough Bros. Baby Show.

One of the biggest attractions at the Peterboro Central Exhibition will be the baby show in the clothing department of Gough Bros, the wonderful cheap men, in the main exhibition building. A study of the registrar general's books show that there have been an unusual number of babies produced this year, therefore there will be a big competition—lots of babies and lots of fun—anxious mothers, doting fathers and critical old maids. The sum of $25 will be devoted to prizes—a ten dollar suit of clothes to the father of the winning baby, a ten dollar cashmere dress to the proud mother of the champion cherub and $5 to the champion cherub itself. Don't let this great feature of the great exhibition escape your memory, it will be worth all the rest of the show put together. The exhibition baby show of Gough Bros. is a permanent feature of the Central Exhibition. There are already a score or more of competitors mentioned, so that the coming baby show will be the greatest of all. Great are the Goughs, and the baby shows is their profit. 2d42-1w34

FOR SUFFERING MANKIND

THE ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL COMPLETED AND OPENED.

A Description of the Building Which has Been Erected for the Good of the Sick and Suffering of any Nationality or Creed—A Magnificent Site—A Handsome Building.

It was on the 24th day of October in, 1888, that a large concourse of the prominent people of the town and vicinity assembled in a cold, chilly wind and with a threatening sky overhead to witness the impressive and interesting ceremony of laying the corner stone of the St. Joseph's hospital, which as an architectural reality was at that time confined to the nicely executed plans of the architect which were on inspection. His Lordship Bishop Dowling officiated on the occasion and he arrived here at noon to-day to be present at the formal opening of the building in the founding of which he was so largely instrumental and interested. The building which looked so well when sketched on paper by the architect's pen stands to-day, faithfully reared, with its chaste and striking beauty of architectural design, making it a work for admiration to visitors and an object of pride to those whose energy has carried on the charitable enterprise and whose money has paid the minds that planned and the hands that labored. Complete and ready for the reception of those upon whom the afflicting hand has been laid, no matter of what nationality or creed they may be, the St. Joseph's hospital, erected by the Roman Catholic Church, was this afternoon formally opened by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor. At this time a brief description of the building will be of interest.

AN ADMIRABLE SITE.

Standing as it does on an eminence which gives it a commanding site and displays its architectural beauty to the best advantage, the hospital has a situation which could not very well be improved upon. The site is well known to all residents of Peterborough, being in Ashburnham on the rise of the hill in that beautiful grove known as St. Leonard's. This elevated site will give the hospital a salubrity and pureness of air which is most essential to an institution where the sick are to be healed, the lame nursed and the weak strengthened, while it will also afford the patients when approaching convalescence and they are able to sit upon one of the many balconies, to enjoy a stretch of scenery which for beauty and diversity cannot help but delight the eye and call forth expressions of admiration. From a sanitary standpoint, therefore, the site is a magnificent one. The building itself has been erected and finished throughout with the one object—to produce a hospital which would not only be comfortable, convenient and attractive, but also one in which the sanitary conditions should be as near perfect as possible. This object has been well achieved, for the sanitary arrangements are most complete. The building will accommodate about one hundred patients, so that it will easily be seen that no space has been allowed to go to waste within the walls.

FIRST IMPRESSIONS.

Approaching the building, or in fact in looking at it from Hunter-st. where the front elevation is grandly presented to the view, the visitor cannot but be pleased with the architectual design. Rising from the wide gravel drive, which sweeps from the gate on Stewart-st, through the trees of the grove up to the front entrance, is the well-laid, substantial-looking stone foundation. Above this rises the brick-work, which is far from being a monotonous, unbroken stretch. The main entrance, over which is a handsome piece of tile work, is in the centre of a recess and is reached by a broad flight of steps. Above the entrance is a beautiful Gothic window, of stained glass, opening out onto an ornamental balcony. Above this window rises the tower, on either side of which is a dormer window, which add greatly to the appearance of the front elevation. On either end of the facade the brick work is carried up to a gable and this with the tower and dormers gives quite a striking appearance to the building. It is of the Gothic style of architecture and covers an area of 88 feet x 62 feet 6 inches. There is a verandah and entrance on both the south and north sides, while a balcony also extends along the second storey on these sides.

THE INTERNAL ARRANGEMENT

of the building cannot be described in writing in such a way as to give the reader an appreciable idea of the plan. On entering the wide and handsome main entrance the visitor finds himself in an entrance hall 11 ft. 7 in. wide and leading to the main corridor, which runs north and south from one end of the building to the other. A door on the left from the hall leads into a public parlor 16x11 ft. 4 in., an airy, pleasant room where visitors are ushered when entering. Folding doors open from this parlor into the chapel, which has been fitted up appropriately and where worship can be conducted. This chapel is 21x18 ft. 9 in. and is a most suitable room for the purpose. Returning to the entrance hall a door on the right leads into the dispensary, beyond which again is the surgery. Both of these rooms are fitted up as their use would require, the latter having the necessary basins, hot and cold water, etc. There are two more rooms on this side of the corridor, a patient's sitting room, and a large private room. Access to these rooms is gained from the west side of the main corridor. On the east side of this corridor at the south end is the men's ward, a fine, large, well-lighted room 26x25 feet. Beside this ward are bath rooms, closets, the heating shaft, dumb waiter, clothes chute, etc. At the north end of the corridor is a room 15 ft. 8 in. by 16 ft. 8 in. which will be used as a sister's parlor. Another corridor runs east from the main one here and leads to a back stairway and also to the basement. A community room which is next to the sisters' parlor is also reached by this corridor. Half glass doors in the main corridor separate this part of the ground floor from the general or public part. While here the visitor can

DESCEND TO THE BASEMENT

where a large number of the important rooms are to be found. Here a corridor extends the entire length of the building the same as on the ground and first floors. The furnaces, of which there are two, are located one at the north-west corner and the other on the south side of the basement. Then there is a large laundry, dining room, kitchen, two pantries, storerooms, etc. The laundry is fitted up with all the necessary tubs, etc., while the other rooms are also nicely finished. Retracing your steps to the ground floor the visitor may which runs from the main corridor directly in front of the main entrance. A handsome stained glass window with the Patron Saint beautifully brought out throws a light upon the stairway. Upon landing you are in a corridor similar to the one on the ground floor, running from end to end of the building. On either sides of this corridor open private rooms and wards, the large ward in the south-east corner being the women's ward. The room directly over the entrance hall is a day room and opens out on to the front balcony. At either end of the corridor a door leads to a balcony, where the patient when recovering can enjoy the beauties of the outside world and the surrounding scenery. The second or top storey is laid out in much the same way as the other two, having eleven rooms in all, three of which are wards. Here is also the tank room where the tanks which supply hot and cold water to the building are to be found. The building throughout has been painted with an eye to taste and has been finished in a most pleasing and attractive manner.

ASCEND THE BROAD OAKEN STAIRCASE

THE HEATING AND PLUMBING.

In a building of the character of St. Joseph's heating, ventilation and plumbing are important considerations. These, as already stated, have been looked after with an eye to sanitary perfection. The Smead-Dowd system of heating and ventilation has been placed in the building. The system has an entrance to every floor and to every room, with return ventilation in proportion. The excellencies and superiority of this system for ventilation and sanitary purposes are known and acknowledged by almost every one. Through its introduction no drainage or sewerage is required from the buildings, except to carry away the waste water used for domestic purposes. The closets throughout the building are all made of cast iron and the urinary water and excreta is all burned by fire, so that there is no lurking danger from defective sewerage from the closets. The plumbing is all visible and has been well done. Bath rooms are to be found on every floor and these have been supplied with the latest and most improved baths and appliances.

THOSE WHO WERE CONCERNED.

Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., was the architect, and the building reflects credit upon his ability as a designer. The contractors and sub-contractors were as follows:—Excavation, Mr. Wm. Breckenridge; stone for foundation, Messrs. Long & Heaslip; stonework, Mr. Michael Hayes; brickwork, Messrs. Sheehy & McDonald; brick, Messrs. Heap & Curtis; carpenter work, Mr. Arthur Rutherford; plastering, Mr. P. McCue; painting, Mr. Thos. McGrath; plumbing, Mr. J. C. Smith; tinsmithing, Mr. James Murty. All these gentlemen have performed their work satisfactorily and well.

The hospital is and will be in charge of the Sisters of St. Joseph, from Toronto.

AT THE POLICE COURT.

A Great Grist for the Magistrate—Violation of By-laws—Wm. Northcott Committed as a Lunatic.

There was quite a grist for the mill of justice to grind at the Police Court this morning. Police Magistrate Dumble was on the bench.

Mr. Ed. Phelan appeared before the Magistrate charged by Building Inspector Pope with a violation of the building by-law. Mr. Phelan has erected an ice house in his hotel yard on Simcoe-st., and as the building is of wood the Inspector summoned him before the court. After hearing the Inspector's evidence the Magistrate said as the by-law provided for the removal of the building by the Inspector if the owner did not do so after being notified, he would impose a small fine. He fined Mr. Phelan ten dollars and costs.

Mr. J. F. McClellan was the next citizen who was charged with a violation of one of the town by-laws. The information against him said he had allowed his cow to run at large. He was fined two dollars and costs.

Mrs. Bella Carroll, the first woman who has graced the new prisoner's box with her presence, was brought up from the cells where she had spent the night and charged with having been drunk and disorderly. The unfortunate woman lives in the south end of the town and yesterday raised a disturbance at a neighbor's house, throwing stones and breaking windows. She denied having been drunk, saying she never got drunk on one glass of beer and that was all she had. She caused a little amusement in the court room by her excited explanation, and looked a little weary after her night in the cells, a night which she spent in yelling, singing, etc., much to the dissatisfaction of George Wheeler, who had a chamber across the hall, and who was most emphatic in his protestations. The Magistrate fined the woman two dollars and gave her a week to raise the money.

George Wheeler was up again on the old charge of drunkenness. The Magistrate said he would not impose a fine which would only be taking the bread out of his childrens mouth's, and sent George up on the hill for ten days without the option of a fine.

Wm. Northcott, the young man who was arrested for and acknowledged his guilt in placing obstruction on the G.T.R. track between here and Lakefield, came up for sentence at the Police Court this morning. The prisoner's father and mother were in the court room, and the former gave evidence as to his son's sanity. He said that when three years old Willie had been afflicted with fits and since then had been subject to bad turns. During the last three or four years these turns had been growing worse, the boy's mind being apparently affected. Detective Spence of the G.T.R., and Constable Campbell, of Lakefield, gave their evidence, which pointed to the boy's defective intellect, shown by his acts. The magistrates, County Magistrate Edmison being also on the bench on this case, committed the prisoner to gaol as a lunatic awaiting the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor to commit him to the asylum.

Personal.

Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, of London, formerly auditor of the Midland Railway, is in town.

Mr. G. A. Mitchell has been appointed a Provincial D. G. W. C. T. of the Order of Good Templars.

Mr. W. Packenham has been appointed teacher of modern languages in the St. Thomas Collegiate Institute at a salary of $1,000 per annum. Mr. Packenham has had considerable experience in teaching, and is a man of perseverance and breadth of view who will give the authorities of the St. Thomas Institute satisfaction in the position to which he has been appointed.

Took the Second Prize.

Canton Peterborough, Patriarchs Militant, returned home from Cobourg last evening and brought with them the second prize ($30) which was offered in the fancy drill competition there yesterday in connection with the Civic tournament. There were three entries in the competition, Bowmanville, Peterborough and Belleville Cantons, and the prizes were awarded in the order named. Bowmanville and Peterborough stood equal in points in the fancy drill, but the judges gave the former the first place for steadiness. The Peterborough Canton are satisfied with the manner in which they went through their drill and are to be congratulated. Capt. D. H. Moore was in command and the Canton numbered twenty-two men strong. A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent and the Canton speak in high terms of the management of the committee which had the programme in charge.

A NATIVE OF THE COUNTY.

Now a Millionaire Resident of Tacoma, Washington Territory.

The Tacoma, W.T., Ledger of a recent date contains the following biography of Mr. Wm. H. Fife, a native of Peterborough county, who is a prominent and wealthy citizen of Tacoma:

William H. Fife, one of Tacoma's best known and most successful citizens, was born in Peterborough county, Ontario, in the year 1833. Like many of the truest pioneers of this country he was born on a farm where he spent the earlier years of his life working for his father. At the age of 17 he left the paternal roof and started out to make a fortune for himself. His first employment away from home was in the town of Kent. Here he went to work as an apprentice in a general merchandise store, receiving the munificent salary of $5 per month for the first year, including his board and clothes. For the second year the future millionaire was given a raise of $2 per month, and the third year he was drawing the handsome income of $120 per year, payable monthly.

At the expiration of his three years apprenticeship to the general store business young Fife removed to the town of Norwood where he embarked in business for himself. He was successful in this venture, and while living in Norwood met and married Miss Harriet A. Johnson, to whose wise counsels he attributes much of his success in life. In the spring of 1862, when the Cariboo gold excitement was attracting the attention of every one, Mr. Fife, with a number of others, set out for the mines, leaving his family in Norwood. He remained in the mines three years, where good luck attended his efforts, returning to Canada in the spring of 1865 with a generous quality of yellow dust. During the early part of 1865 he removed with his family to Vassar, Mich., where he embarked again in mercantile pursuits. Here he remained five years and then removed farther west, locating at Cherokee, Ia. He built the first store in Cherokee and was one of the first settlers to locate where the prosperous city now stands.

Leaving his family in Cherokee, Mr. Fife again turned his steps westward in 1873. He came to Puget Sound on a prospecting trip and was here when the Northern Pacific Railroad Company selected Tacoma as the terminus of its line. Realizing the future advantages and possibilities of the great north-west, Mr. Fife at that time selected several pieces of property, which had not as yet been placed on sale, and started back to Iowa for his family. On Saturday, April 26, 1874, at 6 o'clock in the evening, Mr. Fife, his wife, five children and two servants landed in the future metropolis of the Puget Sound country.

"We stopped in what was then known as Blackwell's hotel," said Mr. Fife in speaking of his arrival, "that long, low building at the wharf now used by the Northern Pacific as a depot and office building. It was 6 o'clock Saturday night when we reached town and the following Tuesday we took dinner in our house. You would hardly call it a house now, but it was somewhat of a mansion in those days. It was a little, one-storey shack, 18x24 feet, standing on the corner of Pacific avenue and Ninth street. There were nine of us sheltered beneath its roof until I could put up a large house, which I began without delay, building a two-storey frame directly in front of the shanty. This I used as a store and dwelling combined. It was the first general merchandise store in Tacoma."

In July, 1874, Mr. Fife was made postmaster, using one corner of his store for the office. The first mail bag to arrive in Tacoma, coming by way of Portland, contained six letters, which were delivered to their respective owners by the postmaster's son, William, now Captain Fife. Mr. Fife held the office eight years, serving under four Presidents, Grant, Hayes, Garfield and Arthur. Since his arrival in Tacoma Mr. Fife's success has been of the phenomenal order. He invested steadily in real estate and held it until property was at the top notch. In this manner he was enabled to realize handsome returns on the investments. He pays as heavy taxes as any one man in the state, his fortune being estimated at between one and two millions. In 1888 he erected the Hotel Fife, a handsome and commodious five-storey brick structure, at a cost of $125,000, and having a frontage of 330 feet on Pacific avenue. Though not active in politics, Mr. Fife is a liberal republican, devoted to his family and business instead of to party issues. He has large landed properties in the city and is President of the Tacoma Coal Company, having bought a one-fourth interest in that concern in 1883. He is a trustee of the First M. E. church and occupies a similar position in the management of the Puget Sound university.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY YLVANUS COBB, JR.

"And this is the end of life!" he murmured to himself as he paced slowly to and fro across the dungeon. "Thus ends all the hopes of youth, and here the prayers of a lifetime must close in one last hope—one hope of heaven when earth has passed away! My mother, no farewell can reach thee from the lips of thy son. He will lie down in the dark slumber of death, and thou shalt not know his resting-place! And thou, loved one—oh, thou fondly cherished, wildly worshipped being, thy smiles can shine no more for me! Oh, Rosalind, would that I could see thee but once—that once more I might press thee to my bosom, and bid thee remember me when I am gone. Had I never seen thee I might not be here now! And yet, oh God, for life itself I would not wipe away the written story of that holy love from my heart!"

The thought of Rosalind came heavily upon him. All else he could give up in a higher hope than that of earth; but for her he held a strange fear. She would be another's.

"And must it be so?" he continued, after some minutes of painful reflection. "Alas! she will be nothing to me hereafter! My mother will know her son, but Rosalind will know another! And yet—she may carry the old love with her always. She may never forget it. Oh, could I but once—"

He stopped suddenly, for he heard a footfall in the low passage close by the dungeon. He listened, and he heard more. There were several feet—and soon he heard voices. He moved back to the extremity of the vault and listened. The feet stopped, and the sound of grating iron, like the drawing of a bolt, was heard. Soon afterwards the door was opened, and the light from a lantern flashed into the place. For a few moments the prisoner was blind by the sudden transition, but by degrees he overcame the difficulty, and was able to look up.

The first object upon which his eyes fell was the humpbacked priest, Savotano. There were four others behind him, but Ruric noticed them not. He saw before him the man whom he believed to be the instrument of his suffering, and with one bound he reached him, and felled him to the floor.

"Hold!" cried one of the others—one who held the lantern—"we have come to conduct thee out from here."

"Ha! Say ye so?"

"Most surely we have."

"Then stand aside and let me go."

"Just as you say. The doors are open, and you may go in advance."

"Then lead on," returned Ruric, "and I will follow."

"As you say."

Thus speaking the man assisted the priest to his feet, and led him out from the cell. In a few moments more the others went out also, and Ruric prepared to follow. He heard the priest cursing, but he noticed that one of the others led him off. The youth stepped forth into the passage, but he did not place the fullest confidence in what he had heard. He reached the foot of the stairs, and the others were nearly up. He started to follow them, and had nearly gained the top, when a quick, lightning-like shadow flitted before him. He would have started back, but 'twas too late. There came a blow upon his head, and with a dull, crashing sensation he sank down. He realized that he was turned over, and that a rope was being lashed about his arms.

But the prisoner had not been fully stunned. He returned to consciousness as they lifted him to his feet, and his first impulse was to try and force his bonds asunder, but this he could not do. He gazed up now, and he found only two men with him, and they wore masks upon their faces. They were stout, powerful men, and their very bearing was murderous, and his heart sank within him.

"Come," said one of them. "You'll go with us. We won't force you if you'll walk."

"But where?" asked the youth. "What mean you?"

"You'll see when you get there. But there's no time to waste; so come.

What could the prisoner do? His hands were firmly bound behind him, and his great strength availed not a bit. He knew that he could not resist, so he simply bowed his head in token of submission, and prepared to follow his conductors. But they left him not to follow at will. They took him by either arm, and thus led him away. He remembered the room into which he had been first conducted on the evening of his capture, but he was not detained there. For here a long corridor led off to where a wing of the building had been partly torn away, and they came to a large circular apartment, in the centre of which was a deep basin where, in years gone by, people had been wont to bathe. The walls looked grim and ragged by the feeble rays of the lantern, and the chill wind came moaning through the cracks and crevices in the decaying masonry.

"There," spoke one of the guides, as he set his lantern upon the top of the broken column; "we will stop here."

The words were spoken in a sort of hushed unmerciful tone, and Ruric felt them strike fearfully upon him. He gazed upon the man who had spoken, and he saw that he was preparing to throw off his pelisse, which he had thus far worn. As soon as this was off, he moved to where his companion stood, and commenced whispering.

Could Ruric mistake longer? What reason, but one, could there have been for bringing him to such a place? To the left, where the basin had once emptied itself, there was a dark, deep, cave-like place, at the mouth of which a heap of rubbish had collected. What a place in which to hide a dead body! So thought Ruric. But he was startled from the dark reverie by a darker reality.

One of the men had taken a club—a long heavy bludgeon which the youth had not before seen—and was just balancing it in one hand while he spat upon the other.

"You will not murder me here in cold blood!" uttered Ruric, starting back.

The stout ruffian clutched the club in both hands, but made no verbal answer.

"Speak! For God sake, answer me!" the prisoner exclaimed, starting back another pace. "Do you mean to murder me?"

"Why," answered the man with the club, in a cool, off-handed manner, "since you are so anxious to know, I'll tell you—You will die within a minute!"

"And you will take the life of one who never harmed you? Hold! If money be your object—"

"Stop," interrupted the villain. "You can't argue us out of it in that way. You've got to die, and the sooner you go the sooner you'll get over it. You won't suffer a bit if you don't go to kicking up a fuss. There now—If you hadn't bothered me 'twould have been all over by this time.

Oh! what would Ruric have given at that moment for the use of one of his arms? But that was beyond praying for. Yet he had his feet. He said nothing more, but he allowed the man to come within a few yards of him, and then he prepared for the only means of defence he had. The huge club was raised, and at that moment Ruric saw that the other man also had a club. He knew then that they had been concealed there until now.

"Hark!" uttered the second villain, just as his companion had raised his club. "What noise is that?"

"I suppose they're coming to see if we've finished the job," returned the other; "and, by the saints! we ought to have done it ere this. But they shall find it done!"

The ponderous club was raised again, and with a quick, decisive movement the man advanced. Ruric made a movement of the body as though he would bow his head to the stroke. Every nerve and muscle of his frame was set for the trial, and for the instant his heart stood still. Quick as thought his body bent—his right knee was brought almost to his chin—and then, with all the force he could command he planted his foot in the pit of the assassin's stomach. The effect was electrical. The wretch bent like a broken stick, and sank down without a single sign of life.

The second man uttered an oath and sprang forward with uplifted club, but Ruric dodged the blow, and then, as the thought for the first time flashed upon his mind, he darted to where the lantern stood and overturned it. He had noticed an open passage close at hand, which seemed to lead to some sort of a dressing room, and, guided by his memory alone, for it was now dark as Erebus there, he glided swiftly into it. When he knocked over the lantern he had upset column and all, and just as he reached the passage he heard a heavy fall, and he knew that his enemy had stumbled over the fallen column. He heard the curses, loud and deep, which dropped from the lips of the baffled man as he picked himself up, and in a moment more he was edified by a conversation between the two, for villain number one had revived, though the tone of his voice plainly indicated that he had a severe pain still lingering with him.

"Michael! Michael!" groaned number one; and as he spoke Ruric could hear him scrambling up on his feet.

"Hi, Orel," returned number two.

"Have ye dropped him?"

"No!" cried Michael, with a curse which we do not choose to transcribe. "He's a perfect devil!"

A FAR-REACHING STRIKE.

That is the Prospect Ahead of the Vanderbilt Roads.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Up to 4 o'clock this afternoon Messrs. Sweeney and Sargeant had not arrived here and it is supposed they are in Albany in conference with General Manager Toucey of the Central road. If, as is reported, the railroad company has reinstated the railroad men at Buffalo who are members of the United Order of Railway Employes the federation of railroad employes would have no grievance against the Central, and the matter would have to be fought out between the Knights of Labor and the railroad. Mr. Powderly left the St. Cloud Hotel early this morning and has not returned. He is supposed to be in conference with local labor leaders.

Frank Allen of Tarrytown applied for work this morning as a section hand on the road and was sent to the Sixty-fifth-street yard. He was set upon there by strikers and beaten within an inch of his life. He was sent back to Tarrytown.

The following is forwarded by request: "A statement has been sent to Albany and along the line of this road that I expressed indifference this morning as to whether the firemen in our employ went out on a strike or not and that I alleged that I had plenty of men to fill their places. There is not a word of truth in the statement and I would thank you to insert this denial in your news columns.

H. WALTER WEBB, 3d Vice-President.

The threatened tie-up on the New York Central had not occurred up to midnight tonight. During the afternoon the leaders were inactive and could not do anything pending the arrival of Messrs. Sargeant and Sweeney. At 9 o'clock this evening these two gentlemen called secretly on Vice-President Webb and had a conference with him. Webb afterwards said he intimated to them his willingness to pass the matter over. He told Sargeant that his discretion in not precipitating a strike was fully appreciated. Webb refused to say what had been the result of the conference. Sweeney and Sargeant then adjourned to confer with the other delegates over the situation.

The conference of K. of L. leaders and Chiefs Sargeant and Sweeney at the St. Cloud Hotel lasted until a late hour this evening. Vice-President Webb and Supt. Voorhis spent the night at the Grand Central depot awaiting developments. The conference ended about 11 p.m. No conclusion was reached and another meeting will be held in the morning. Messrs. Powderly, Hayes, Holland, Wright, Sweeney, Sargeant, Howard and Wilkinson were the confreres.

At midnight the indications are that a strike far reaching in its lines will be inaugurated in the morning upon all the railroads in the great Vanderbilt system.

ALBANY, Aug. 19.—There are no new developments in the situation of the strikers in this vicinity to-night.

KNIFED IN A DRUNKEN ROW.

Walter Gable of Tilbury Township, Stabs Frank Dimond.

WINDSOR, Aug. 19.—Sunday night, during a drunken altercation in the Middle-road in Tilbury Township, Walter Gable stabbed Frank Dimond in the right leg, making a serious wound. Constable Lindsay tried to arrest Gable but the latter escaped. Lindsay, however, caught him yesterday and brought him to Windsor. This morning Magistrate Bartlett remanded the prisoner for eight days.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face (erysipelas), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued used for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude,
(Rev.) WM. CRAELMAN, York Corner, Me.

PASSED UNDER THE ROD.

THREE CENTRAL PRISON CONVICTS AT THE WHIPPING POST.

The Men Convicted of Assaulting a Guelph Salvation Lassie Receive Their Second Dose of the Cat—Attempted to Poison Her Grandchildren.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—At the Central Prison yesterday three convicts received ten lashes from the cat. The culprits were William Turnbull, William Leader and Frederick Sheady, and they were convicted of a criminal assault on Elizabeth Richardson, an officer of the Salvation Army at Guelph. They were tried before Judge Drew and sentenced to two years' imprisonment with hard labor and three floggings of ten lashes each. Two of the criminals were married men. Since the conviction there has been a rumor that the character of the woman was not so high as it was first believed to be, and there has been some sympathy shown for the convicts, who it is believed might have had a more lenient sentence had all the facts in the case been elicited. The first to receive the lashes was William Turnbull, aged 27. He had been securely strapped to the whipping post. When last whipped he only laughed as the blows of the cat fell. A medium-sized guard stood by to administer punishment. The prisoner's body quivered, but beyond emitting an occasional "Oh!" he kept his teeth closed and preserved silence, and when released from the post smiled pleasantly and whistled a comic song. William Leader next received his sentence. He is a man of 28, of dissipated appearance. He displayed no emotion. He received the lashes with the greatest calmness, though blood was drawn at the second stroke. When he was unstrapped he walked sullenly to his cell without saying a word. Frederick Sheady, aged 25, was the last to receive punishment. He looked weaker than his companions in crime and misfortune, and the few spectators showed sympathy with him. This may have caused the blows of the guard to fall more lightly upon him than the others. In spite of this he shrieked and wept like a child at the first lash.

After four hours' deliberation the coroner's jury which investigated the Brock-avenue fatality returned this verdict at 2¼ o'clock this morning: "That the said Patrick Dowling came to his death on Aug. 1, 1890, at Brock-avenue crossing, by being struck by the engine of train No. 10 of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the train being run at a higher rate of speed than allowed by law, and from all the facts of the case we believe that Thomas Tait, general superintendent of the Ontario Atlantic division, who authorised time table No. 5, was the cause of the death of the said Patrick Dowling, and therefore the said Thomas Tait is guilty of manslaughter." Charles Mutart, one of the jurymen, refused to sign the verdict. There were twelve who signed. The jury retired at 10¼ and were out 4 hours. Coroner Lynd issued a warrant at an early hour this morning for the arrest of Supt. Tait.

A daring attempt was made by an old woman, Mrs. Steadman by name, to poison her two grandchildren, aged 5 and 8 years, at Little York. The children and father live with the grandmother, as their mother is serving a term in the Mercer Reformatory. Their name is Carruthers. Yesterday Mrs. Steadman is alleged to have spread Paris green over the children's bread under the butter, but the eldest boy was afraid to eat it, having been warned against meddling with the poison, and the woman gave it to the younger one, but the elder would not let him touch it. When their father came home the little ones told him what had occurred, and the woman admitted it and threatened to give him some too. She was arrested and brought before J. W. Ropwood, J.P., on a charge of attempted poisoning, and was remanded till Tuesday.

Mr. H. N. Baird, vice-president of the Board of Trade, telegraphed yesterday from Winnipeg to Secretary Wills to the effect that the Manitoba crops had been uninjured by frost and that harvesting was now general, though the farmers were short handed. The only damage done was by the recent hailstorm.

The Minister of the Interior Talks.

OTTAWA, Aug. 20.—Hon. E. Dewdney returned to the city to-day from a trip, partly for business and partly for pleasure, to Manitoba, the Northwest and British Columbia, having gone as far as the Pacific coast. Speaking of the crop prospects, Mr. Dewdney says that everywhere he went in Manitoba and the Northwest the crops were excellent. The harvest was general when he left, and there was an entire absence of frost. It was estimated by good judges that there were 900,000 acres in wheat this year in Manitoba and the Northwest. The general impression was that it would yield 25 bushels to the acre, or about 22,500,000 bushels in all Of oats, barley and peas there was also a large yield.

To Move the Crops.

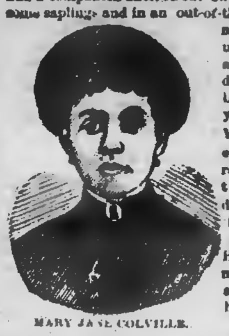
MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—The Canadian Pacific Railway has given out contracts for a thousand box cars to be ready the first week in October for the purpose of adequately moving the season's crops. The contract has been divided among all the car works in Canada to ensure prompt delivery. The amount involved is considerably over $500,000.

BLOOMSBURG'S MYSTERY.

TRACKING THE MURDERER OF MARY COLVILLE.

Corydon Smith Accused of the Crime—The Prisoner Committed for Trial—Farmer Kitchen's Persistent Search and Its Outcome.

SIMCOE, Aug. 20.—Three miles north of this staid town, which is the capital of the flourishing county of Norfolk, in the township of Townsend, is a cedar swamp. Few persons ever enter it, so dense are the trees, while rank grasses and tangled brambles grow all about. The thicket is known as "Culver's Swamp." On June 5, 1885, a son of the owner, William Culver, and a companion entered the swamp to cut some saplings and in an out-of-the-way corner stumbled upon the dead and terribly decomposed body of a young girl. When they essayed to raise the body the head dropped from the trunk. Coroner Hayes was notified and an inquest held. The post-mortem established the fact that the body was all that remained of a once beautiful girl, as gay as the gayest in life, but murdered as foully as any victim of man's ruthless villainy in this world. Lying alongside the unturfed and unmonumented lifeless clay were a cap and a shawl, which had been worn by the victim, and she was well, not to say richly, dressed. By the clothing the remains were recognized as those of Mary Jane Colville, daughter of a respectable resident of Caledonia.



MARY JANE COLVILLE.

The post-mortem revealed further that the woman had been dead some months, and that in three months would have become a mother. Suspicions of all kinds were rife at the time, but no evidence inculpating any person was procurable, and the jury returned an open verdict that the deceased came to her death at the hands of some person or persons unknown. So the matter rested and was apparently forgotten. But fate, the fate that stalks after the taker of human life by day and by night with the motto: "Murder will out"—fate decreed the exposure of the murderer.

Lemuel Kitchen, a farmer in the neighborhood, had his own opinion of the guilty party and has never tarried of his search for evidence to bring the murderer within the meshes of that law which moves with slow tread but strikes with an iron heel. About six months after the discovery of the body the magistrates of the county of Norfolk induced the Ontario Government to offer a reward of $250 for the discovery of the murderer, but they did not send up an officer to investigate. Farmer Kitchen, however, never for a moment relinquished his search, and after five weary years has, it is claimed, unravelled the whole facts of the case, and a man is now awaiting his trial in Simcoe jail charged with the commission of an atrocious double crime. It is a story beginning with the old, old chapter of a beautiful girl's folly and fall; of betrayal by a conscienceless scoundrel; of his unfeeling attempt to cover up the consequences of his selfishness. Commonplace, so far, you say. But where can you find the man who, after administering the drug and finding the dead body of his victim the fatal evidence of failure, will, even under the blackest midnight, drive back to the house where his inhuman work was done, load the corpse upon his shoulder, carry it downstairs into the road and, dumping it into his buggy, drive 18 miles with his ghastly burden and deposit it in an unfrequented spot, where through fortuitous Providence it was found, though only a remnant of mangled humanity, six months later! We hear of no case the parallel of this, yet such in part is alleged to be the story of the beautiful girl whose poor, frail body was found by William Culver that 5th of June. Add to that the foolish girl-friend who has all these years concealed the secret of her friend's death and the outline of the tragedy is complete.

There is intense excitement all through the locality. Smith has been conducting a store at Hagersville of late and it was there he was arrested. On being taken into custody he is reported to have remarked that he "did not know anything about the case." Several hypotheses have been advanced as to the manner in which the girl met her death. One is that the drug administered was too strong and she died from the effects, and in order to hide his crime Smith carried her to the swamp; another was that the "drug" was poison. Smith may be able to disprove all these statements at the trial and may be perfectly innocent of crime, but the facts tend to show that leading up to that mangled corpse, hiden away among the Norfolk cedars, is the evidence of a tragedy as boldly carried out as the most fantastic scheme of murder in a French tale.

The murdered girl was 20 years of age. While living with her parents at Caledonia, it is claimed, she became acquainted with a man named Cardinal Smith. The latter was an orphan who had been raised by a farmer near the village of Bloomsburg, 1½ miles from the swamp. Whether justly or not, he was given the reputation of being very fast. He was suave and attentive and Miss Colville fell desperately in love with him. She was tempted and she fell. In the course of time her condition became apparent to the neighbors. Society barred the door of its heaven upon the outcast, and the virtuous pharisees passed her by with averted eyes and garments drawn aside. Smith finally induced her to leave her home, so her mother says, and placed her in a house of ill-fame near the village of Langton, where she was known to the other inmates under the name of Lizzie Buck.

Among the inmates was a young girl not quite 15 years of age, but now a married woman, still residing in the locality. It was the testimony of this modern Magdalene that led to Smith's arrest. She states that he frequently came to see Miss Colville, and that her companions understood from her, as well as from admissions of Smith, that he was the father of Mary's unborn child. She frequently urged him to marry her and to save her from a life that is worse than death. But Smith had no chords of human sympathy to touch, and told his victim that "if she did not do better he would have to send her away," whatever that indicated. One night in the winter of 1884-5, whether the latter part of December or the first week in January the witness could not remember, but it was the night of the first snowfall, Smith called at the house. He subsequently went to the village of Langton, and returned with a bottle, which he said contained medicine. He asked Miss Colville to take it, and she demurred, and seating herself on the stairs commenced crying. Smith then, with an oath, rushed over to her and forced it down her throat. He then ordered the remainder of the inmates to go to bed, and they did so. That was the last seen of Mary Colville in life. Next morning early the witness was looking out of the window, and saw Smith drive in towards the house. The horse looked as if it had been driven a long way and was very tired. She went to Mary's room to inform her, but the girl was missing.

The evidence of Smith's Nemesis served to corroborate the story of the girl. Lemuel Kitchen, on a night which corresponds with that mentioned by the girl, saw a man and woman seated in a buggy driving furiously in the direction of the swamp, in order to reach which from Langton Smith would have to drive 18 miles. Kitchen took the man for the accused at the time, hence the firmness of his conviction that he was the guilty party.

At the trial, before Magistrate Kitchen, the evidence as outlined above was given. The warrant charges Cardinal Smith with having, on or before Jan. 4, 1885, feloniously murdered Mary Jane Colville. The prisoner is about 35, short in stature, with sandy hair and mustache, light complexion, and would be taken for a man who led a fast life. His counsel, Mr. E. Tisdale of Tisdale & Reid, Simcoe, cross-examined the principal witness at some length, but failed to shake her evidence in the slightest degree. She identified a picture produced and the clothing and jewelry found on the dead body as those of Mary Colville. The latter's mother also recognized the clothing.

On this testimony the accused was committed to jail to the Fall Assizes, which will open before Mr. Justice Rose on Monday, Oct. 20.

The prisoner Smith bears a most unsavory record. Some years ago he was a candy butcher on the Grand Trunk loop line and resided at St. Thomas, where he was accused of conducting a disreputable house and was run out of the city. Subsequently he conducted a similar establishment near Tilsonburg and was fined several times. Afterwards he came to Norfolk and conducted houses of ill-fame in various places, including the one in which Mary Colville is supposed to have met her death. One house became such a nuisance that it was set on fire by indignant neighbors and burned to the ground. Smith was afterwards arrested for criminally assaulting his own daughter and was sentenced to the lash, receiving the punishment in Cayuga jail.

THE BURCHELL CASE.

Array of Legal Talent—The Defence Confident of Acquittal.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 20.—As the time approaches for the trial of J. Rex Burchell for the murder of Frederick C. Benwell the interest in the case grows keener. There can be no doubt that, great as was the place in the public attention gained by this affair on the first publication of the circumstances and the preliminary trial, it was nothing compared with what it will be before the trial is over.

The Crown is represented in the working up of the case by County Crown Attorney Ball, who will appear also at the trial as the regular Crown counsel at the assizes. Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., whose reputation as a criminal lawyer is unequalled, will be senior counsel. The Attorney-General, who is officially the representative of the Crown in the assizes, will be specially represented by his deputy, Mr. John R. Cartwright. The working up the details of the case is intrusted to Provincial Detective John Murray, a man of first-class ability and long experience.

On the other side the case was entrusted in the first place to Mr. Hellmuth, of Messrs. Hellmuth & Ivey, of London. The defence is now represented on the ground by Messrs. Finkle, McKay & McMullen, of Woodstock, and the senior counsel at the trial will be Mr. George T. Blackstock, of Toronto, one of the strongest men at the bar. The collection of evidence in the interest of the defence has been undertaken by Detective Bluett, of Toronto, whose name in connection with detective work is well-known throughout the Province.

The line of defence is a subject of general speculation. Those who favor Burchell's side seem to feel confident of the result of the trial, basing their confidence apparently upon the tone of the people engaged in the defence. Detective Bluett says he is confident there can be no adverse verdict, but what the line of the defence is to be he naturally does not announce. One thing is pretty clear, however—there will be no attempt to prove an alibi and the case will go upon the merits of the evidence collected by the two sides. Mr. McKay, one of the prisoner's solicitors, complains of difficulties thrown in his way by the people on the Crown side. On Monday after a long-continued effort, he says, he was allowed to examine the clothes taken from the murdered man. He declares that they have not been properly handled; that if the case depended upon proving the condition of the clothes, and no witnesses were at hand to establish the case, it would be impossible to learn the truth from the creased and ill-kept mass of fabric now in possession of the Crown. It is understood, however, that whatever point is to be made out of the condition and appearance of the clothes will be established in the mouths of the witnesses who viewed the body before it was disturbed.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE.

Past Grand Master Fitzgerald Watched and Chained—Reports Presented.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Aug. 20.—At the session of the Orange Grand Lodge this morning various reports were received and routine business transacted. Past Grand Master W. W. Fitzgerald of Ontario West was presented by Grand Lodge with a gold watch and chain, as customary on the retirement of a grand master. Rev. C. A. Berry, grand chaplain and grand organizer of Ontario West, was appointed a delegate by the Grand Lodge to travel through Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island and deliver lectures on the order.

These officers were elected:

Grand Master—Clarke Wallace, M.P., Woodbridge, Ont.

Deputy Grand Master—E. F. Clarke, Toronto.

Grand Secretary—Robert Birmingham, Toronto.

Grand Lecturer—James Kelly, St. John.

Gen. Middleton's Defence.

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—General Sir Fred Middleton, before leaving Canada, issued an address to the people of Canada. He says that in the Bremner fur matter he acted under a wrong impression of his powers, and of course he regrets the mistake. The general says that he issued orders against plundering on the march. Personally he never received any of the furs. He concludes with a refutation of the charge that he failed to do justice to his companions-in-arms by furnishing a list of the decorations and promotions which he recommended.

The City of Windsorwich.

WINDSOR, Aug. 20.—At the next session of the Ontario Assembly Sol. White, M.L.A., will introduce a bill to incorporate the united towns of Windsor and Sandwich as a city. The population of the combination is about 15,000.

Knocked Out By Whisky.

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—George Wright, an evangelist, came to this city about two weeks ago from Maidstone Cross. Mr. Wright was a man who once in a while took a glass of whisky, not for the idea of getting intoxicated, but for his health. After taking a few drinks Wright wandered about the street and was run over by an omnibus in front of G. and R. McMillan's grocery. He was picked up and taken to Harper's hospital, where his wounds were treated, and a few days afterward was discharged.

Sunday he fell down in an epileptic fit and was again taken to the hospital, but after working on his case the doctors pronounced it hopeless, and he died yesterday. The remains were taken to Blake's morgue and were taken in charge by a friend of Wright's, who conveyed them to his home in Canada. Wright was a single man and was to have preached at Essex Centre last Sunday. He has wealthy relatives in Scotland.

THE N.Y. CENTRAL STRIKE.

IT WILL BE FOUGHT TO THE BITTER END.

All Efforts at Negotiation Prove Fruitless—Powderly to Issue an Appeal to the K. of L. on all the Vanderbilt Lines—The Company's Stand.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Mr. Powderly and Mr. Devlin of the Executive Board of the K. of L. called on Vice-President Webb at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Toucey was with Mr. Webb and the four gentlemen had an interview which lasted 20 minutes. At the conclusion Mr. Powderly told the reporters what had taken place. Mr. Devlin asked Mr. Webb if he would consent to an investigation of the causes surrounding the discharge of the 15 men. Mr. Webb answered that there was nothing to investigate, that the railway company were managing the road and he did not see why their actions should be questioned. Mr. Devlin then asked him if he did not owe the public and the employes of the road any duty regarding its management, in which all were more or less interested.

Mr. Webb did not reply.

Mr. Devlin then said there was no use in further discussing the matter, as the railway company had declared themselves in favor of an independent course.

Mr. Toucey then said that Master Workman Lee was primarily responsible for the strike. Mr. Devlin asked Mr. Toucey if he would waive the question of Mr. Lee's action and consider the discharge of the other men. Messrs. Toucey and Webb refused and that ended the conference.

The situation looks serious to-night and the indications are that a general strike is imminent.

General Master Workman Powderly will to-morrow issue an appeal to all true K. of L. in the employ of the Central-Hudson Railway and upon the Vanderbilt connecting lines. In the document he will state the causes for the strike and the efforts made to obtain a peaceable settlement of the difficulties and notify every member of the intention of the executive board of the K. of L. to prosecute the fight against the Central-Hudson to the bitter end.

Mr. Powderly states that the strike has ceased to be one of a local assembly and has become one of the whole organization, and it will use every means in its power to continue the fight. He intimates that the Federation of Railway Employes will support the movement. The situation is serious.

Grand Master Sargent, president of the council and chief of the firemen's organization, has ordered a meeting of the supreme council of the federation of railway employes at 9 a.m. Saturday morning at Terre Haute, Ind., for the consideration of the New York Central strike.

Mr. Powderly to-night gave out a statement of the interview this afternoon with Vice-President Webb and Superintendent Toucey. The statement says: This morning Mr. Powderly and Mr. Devlin waited upon Mr. Toucey at his office for the purpose of endeavoring to bring about a settlement of the trouble. Mr. Toucey absolutely refused to entertain any proposition looking toward arbitration or an investigation of the cause of the discharge of the men. During the afternoon the same gentlemen waited upon Mr. Webb in order as stated by the executive board of the K. of L., to give the company every opportunity to bring the strike to an end. In the interview they had with the third vice-president, Messrs. Powderly and Devlin repeated the offer which the K. of L. have made from the beginning, that they would declare the strike off if the company would submit the case of the discharged men to the investigation of disinterested outside parties on the understanding that if it should be shown that there was no cause for the discharge of any men other than their connection with the K. of L., such men should be reinstated in their positions, the representatives of the K. of L. agreeing to bind themselves to abide by the decision or finding of the investigators.

Mr. Webb positively refused to agree to this request in the interest of peace. Mr. Powderly even went so far as to ask Mr. Webb, in view of the conflicting statements of the men and the company's officials if he would consent to meet the discharged men and allow him (Mr. Powderly) to question them in Mr. Webb's presence upon the charges of the company against them. Mr. Webb refused to entertain even this proposition. Mr. Toucey, who came into the room during the interview, reiterated the oft made statement that they would insist upon the right to discharge any of their employes without assigning a reason for doing so, and that they would not admit of any labor organization or committee of such organization to intervene in the matter.

Being asked if they took the position that a railway was property of the company and that neither the employes of the company nor the public had any right to question the management, they hesitated and at last took refuge in a silence which the representatives of the K. of L. determined to break. The latter said that if it was the policy of the company to maintain that they would admit that neither the public nor employes of the road had any right in the premises it was useless to waste time or words on the matter, and shortly after withdrew

A reporter at 11 p.m. roused Messrs. Webb and Voorhees from their beds at the Grand Central depot. They granted him an interview clad only in their night clothes. When told that a general strike over the whole system would be declared to-night or in the morning and that the strike meant all employes but engineers, Mr. Webb appeared somewhat startled. Neither he nor Mr. Voorhees made any comment thereon.

Mr. Powderly to-night said that in his appeal to the mechanics and other employes of the Central-Hudson system and connecting lines he will call upon them to stop work at once.

In the Grand Central depot are encamped 75 firemen and the same number of switchmen, supposed to be there to provide for any emergency.

Charles Oswald, a young New York Central brakeman, was seen alive sitting on his brake at Spuyten Duyvil this afternoon. When the train rolled into the yard at 72d-street at 5 p.m. he lay dead on his car with a dent, as if made by a brick, behind his ear.

Samuel Campbell, a non-union switchman, was assaulted near his home this evening and hit on the head with a stone.

The Tribune says a formal strike will undoubtedly not be ordered by the Executive Board before Saturday.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

Indications of an Unusually Successfully Exhibition—Special Attractions.

As the date of the opening of the sixth Central Exhibition approaches the prospects for a successful show grow brighter, and the indications at present are that this year's exhibition will be away ahead of that of former years, both in exhibits and special attractions. With a commendable spirit of enterprise the directors are making unusual efforts in this direction, and it is hoped and confidently expected that these efforts will be crowned with success. Merchants and citizens of the town generally, as well as the farming community, should not forget the dates, September 24th to 26th, but on the contrary should make preparations to aid in any way possible the directors in their endeavors to hold a good exhibition.

The first day as usual will be occupied in arranging exhibits, etc., and on the second day it is expected that Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, Canada's Premier, will be present and formally open the Exhibition. Special attractions are being provided, among others being the speeding in the ring, for which valuable prizes will be offered. In trotting there are three purses: Farmers' prize of $60; hotel keepers' prize of $150, and the citizens' prize of $80. In running there will be a gentlemens' prize of $100, and the brewery cup to be contested for. Liberal prizes will also be offered for Irish jig, clog and step dancing, a platform and music being provided. On the second day among the chief attractions will be the grand tournament of Caledonian games and athletic sports which has been arranged under the management of the St. Andrew's Society. This will be a gala day and the programme, which is an exceptionally good one, is sure to prove a drawing card. On the third day among other attractions, a squad of men from the 57th Battalion will give an exhibition of physical drill, bayonet and sword exercise, under command of Sergt.-Major Bundle. The band will be in attendance and nothing will be allowed to lag.

The inducements in the shape of prizes which are offered to exhibitors are also ahead of former years. The prize list has been largely increased, and $5,000 will be given away in prizes.

Reduced fares have been secured on the railways and steamers so that there will be every facility for the crowd coming in on the occasion.

To make this year's exhibition a grand and unparalled success has been the object of the directors, and they should be supported. The presence of the Premier to open the exhibition is sure to attract a big crowd, and once here the people can be held.

All entries are to be made by Saturday, Sept. 20th., with the secretary, Mr. Wm. Collins, at Wm. J. Green's tailor store, 145 Hunter-st. The books will be closed on Monday, 22nd September.

The Cricket Match Off.

The cricket match which was to have been played here to-morrow between the local eleven and the Toronics has been declared off, word having been received that the Torontos could not get a team together to come. This is a disappointment, but it is not the first one which the same club has caused here. A visit is promised early in October.

Youthful Baseballists Successful.

A juvenile baseball nine from Campbellford came up on the excursion yesterday and contested for supremacy on the diamond with a local nine of youthful baseballists. The game was played on the Riverside Park and resulted in the visiting boys being defeated by a score of 21 to 9. The rising generation in Peterborough has some baseballists among it. The score of yesterday's game was as follows:—

Gough Bros. Baby Show.

One of the biggest attractions at the Peterboro Central Exhibition will be the baby show in the clothing department of Gough Bros, the wonderful cheap men, in the main exhibition building. A study of the registrar general's books show that there have been an unusual number of babies produced this year, therefore there will be a big competition—lots of babies and lots of fun—anxious mothers, doting fathers and critical old maids. The sum of $25 will be devoted to prizes—a ten dollar suit of clothes to the father of the winning baby, a ten dollar cashmere dress to the proud mother of the champion cherub and $5 to the champion cherub itself. Don't let this great feature of the great exhibition escape your memory, it will be worth all the rest of the show put together. The exhibition baby show of Gough Bros. is a permanent feature of the Central Exhibition. There are already a score or more of competitors mentioned, so that the coming baby show will be the greatest of all. Great are the Goughs, and the baby shows in their goods. 2442-1w34

FOR THE SUNDAY DINNER.

SOME GOOD THINGS FROM WHICH HOUSEKEEPERS MAY CHOOSE.

Some Made Dishes Which Have Had the Approval of Experience—A Recipe for Koumiss—Roast Chicken, with Chestnut Stuffing—Broiled Veal Cutlets

In order to have a fine piece of beef cooked to perfection, with all its juices retained, purchase from a first-class butcher only, a three-rib piece near the short loin part. Saw off the spine, also the bones of the three ribs, to one inch from the meat, so as to have it as nearly cylindrical as possible. Season with one and a quarter pinches of salt, divided equally all over, tie it together and place it lengthwise in a roasting pan. Pour a tablespoonful and a half of water into the pan. A few very small bits of butter can be distributed on top of the beef, if so desired. Set it in a rather moderate oven and let it roast for one hour and ten minutes, taking care to baste frequently in its own gravy. Remove it from the oven, untie and dress it on a very hot dish, skim the fat from the gravy and pour in two tablespoonfuls of broth, heat up a little, strain the gravy into a sauce-bowl and send to the table.

The parings from the beef can be utilized for soup stock; nothing need be wasted.

TRIPE A LA MODE DE CAEN.

Take one raw, double tripe, one ox foot, three calves' feet, all well washed and cleansed several times in fresh water, cutting them in pieces two inches long by one square. Have an earthen pot or a saucepan; put pieces of feet at the bottom: cover over with tripe, then a layer of sliced carrots and onions, and continue in this manner until the vessel is full, carefully seasoning each layer. Tie in a cloth a sprig of thyme, two bay leaves, twelve whole peppers and six cloves; put this in the middle of the pot, throw over a bottleful of cider or white wine and a pony of brandy; lay on the top the stalks of some green leeks, parsley roots and cabbage leaves; cover, and fasten it down with paste, so that the steam cannot escape, and leave it for about ten hours in a very slow oven. Take it from the oven and serve when required.

BROILED VEAL CUTLETS.

Cut six even veal cutlets from a fine piece of the loin of white veal, pare them and flatten them on a dish, and season with a tablespoonful of sweet oil. Turn the cutlets around several times, then put them on the broiler to broil for eight minutes on each side. Remove them from the fire, arrange them on a hot dish and send them to the table.

LOIN OF VEAL, ROASTED.

Saw from a fine, white, fresh and fat loin of veal with the kidney the spine and whatever hip bone remains. Season the loin with a tablespoonful and a half of salt and one heaped tablespoonful of pepper, roll the flank part neatly over the kidney and tie with a string.

Have ready a lightly buttered roasting pan. Lay in it the loin; pour in half a tumbler of water and distribute a few bits of butter over the meat. Then cover its entire length with a piece of well-buttered paper. Place the pan in a moderate oven and roast for one hour and three-quarters, meanwhile basting it frequently with its own gravy. Take it out of the oven, untie it and place it on a hot serving dish. Add three tablespoonfuls of broth to the gravy in the pan, skim off the fat and reduce it to the consistency of a demi-glace sauce; then strain it through a collander, either over the roast or into a separate sauce bowl, and send it to the table immediately.

CALF'S HEAD, PLAIN.

Plunge a fine, fresh, white calf's head into hot water for one minute, lift it up, sharply rub it all over with a coarse towel, so as to remove all the remaining hairs. Carefully cut the flesh, starting from the centre of the head, right down to the nostrils. Then, with a very keen knife, bone it from the top to the base on both side. Place in a saucepan two tablespoonfuls of flour, one gill of vinegar, one medium-sized, well-cleaned, sliced carrot, one peeled onion, eighteen whole pinched peppers and two pinches of salt. Pour in very gradually two quarts of cold water, briskly stirring meantime until all is added. Cut up half of the head into six equal pieces; add them to the broth, as also the other whole half. Let all cook together on a moderate fire for one hour and a half. Lift up the pieces and half the head, place the six pieces on a dry napkin. Have ready a hot dish with a folded napkin over it, neatly dress the six pieces on it, decorate with parsley greens and serve with any desired sauce.

CHICKEN ROASTED PLAIN.

Singe, draw, wipe nicely and truss a fine chicken weighing three pounds. Cover it with a thin slice of thin fat pork and place it in a roasting-pan with two tablespoonfuls of broth. Spread a very little butter over the breast, sprinkle on half a pinch of salt and put it in the oven to cook for fifty minutes. Baste it frequently and arrange it on a hot dish, untie and decorate with a little watercress. Strain the gravy into a sauce bowl and send it to the table.

For chestnut stuffing, peel a good-sized, sound shallot, cut it up very fine, place in a sauce-pan on a hot range with one tablespoonful of butter and let it heat for three minutes without browning, then add a quarter of a pound of sausage meat. Cook five minutes longer, then add ten finely chopped mushrooms, twelve pounded, cooked, peeled chestnuts, mix all well together. Season with one pinch of salt, half a pinch of pepper, half a saltspoonful of powdered thyme, and a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley. Let it just come to a boil, then add half an ounce of fresh bread crumbs and twenty-four whole cooked and shelled fresh chestnuts; mix all well together, being careful not to break the chestnuts. Let the mixture cool off and then stuff the turkey with it.

HOW TO MAKE KOUMISS.

Here is a recipe for koumiss: Cow's milk, fresh, 22 fluid ounces; 60 minims of semi-liquid yeast; sugar, 1 Troy ounce. Dissolve the sugar in the milk, which should be placed in a strong bottle. Keep it at a temperature of 75 degrees to 90 degrees Fahrenheit for six hours. Then transfer it to a cold place. This will be found a delightful beverage and an excellent tonic.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

Cholera's Victims—Manning's Tribute to Cardinal Newman.

CAIRO, Aug. 20.—There have been 48 deaths from cholera at the quarantine station at Eltor since the pilgrims were interned.

At Mecca yesterday 10 deaths from cholera were reported, and at Jeddah nine.

A Cyclone in Switzerland.

BERNE, Aug. 20.—A cyclone swept through the canton of Vaud to-day doing immense damage. The villages of Lavalles and Ioux were devastated and whole forests were destroyed. Many persons were injured. The storm lasted three minutes.

Manning Eulogizes Newman.

LONDON, Aug. 20.—A requiem mass for the late Cardinal Newman was celebrated to-day in the Brompton Oratory. Cardinal Manning delivered an address. He said although it was too soon to measure fully the work of Newman it was certain no living man had so changed the religious thought of England. It was the inspiring genius of the tractarian movement that was shaping the Church of England into its present life. But for him rationalism would now reign supreme in the national religion.

Will Abandon His Visit.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The Figaro says the Count of Paris will probably abandon his projected visit to the United States, owing to the feeling here against the McKinley Bill.

Canadian Cattle.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—In connection with the departmental enquiry by the British Board of Trade and Agriculture in regard to the Atlantic cattle trade, information has been submitted on behalf of Canada showing that the statistics, the trade regulations of the Canadian Department of Agriculture and the inspections enforced render it impossible that anything of the kind alleged in Mr. Plimsoll's pamphlet could have taken place in respect of Canadian cattle.

Sir Charles Tupper has received 150 applications in response to letters inviting British farmers delegates to visit Canada. Nine or eleven will be selected, who will start two or three weeks hence.

PROMOTION OF FIREMEN.

The New Plan that is Being Introduced on the Grand Trunk.

STRATFORD, Aug. 20.—A new plan of promotion is being introduced amongst engineers, locomotive firemen and cleaners on the entire system of the Grand Trunk Railway throughout Canada, known and termed universal promotion. The first official requisition has already come from Mr. Wallis' office in Montreal, making an appeal for twenty-eight firemen. Those who are seniors in the employ of the road and wish to volunteer for the position of engineer can do so by filing their application with their locomotive foreman on or before Aug. 16, intimating the fact that said applicant is willing to be transferred to any one of the following locomotive stations: London, Hamilton, Toronto, Allandale, Lindsay, Montreal or Richmond. The enthusiasm created at Stratford locomotive station by this plan of universal promotion is very great, owing to the fact that heretofore no prospect at Stratford station offered for men on the left side of the engine. It was almost an established fact that the locomotive firemen employed at Stratford are nearly all senior men and long since eligible for promotion. Now that an equalization is offered about sixteen of the most prominent firemen at this station have filed applications with Mr. Naild, and in all probability applicants will be required to respond by moving to a call which will be issued from the superintendent's office in the course of a few days.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

A Cherry Valley Youth Cuts His Throat With a Razor.

DESERONTO, Aug. 20.—This morning a young man named George Cannon, who hails from Cherry Valley, Prince Edward County, created a sensation in town by attempting suicide by cutting his throat with a razor. The youth is 21 years of age and had been employed about town as a laborer. He lodged with B. Jandreau and seemed despondent of late. Upon arising this morning he took a razor and with one slash cut his wind-pipe open. Medical aid was summoned, when it was found that the wound was not necessarily fatal as the arteries had not been touched. Mental derangement is assigned as the cause.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

Youth and Age Both Called Away—Personal and Other News

Correspondence of the Review.

DEATHS.—It is our sad task to chronicle the death of Master P. Mahoney, son of Mr. Simon Mahoney, of Scott's settlement. The lad was ill only a few days and suffered severely. Dr. Harding, of Coe Hill, was in attendance continuously, but was unable to subdue the fires of inflammation. The body was followed to its last resting place by a cortege of sorrowing friends and relatives, who miss the quiet, manly little fellow from their circle....On the same day the remains of Mrs. Garrow, sr., were also laid to rest in their final earthly couch. The old lady had long ago passed her three score and ten years, and her demise was as the ceasing of spent machinery.

PERSONALS.—Mr. Marshall Anderson, of Tilsonburg, is visiting his home....Miss Anderson, of Buffalo, and Mr. Cooper, of Toronto, are enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson....Mr. Gilmour, of Armagh, Ireland, is prospecting our country in search of a home. He comes well recommended and we hope to see him added to our list of citizens.

THRESHING.—Messrs. Tucker are on the move with their mill and are taking advantage of a few days respite in harvesting to "clean out" some of their Burleigh patrons.

REMOVAL.—We regret that our genial friend, C. Daly, is about to remove his business. His geniality has always won friends for him, and we are certain it will do so in the future wherever he may locate.

BIRTH.—Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. M. McClure are in order on the arrival of a little stranger to grace their board. Mother and daughter are doing well.

Counterfeit Coin.

A new counterfeit ten cent piece is in circulation, an exchange says, which so closely resembles the genuine that it can easily be passed. It differs from the usual counterfeit in that a genuine silver plating covers the German silver which forms the body of the coin. This gives it a ring very nearly like that of good money and also does away with the greasy feeling by which counterfeits are detected. The coin bears the date of 1887. The milling is not so deep on the counterfeit and the edges are much sharper than those of a genuine coin.

Echoes from Stony Lake.

On Tuesday night Messrs. J. McMillan, Wm. Deacon and F. P. Martin, of Lindsay, arrived in Lakefield, after making the round trip from their home in their fine little oil-steamer, the Felix. They spent a couple of days at the lakes on the way around.

A man by the name of Judson, who was working at the American settlement, met with a painful accident. He was chopping a log when his hatchet slipped and struck him on the knee, inflicting a severe and painful wound.

Major Sloan, the American gentleman from New York, who has erected the large and handsome lodge at Boschink, went up on Tuesday night. His elegant summer residence was waiting in readiness to receive him.

A correspondent sends in the following, the weight of the fish being left evidently for the judgment of practised fishermen to figure on:—Lochiels camp broke up on the 14th inst., one of our party carrying off a treasure of the northern waters, a large maskinonge, the dimensions of which were: Length, 3 ft. 9 in., 3 in. between the eyes, 6 in. in thickness, and 4 in. across the shoulders. Mr. Edwards, of Warsaw, was the happy possessor. Mr. H. B. Anderson, of Apsley, drew one near enough to gaze with longing eyes upon it, when it bowed and disappeared. Mr. E Cooper, of Toronto, went on a tour through the northern country before returning to the city. Camp broke up none too soon, as provisions were done and the Cruiser was tired of her frequent trips up to Grubbe's Island with supplies, although, from appearances, we should say the party were none the worse for their month's outing.

The Riversides Defeated.

The lacrosse club met with defeat at Beaverton yesterday where they played the Checkers. A telegraphic report says:—"A large assemblage gathered on the Lake View grounds here to-day to witness the first match of the season for the Eastern District champion between the Riversides, of Peterborough, and the Checkers, of Beaverton. It resulted by five games to one in favor of the Checkers, who took the first, third, fourth, fifth and sixth games in ten, fourteen, eleven, ten and seven minutes respectfully. The Riversides scored the second game in 21 minutes. They went to Orillia to play to-day."

At the Police Court.

Patrick Lavery was slightly inebriated last evening and as the night wore on he became somewhat boisterous. As a result he was gathered in by Constable Adams and appeared at the Police Court this morning charged with having been drunk and disorderly. He was fined two dollars and costs, four dollars in all. Five young lads were charged with bathing in the Goose Pond, a public place. The Magistrate gave them a lecture and allowed them to go. Boys should exercise some judgment in selecting their bathing places or else some of them will find themselves behind the bars for a few days.

Good Programme.

AN EASY VICTORY.

The Peterborough vs. East Toronto Cricket Match—An Innings and 12 Runs.

Teams of the above clubs met at the Ashburnham grounds yesterday and the strangers suffered a complete defeat by an innings and 12 runs. The strangers won the toss, and not caring to repeat their mistake of the previous day at Campbellford, went to bat, Harrison and Chandler facing Attewell and Stratton. Harrison got all the first 7 runs made and then Stratton bowled him with a fine bailer. One of the East Toronto men, who was fielding for the home team, caught the veteran Captain of the E. T's at third man. England, after playing a grand ball from Attewell, had the misfortune to see it just touch his wicket; and Jordan, after five consecutive maiden overs, was beaten by Attewell, the 2nd, 3rd and 4th wickets all going down at 19. S. W. Smith got the only double figures of the innings, 11; although he batted in peculiar style, he got there all the same, and proved a difficult wicket to get in both innings. Nine wickets were down for 37, when our old friend, Ross Cameron, came in. It will be remembered that Ross was the only man that ever got over 100 runs against the Peterborough team, he having got 105 (not out) without a chance for the "Sawbones" in 1886. This time he played well for his 8, but one of Stratton's curly ones proved too much for him and he had to retire at 43, at which the innings closed.

The bowling of Attewell and Stratton was excellent, as was the fielding. A fine catch by Stratton at short-stop at the second attempt being especially noticeable.

Peterborough opened with Ray, and W. Hamilton against Ross Cameron and E. Smith. Hamilton was bowled in the former's second over, and the old "war horse," after being missed from a skier was easily taken in the slips, Hay going the subsequent ball. Stratton and Ray stood for some time till Ray was caught from one of his favorite leg draws, and Stratton and Attewell pulled the score with measurable distance of that of the strangers before Stratton fell a victim to Smith. The doctor hit "all round the shop" and rattled up 11 in short order, while Attewell before he was disposed of by Cameron had a fine string of 20 to his name, got by thoroughly good cricket. Stocker scored 9 in good shape, and then lunch intervened, the score standing 86 for 8 wickets. On resuming Scott got all the runs that were made, and the innings closed for 91.

East Toronto followed on, but were easily disposed of for 21, Attewell and Stratton being nearly unplayable. No one scored double figures and S. H. Smith was again the top scorer, this time with 8. Another grand catch by Stratton, this time at the fourth attempt, deserves notice.

The match was a very pleasant one, and the East Torontos are to be congratulated on the pluck they show in making so long a tour every year. Their captain, the veteran Mr. Chandler, is an enthusiast, and his club plays more matches than any other club in Toronto, and we look forward with pleasure to the return match in Toronto during the Toronto Fair.

The Tournament at Cobourg.

The Cobourg civic tournament was brought to a conclusion last evening. The visitors were well satisfied with the sports provided by the committee and the town had three days solid enjoyment. The yacht races drew the largest fleet of yachts that ever appeared at a regatta in Canada, thirty-two cutter sloops and schooners. In the evening the annual yacht club ball was held in the Opera house. The second day was devoted to horse races, $800 in prizes, Canton drill, $100, and baseball matches $150. Great interest was taken in the baseball matches on account of the presence of the Dauntless club of Toronto, champions of the amateur league, with their two crack batteries. Oshawa and Hastings were defeated the first day; and yesterday the Cobourgs and Toronto played first, the Cobourgs winning by the score 3 to 2. It was a good game, two extra innings having having to be played before the winning run came in. The Cobourgs then beat the Independents, another Cobourg club. The tournament wound up with the two Cobourg clubs first and second, Dauntless of Toronto third.

OPENED AND DEDICATED.

ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL READY FOR PATIENTS.

An Institution with a Broad, Liberal Platform—An Immense Assemblage of People of all Denominations—Some who Were Present on the Platform—Opening and Dedicatory Address of His Lordship Bishop O'Connor—Speeches by Prominent Gentlemen.

Reverend clergymen, members of parliament, leading members of the medical and legal profession, prominent citizens, town councillors, and an immense concourse of ladies and gentlemen of all denominations assembled at the St. Joseph's hospital yesterday afternoon to be present at the formal opening of that institution which has just been completed for the reception of those upon whom the hand of affliction may have fallen. The event was an important and memorable one in the history of the Roman Catholic church of this diocese, marking, as it does, the successful end of the energetic, laudable, generous and charitable efforts of the clergy of the diocese and people of the community. The project began two years ago when His Lordship Bishop Dowling laid the corner stone, has been carried to a successful finish, and yesterday afternoon saw an hospital, the doors of which will never be closed to any suffering mortal, dedicated and formally opened.

Nature smiled upon the occasion, the weather being faultless. The formal opening, while it was entirely without what might be called ceremony, was of a most interesting character, speeches of a very appropriate character being made by many of the prominent clergy and gentlemen present. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor's opening or dedicatory address, which is given in full, set forth the generous, broad and charitable platform upon which the institution is established and all the subsequent speakers expressed their admiration of the spirit which was thus exemplified.

Before the hands of the clock indicated 2.30, the hour which was mentioned in the invitations issued as the time for the commencement of proceedings, an immense assemblage of people had gathered at the hospital. The halls, corridors and wards were thronged by an inspecting multitude, and expressions of admiration and pleasure at the arrangements were heard on every hand. The Fire Brigade Band was in attendance and discoursed several selections while the crowds were viewing the building or, having done this, were enjoying the fresh breezes under the shade of the trees in the grove or on the verandahs or balconies. The intention had been to have the speaking in the men's ward, but the crowd was so great that it was decided to have the speaking outside. Accordingly the southern verandah was turned into a rostrum and the crowd gathered around to listen to the proceedings.

SOME WHO WERE THERE.

Their Lordships Bishop O'Connor and and Bishop Dowling, of Hamilton, occupied seats in the centre, while on either side of them were seated the clergy and prominent citizens. The clergy present were:—Archdeacon Campbell, Orillia; Bishop O'Connor, Peterborough; Very Rev. F. D. Laurent, V.G., Lindsay; Rev. Father McEvay, chancellor, Hamilton; Very Rev. J. Browne, V.G, Douro; Revs. M. Lynch, Port Hope; J. Quirk, Hastings; D. O'Connell, Ennismore; W. J. Keilty, Douro; D. J. Casey, Campbellford; M. Connelly, Emily; J. Sweeney, Burnley; C. S. Bretherton, Victoria Road; T. O'Connell, Fenelon Falls; M. O'Brien, P. Rudkins and C. Dube, Cathedral; E. H. Murray, Cobourg; M. Larkin, Grafton; E. Bloem, North Bay; W. J. McClosky, Brighton; P. McGuire, Bracebridge; J. Nolin, Lindsay. Mayor Stevenson, M.P., Councillors Moore, Cahill, Dawson, Kelly and A. Rutherford and Town Clerk Macdonald represented the town, while the medical profession was present in the persons of Drs. Halliday, Goldsmith, Brennan, McGrath, Moher and Pigeon. Among the other gentlemen on the platform were Messrs. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., John McKee, D. W. Dumble, John Corkery, J. E. Belcher, C.E., architect of the building, A. G. Gough, A. St. A. Smith, John Doherty and John Moloney, reeve of Douro.

THE OPENING ADDRESS.

The proceedings opened with the singing of a hymn to the patron saint, St. Joseph, by the sisters.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor then arose and in his clear, pleasing voice and faultless style delivered the opening address. He said:—My Lord, Rev. Fathers and Friends,—It is with feelings of the utmost cordiality that I welcome you to the inauguration of St. Joseph's hospital. Nearly two years ago the foundations were laid and the corner stone blessed by my Right Rev. confrere, His Lordship Bishop Dowling, who has honored us by his presence to-day. Now that this grand and majestic building has been completed it is a great gratification to see so large an assemblage present to testify their delight that so noble a work of charity exists in our midst. This will be an institution where the sick, and those whose infirmities and sufferings require aid and remedy will receive that care, nursing and medical treatment which greatly tend to the relief and cure of suffering humanity. Its doors will be open to the sick of every denomination, to Jew and Gentile, to Catholic and Protestant. Our Church teaches us to practice the charity taught us by Christ, if we desire to be His true followers. Now we know that the charity of Christ is unlimited, and extends to all mankind without any distinction of nationality, of belief, of race or color. This is what the Catholic Church teaches and practices. Hence we need only to look around the world and on all sides we behold the numerous institutions that she erects for the widow and orpan, for the poor and decrepit, for the hungry and naked, for the sick and infirm. And our Church not only builds these grand monuments of Christian charity, but she also sends her religious orders of men and women, who consecrate their lives to the glory of God and the service of their neighbor, to relieve and comfort the inmates of these institutions. Christ has proclaimed that in feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, attending the sick, we are doing such noble acts of charity to Himself. This explains why so many men and women in the Catholic Church abandon the pleasures and comforts of the world, and devote their live to the service of the poor, the orphan and the sick, with no hope of pecuniary reward. Their great delight is to serve their Divine Master in the person of

OUR SUFFERING FELLOW CREATURES.

We are all children of the same Heavenly Father, we are all brethren in Christ who died to save all, and consequently our charity, which is founded on the love of God and our neighbors, should have no limit or distinction of persons in its exercise. No person will be refused admission into this hospital because of his religious belief. Sickness and injury will be the key that will open wide its doors for those who desire to seek relief within its walls. The Sisters of St. Joseph, who are well known as careful and trained nurses, will have charge of this institution. Though there will be a regular staff of physicians to attend the patients in proper rotation, yet every physician of the town or county will be gladly welcomed at all times to attend the sick who would specially require their services. Also ministers of any denomination will be free to visit those who would ask their spiritual assistance. This basis is sufficiently broad to satisfy even the most fastidious. I may also inform you that this building has been erected by the charitable donations of the public, and it will depend on the charity of the public for its maintenance. Though yet heavily in debt, I have great confidence that in due time this debt will be wiped out by the generosity of charitable friends. We appeal to all to exercise charity according to their means and good will, knowing that in doing so they will be acting in a truly Christian spirit. As all classes and conditions of our sick brethren will be received into this hospital, we will expect contributions and support from all classes and denominations in the town and county. I now declare this hospital dedicated to St. Joseph, open for the reception of patients, praying that Almighty God may bless, both spiritually and temporarily, all who may at any time contribute to its support.

His Lordship resumed his seat amid applause.

ENDORSED BY BISHOP DOWLING.

His Lordship Bishop DOWLING, of Hamilton, was then introduced with a few happy words by Bishop O'Connor. Bishop Dowling said he had not come there to make a a speech and he was most happy that Bishop O'Connor had covered the ground so well. He would endorse all he had said and expressed the pleasure which it afforded him to be present on this occasion. He referred to the occasion of the laying of the corner stone, at which ceremony he had officiated, and said he was pleased to see many around him who had been present on that occasion. Among these he noticed Mayor Stevenson and Mr. Stratton, both of whom he believed he had sprinkled with holy water (laughter) and they had been better citizens since. He referred to the necessity for exercising charity in all our works and closed by hoping that the aid would be as liberal as such a charitable institution deserves.

THE APPROVAL OF ALL.

Mayor STEVENSON, M.P., was the next speaker. His remarks were of an appropriate character. In opening he eulogized Bishop O'Connor, whom he referred to as a worthy successor to Bishop Dowling. In speaking of the hospital, he said that the broad platform which His Lordship had laid down for the hospital was one which must have the hearty approval of every man, woman and child in Peterborough, no matter what their creed might be. It evidenced no narrow spirit and he felt confident that as a long as His Lordship remained that liberal platform would be adhered to. From the people and clergy who were around him had come the means for erecting that noble and magnificent building and therefore he would take occasion to commend their charity. He said he felt confident that the aid towards the institution would come up to His Lordship's expectations and closed by wishing the institution every success.

TO PLACE IT ON THE LIST.

Mr. J. R. STRATTON, M.P.P., followed. He expressed his pleasure at being present in opening. Two years ago the people had wondered where the money was to come from which was to erect this noble institution. The money, however, had come and he thought it must be a source of gratification to all citizens to look over from George-st. and see the grand building which had been reared. He referred to the beautiful site and expressed the hope that the institution would never have the number of patients for whom they had made provision. Mr. Stratton said he would be most happy to do all he could to assist the institution and would do his utmost to have the hospital placed upon the list of assisted institutions of the Province.

A HOME OF PROVIDENCE.

Mr. D. W. DUMBLE being called upon made a brief but well-timed speech. He said it afforded him much pride as an old citizen to see one of Peterborough's beautiful hills graced with such a noble and magnificent building. He was equally proud that the institution was dedicated to the work of God and said that it was only in countries where the name of God was recognized that such institutions were found. He eulogized the building and said he was pleased to know that it was not only a hospital but also a house of Providence. He congratulated His Lordship upon the liberal platform upon which the building had been erected, which exemplified the religion which he taught. It was a charity which did not ask a man by which way he was trying to get to heaven before they opened the doors to him. He closed by wishing that their brightest anticipations would be realized in the institution.

APPRECIATED BY A MEDICAL MAN.

Dr. HALLIDAY was the next speaker. He expressed his pleasure at being present and congratulated His Lordship on the liberal platform on which it was established, on the beauty of the building in outline and detail. As a medical gentleman he could appreciate such a noble institution. He referred to the great benefit which the hospital would be if those with afflicted relatives would send their friends to such an institution, where they would receive good medical treatment and nursing. He wished the hospital every success.

A COUNCILLOR SPEAKS.

Councillor CAHILL also spoke in a happy strain. He was pleased to be present and to see His Lordship Bishop O'Connor among them on such an occasion. When the institution was founded on the liberal and generous platform which admitted the sick of any creed or nationality and allowed a minister of any denomination to attend any patient, he felt convinced that the hospital would receive that support which His Lordship had anticipated.

OTHER SHORT SPEECHES.

Short speeches in a similar strain were also made by Dr. Goldsmith, Dr. McGrath, Councillor W. H. Moore, Dr. Brennan, Mr. John Moloney, Reeve of Douro, J. E. Belcher, E. E., architect, and Councillor A. Rutherford, contractor.

Rev. Father McEVAY, Chancellor of Hamilton, was the last speaker and was welcomed with some applause. He said he need not say he was pleased to be back among his friends in Peterborough and the clergy of the diocese with whom he had spent so many happy days. He was delighted, having been connected with work of beginning the building, to see that the hospital had been so magnificently reared. It had always been a source of sorrow to him to have it thrown up in his face when away from Peterborough that down here they had an institution which was only open to a certain portion of the community. This now had been done away with. He closed by expressing the pleasure it would always give him to visit Peterborough and sat down after placing a subscription for himself and another from Mr. Sheehy, the contractor for the brick-work, now in Hamilton, on the plate.

The band then discoursed sweet melody while the crowd strolled through the hospital or under the trees in the grove which surrounds it. A large number also partook of the refreshments which were server in the building.

THE ARCHITECT EULOGIZED.

The architect of the building, Mr. J. E. Belcher, came in for very high compliments from all the speakers and he justly deserved them. Mr. Belcher, who was introduced by His Lordship with a few flattering remarks, in his short, but aptly worded speech, referred to the harmony which had existed throughout between His Lordship, himself and the several contractors. He expressed the pride and pleasure which it always gave him to design such a building and see it reared to satisfactory completion. For the many kind eulogies of his work which had been spoken he returned his thanks and wished the hospital and His Lordship every success in the labor of charity and love which had been undertaken.

A Patient Pensioner.

A pensioner writes that on the evening of July 11th last he was robbed near the old market house of a five dollar bill and two ones by two men, and adds that he has waited some time for restitution to be made, rather than expose one of the men whose face is familiar to him, and that if it is not done he will apply to the courts.

Another Audience Interested.

Rev. Amand Parent, the French missionary from Quebec, who lectured in the George-st. Church on Tuesday night, spoke again in the Sunday school room of the Charlotte-st. Church last evening. There was a good attendance and the rev. gentleman's address was attentively listened to. Rev. Mr. Shorely occupied the chair and, after an opening hymn, introduced the lecturer with quite an extended speech, in which he gave some of his own experience among the French Canadians and upbraided the Methodist church for not contributing more to this mission work, saying that they should give as a church $75,000 or $80,000 every year. Rev. Mr. Parent's addresses was in its principal points a repitition of the night before. He related his early experience in the Church of Rome, told the story of his conversion and described the state of and his labors among the Oka Indians. At the close a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. J. L. Hughes, seconded by Mr. Joseph Betton, and unanimously tendered the lecturer. While the collection was being taken up Rev. Mr. Parent sang "Hold the Fort," in French. The meeting closed with prayer by the chairman.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes Twenty-five cents a bottle.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

but where's the lantern?"

"He put it out."

"But you ought to have knocked him down, you clown."

"So had you."

"Me! Why—he kicked me over."

"Well—he dodged by me and kicked over the lantern."

"But where is he now?"

"He's gone. Hark! Ha, I guess they've caught him. Don't you hear?"

"Yes—they've caught somebody."

"And of course it's him. He went that way. Let's go and find—"

He did not finish the sentence, for at that moment a voice came up in thunder tones; and it said:

"Ruric! Ruric!"

"Good God!" gasped villain number one. "What is that?"

"Ruric! Ruric!"

"By the living gold! that is not from any of our men!" uttered the second villain.

"Ha! they are coming this way!"

"Ruric! Ruric!"

"Where shall we flee?" cried Michael.

"There is but one place," returned Orel. "Here, in the little drawing-room. Come—let's find it. Oh, curses on that gunmaker's head? If he be not they very devil, then he's a bound partner of his. Have you found the entrance, Michael?

"No. It's near you somewhere. Can't you— Ha! In! in!"

At that moment the glare of a flaming torch flashed through the gloom of the place, and the two villains stood revealed. A dozen stout men, all well armed, appeared in the only passage by which they could make their escape, for to have fled into the drawing-room of which they had spoken would avail them nothing.

"Ho, villians!" shouted Valdimir the monk, raising his flaming torch high above his head with his left hand, while in his right he waved a heavy sword "Where is Ruric Nevel?"

"Here! here!" cried our hero, starting forward into the larger room.

"What! Safe?—alive?—well?" uttered Valdimir.

"Aye—my noblest of friends. But, oh, cast off this accursed bond from my arms. It eats into the flesh."

The rope was quickly taken off, and then the youth embraced his deliverer. No questions were asked there. Only a few sincere thanks were uttered, and then attention was turned to the two villains who yet stood trembling near them. They had not attempted an escape, for the way was blocked up. They were secured, and then the party turned away from the place; and as they went Ruric gave the monk an account of the manner in which he had been entrapped, and of the events which had transpired since.

"Merciful Heavens!" ejaculated Valdimir, as Ruric closed his account of the manner in which he had overcome the two men who had thought to murder him. "It was a narrow escape."

"But I might not have escaped without your coming," the youth said, "for they would surely have found me. With my hands lashed behind me as they were I could not have escaped."

"True—true," returned Valdimir thoughtfully. "It was a narrow chance. But it is over now."

"And how gained you the knowledge of my whereabouts?" asked Ruric.

"I'll explain it to you when we have time. But did I understand you to say that the humpbacked priest was there?"

"He came to my dungeon with the rest, and 'twas he that I knocked down. Have you not found him?"

"No; we have seen nothing of him. We found two men in the hall and that was all."

The place was searched all through for the priest, but he could not be found, and when Valdimir was assured that the arch villian had made his escape he prepared to leave the building. The prisoners—four of them—were led out first, and taken away by the monk's followers.

When Ruric reached the street the stars were all out, and the cool, frosty air struck gratefully upon his brow. He turned towards his mysterious companion, and under the grateful impulse of the moment he stopped. He raised his hands towards heaven—uttered one fervent sentence of thanksgiving to God—and then moved on again.

CHAPTER XVI.

It was long after midnight, and yet the widow Nevel had not sought her bed. She was now pacing to and fro across her kitchen, and the boy Paul sat nodding in his chair. Suddenly the woman stopped, and Paul started up.

"Do you think that message was a false one?" she asked, looking the boy in the face.

"I don't know," he returned. "If he came from the black monk, as he said he did, then I think he spoke the truth."

"Oh, they would not have deceived me."

"No, my mistress, I am sure they would not."

"But it is very late."

"Hark! There are bells."

The widow heard them, and with a wildly fluttering heart she sank into a chair.

"They have stopped in front of the house," uttered Paul, whose ears were bent.

"Go—go—open—"

Paul started. The widow heard the door opened, and she heard voices in the hall. In a moment more the inner door was opened, and she looked up. She saw a manly form—she heard the magic word—Mother—trembling upon the air. With one low cry of joy she started to her feet, and in the next moment she was clasped to the bosom of her son.

"Did I not tell you I'd bring him back to you?" cried Valdimir, rubbing his hands with joy.

"Oh, God bless you, sir!" the widow murmured, gazing through her tears into the monk's face.

"So, so," returned the strange man. "The blessing of an honest soul is reward enough for one night, so I'll take myself off for the present."

"No, no," cried Ruric. "You'll remain here till morning."

But the monk could not be prevailed upon so to do. He had business to attend to, and he could not stop; and he hurried away as quickly as possible to avoid the thanks that were showered upon him.

After Valdimir was gone Ruric sat down and related to his mother all that had occurred since that day on which he left her to go and see the count. She trembled fearfully as he related the diabolical attempts that had been made upon him; and when he had concluded, she sat for a few moments like one in a painful trance.

"And do you think," she said at length, while a cold shudder ran through her frame, "that the Duke of Tula was the cause of all this?"

"I am sure of it, my mother."

"Then you are not safe yet."

"But I shall see the Emperor."

"I have seen him, my son."

"Ah—and what said he?"

"Why—he said if we could find out who had done you harm he would punish them. Then I asked him—suppose it was a duke; and he said in that case he should have to look into the matter. Oh, I fear he would not dare to punish the powerful Olga."

"Perhaps not; but yet, my mother, I will give him credit for better things. Yet," the youth continued, in a sad tone, "there is one for whom I care more than self, and who is now within the wicked duke's power. Oh, she is his beyond any power of the Emperor!"

"Not absolutely beyond his power, is she?" the mother asked.

"Why—of course Peter has the power to set aside any wardship, but 'twould not be policy for him to interfere in the domestic affairs of his powerful nobles. I feel sure that his heart would bid him interfere; but his judgment would oppose it. You have seen Rosalind?"

"Yes."

"And was she unhappy when she knew that I was missing?"

"Ah, Ruric!" returned the mother, with a kindling eye, "you do not know how that noble girl loves you. Oh, her heart was almost broken when she knew that evil had befallen you!"

The widow had it in her mind to tell of the scene which had transpired upon the duke's coming into the maiden's presence when she was there, but she thought a second time ere she spoke; and she then concluded not to speak of it at present, for she knew 'twould only serve to give her son additional pain without bestowing any benefit.

"By heavens!" uttered Ruric, at the end of a troubled reverie, and at the same time clasping his hands vehemently together; "was ever mad man so surrounded by impenetrable mystery before! This monk is surely a good man. He has served me well, and I am sure he would serve me more if opportunity offered. But who is he? Have you found out anything concerning him?"

"I have not, my son."

"But is it not strange?"

"It is."

NEWFOUNDLAND'S PLAGUE.

A Terrible Disease Ravaging the Towns on the French Shore.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 20.—A plague, the exact nature of which is not known, is ravaging the fishing towns on the French shore. The disease is terribly fatal and none so far attacked have survived. The inhabitants think it is virulent diphtheria. It is said starvation and filth are helping the deadly march of the disease.

SHOT BY A DAGO.

A Detroit Editor Fatally Wounded by a Peanut Vendor.

DETROIT, Aug. 20.—Fred. Crimmins, assistant City Editor of The Evening Sun, was fatally shot by Tony Mauli, a peanut and fruit vendor, this afternoon. Crimmins had just left The Sun office for the day and stopped at the Italian stand to purchase some fruit. As he was examining some plums Mauli drew a 38-calibre pistol from under the stand and emptied one of the chambers into Crimmins' abdomen. He fell where he stood. "I am killed," he muttered, "what will my poor sister do!" Mauli was arrested.

TWENTY DEAD.

Four More Victims of the Accident on the Old Colony Road.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 20.—Two additional victims are added to the list of dead this morning: Miss Ella Bard, aged 23, who died at Quincy hospital, and Miss Abbie Abbott of Louisville. Mrs. Mattie Francis of Chelsea and a Miss Tilton, victims of the Quincy accident, died at the Boston city hospital this morning. This swells the number of dead to 20.

The Pennsylvania Cyclone.

READING, Pa., Aug. 20.—Reports from different sections of Berks county to-day show last night's storm wrecked or unroofed a dozen barns and the damage will amount to $20,000. In Spring township the body of William A. Speinart, a farmer, buried underneath his wrecked barn, was recovered at noon. His neck was broken.

At Kutztown James M. Shaeffer's house and barn were demolished. The family escaped.

The Joggins Coal Mines.

HALIFAX, Aug. 20.—It is reported that the Joggins coal mines have been sold to an English syndicate who will put in new machinery and operate them on a much larger scale. The present output is 5000 tons a month. They also propose to build a branch railway up the River Hebert to connect with the lumber mills on that river.

Buffalo to Get Light and Fuel from Canada.

BUFFALO, Aug. 20.—The Provincial Natural Gas Company of Toronto, with large properties in natural gas in Welland county has entered into a contract with the Buffalo Natural Gas Fuel Company and the papers have been signed and approved by the various parties thereto. The Canadian company will pipe the gas to this city under the Niagara River and it will be received here by the local company and served to consumers.

Fresh Trouble at Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 20.—The troops in his city were kept under arms throughout last night, the Government fearing a fresh revolution would be attempted owing to the dismissal of officers concerned in the recent rebellion. The Governor of Cordoba has resigned and the Provincial Bank has closed.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflamatory disease on my face (petyriasis), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued used for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude.

(Rev.) WM. CHARLMAN, York Corner, Me.

THE TORONTO BUDGET.

A SMASH-UP ON THE GRAND TRUNK NEAR COBOURG.

The Steamer Nipissing Ashore Near Gravenhurst—A Warrant Issued for the Arrest of Superintendent Tait of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—The Montreal express on the Grand Trunk due at 10½ last night, was three hours late. The cause of the delay was a smash-up near Cobourg in the afternoon. A wildcat engine was running west, trying to make its way on the time of the regular trains. There is a curve at the point where the accident took place, and in rounding it the wildcat plunged head on into a loaded freight train going east. None of the trainmen were injured, all jumping in time to escape unscathed. A tramp who gave his name as Joseph Woodcock of Montreal was riding on the bumpers of one of the cars and got his foot jammed in the wreck. In order to save his life and prevent his bleeding to death a medical man from Cobourg amputated the injured limb, which was left in the wreck. Woodcock was removed to Cobourg hospital. It is said some $5000 worth of damage was done.

The steamer Nipissing, belonging to the Muskoka Navigation Company, and plying between Gravenhurst and Colborne, went ashore yesterday afternoon on a small island nine miles from Gravenhurst, while on its return trip from Port Colborne. There were some 75 Toronto people on board, who had struck camp in Muskoka and were on their way back to recommence business after the holiday recess. The greatest excitement prevailed on board for a short time, but as the lake was calm the fears of the passengers were soon dissipated. The boat lies high and dry on the island and it will be some time before she is released.

The warrant for the arrest of Superintendent Tait was issued by Coroner Lynd at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and is now in the hands of Inspector Stark. Mr. Tait was in Montreal yesterday, but will be here again this morning. At 9 o'clock he will proceed to Osgoode Hall where the warrant will be executed and where he will at once give bail, himself in $2000 and two friends in $1000 each. Hon. R. M. Wells, Q.C., says that the company will at once proceed to attack the validity of the verdict.

The charge of passing counterfeit money against Minnie Thompson, Roland Roberts and Joseph Furness came up in the Police Court again yesterday morning. The two male prisoners, both young boys, were discharged at the opening of the case. The counterfeit coin was a very bad leaden imitation of a 50 cent piece. The woman pleaded not guilty, but admitted giving the coins to the boys. The boys sold them for 10 cents each. The case was enlarged.

Nathaniel Wormworth came down from Mountain Grove to draw $700 fire insurance money. He got the money and went drinking and was arrested. He then said he had lost money and notified the police, who arrested Pat. O'Leary, with whom Wormworth had been drinking. O'Leary pleaded not guilty and was remanded. The money was afterwards found by the police in Wormworth's hat. It is thought he invented the story to defraud his creditors.

John Stratton and John Wallace were charged with stealing a watch from a man named Langdon at the Russell House. Wallace was discharged, but Stratton was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary, there being five prior convictions against him.

THE WORLD'S FAIR IN DANGER.

Reports in Chicago That the Funds Are Not Forthcoming.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The Chicago Mail, whose principal editor is a South Park Commissioner and intimately acquainted with World's Fair matters, in an article this afternoon says: "The financial affairs of the World's Columbian Exposition Company have assumed an exciting phase during the last two weeks. For this reason it is said by persons who know, more than for any other, have the many recent changes been made in the plans of the directors in regard to a site. To this cause also is largely due the uncertainty that prevails at present. The clouds are daily becoming more ominous, and to such a pass have World's Fair matters come that a few men of good judgment are speculating on the total collapse of the exposition scheme.

"'The fact is,' said a man well informed in World's Fair matters, 'that the popular subscription is not the glorious success predicted. There was subscribed about $5000,000 by upward of 28,000 persons. The subscriptions were made while the residents of Chicago were worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Now the people have cooled off and it is difficult to collect. All the causes of dissatisfaction taken together have caused at least 50 per cent. of the shareholders to neglect to pay their assessments. Now what effect will all the juggling with sites and the knowledge of the true condition of the finances have on the people when they come to vote on the constitutional amendment, which enables Chicago to raise the additional $5,000,000? It is easy to forecast it. The people will be disgusted by November next, and already many of the directors are beginning to tremble lest the proposed amendment should not receive the required number of votes.'"

ONTARIO'S HARVEST.

THE BULLETIN OF THE BUREAU OF INDUSTRIES.

Progress of Harvesting Operations, Condition of the Crops and Estimated Yields of the Cereals Based upon Reports of Nearly 800 Correspondents.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—The Agriculture Department issued yesterday the 34th bulletin of the Bureau of Industries, prepared by Secretary A. Blue from the reports of 798 correspondents to Aug. 12, showing the progress of harvesting operations, condition of the crops and estimated yields of cereals.

This table gives the acreage of crops this year computed from returns made to the bureau by farmers, and estimates of yield based on the reports of correspondents, together with comparative statistics of 1889:

Crops.		Acres.	Bushels.	Yield per Acre.
Fall wheat	1890..	730,101	14,898,940	20.4
	1889..	822,113	12,001,665	15.6
Spring wheat	1890..	261,755	2,838,190	16.0
	1889..	386,650	5,497,727	14.8
Barley	1890..	701,386	16,311,679	23.4
	1889..	875,389	22,498,309	25.7
Oats	1890..	1,892,886	56,272,613	30.1
	1889..	1,929,444	64,346,391	33.6
Rye	1890..	105,061	1,617,585	15.7
	1889..	90,106	1,431,679	15.9
Peas	1890..	721,958	10,020,251	20.6
	1889..	700,009	13,300,237	19.1
Beans	1890..	39,452	840,018	21.3
	1889..	21,890	371,858	17.0
Hay and clover	1890..	2,402,001	4,305,915	1.73
	1889..	2,386,983	3,758,313	1.58

The acreage of other field crops is given in this table, but no estimate of yield has been procured:

Crops.	1890.	1889.
Corn	222,000	187,118
Buckwheat	90,100	56,298
Potatoes	158,000	145,612
Mangel-wurzels	25,900	21,211
Carrots	11,900	11,081
Turnips	111,000	111,108
Pasture (cleared land)	2,524,000	2,407,923

Fall wheat throughout almost the whole of western Ontario is of good quality and in every respect an unusually fine crop. In the Georgian Bay, Lake Huron and West Midland counties some loss by winter-killing and spring frosts was experienced, especially on low lying and new land, but in those counties the crop is almost invariably reported good. In the counties east of Kingston and upon the Ottawa River, where but little fall wheat is grown, the report is better than usual as to quality and yield per acre, but, as usual, 40 to 50 per cent. of the ground sown in these was winter-killed. The majority of observers report no injury whatever from drouth or insects, but there are indications of slight injury from weevil, midge and rust in some few fields of nearly every county. Because of the drouth of last fall the grain appears to have been generally sown late, especially on heavy clay, many fields of which were bare during the winter. With the excessive rain of spring followed by great heat came such a rush of plants that much rust and shrinkage were expected, but the damage is slight and will not materially affect the sample. The berry is generally reported plump, the straw bright and the crop the best for years. Cutting began from July 10 to 15 in the most advanced counties, from July 15 to 20 throughout most of Western Ontario, and from July 25 to Aug. 1 in the district east and north of Kingston. Harvesting weather was very favorable and the crop has been housed in excellent condition.

From the reports regarding spring wheat it would not be safe at this date to assert that the crop is any better than an average one. Still there is much reason to expect that it will turn out better than fair. Harvesting had not been completed at the date of the reports, except in a very few of the most advanced townships, while in the counties where most spring wheat is grown a large proportion of the grain was at least a week from maturity, and much would depend upon the weather intervening between then and the end of harvest. A majority of observers declare the crop to be fair or promising, and generally good on high land, but there is an almost unanimous complaint of much injury to low-lying wheat from the wet, cold and late spring. In some localities a blight that reddened the leaves is somewhat complained of, and in the midland counties midge and weevil are credited with effecting considerable damage, but the majority of reports agree that the crop has suffered little from insects or drouth. Few observers in the midland counties hazard an estimate of the yield, but in the eastern districts, where the injury from spring rains was particularly great, the average is occasionally estimated at from 15 to 17 bushels per acre. The bearded varieties, especially Colorado, are most praised throughout the province, and White Russian, French Imperial and Wild Goose are rather more commended than the Fyfe seed wheats, whether of Scotch or Manitoba growth. In those few districts where the crop has been harvested the report is fair, and this will probably be the final verdict on the crop as a whole. The area sown is much larger than last year.

Barley is somewhat light in yield and uncertain in color, so that taking into account the decreased area under cultivation the crop is likely to be 4,000,000 bushels less than the average, and probably not a great deal will rank first-class. The wet, cool spring, followed by the dry, hot weather at maturing time, did a considerable amount of damage to this cereal, and unfortunately, as the harvesting weather has been somewhat unfavorable in many localities, the grain has been discolored by rain both before and after cutting. The early varieties escaped this misfortune to a large extent, but otherwise the crop has suffered very generally to a greater or less degree. But a large proportion of the crop had still to be cut at the time of reporting, and it is difficult to state its precise condition in this respect. This was largely the case in the northern and eastern counties of the province, and it is to be hoped that the harvest has there been secured in a satisfactory condition. Reports respecting the imported two-rowed barley—of which small samples were sown by many farmers—are perhaps about equally divided for and against. It has been ascertained that this variety is from a week to ten days later in maturing than the ordinary six-rowed barley, but as it had been cut in hardly a single instance it was difficult to express a definite or reliable opinion upon it, and the reports are very guarded in this respect. So far, however, the evidence does not warrant the belief that it is in any marked degree superior to the ordinary varieties, in spite of the fact that it has been favored by a season of unusual rainfall and slow growth.

FATHER AND TWO SONS.

A Triple Drowning Accident at Cobourg Yesterday Afternoon.

COBOURG, Aug. 21.—Dennis Lyons and his two sons, aged 10 and 12 respectively, were drowned at the mouth of Factory Creek at 4 o'clock this afternoon. They had been fishing and were returning in their boat, when [illegible]. The bodies have not been [illegible] boys who were bathing [illegible] the accident and gave [illegible].

Once Jeff Davis' Slave.

WINDSOR, Aug. 21.—C. D. Dixon of Kentucky, who was at one time owned by Jeff Davis as a slave, lectured in the Windsor A.M.E. Church last night on the subject of "Through Dixie Land."

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

The Ship Owners Combine to Fight the Labor Unions.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that at a conference of British shipowners representing a capital of £30,000,000 it was decided to unite in a fight against the labor unions.

The Australian Strike.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 21.—A meeting of 400 employers to-day resolved to support the shipowners against the strikers. Employers in the capitals of the other Australian colonies are about to make similar declarations. In consequence of the strike prices of coal, sugar and provisions are rapidly advancing.

Mons Miners on Strike.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 21.—Advices from Mons state 6000 miners in the Borinague district have struck. Socialist leaders are fomenting discontent among the men.

Unsubdued Rebels.

TANGIER, Aug. 21.—The French military mission helped the Sultan to work the artillery in the trouble with the rebels at Zemmour. The rebels are still uncowed.

Fears for a British Bark.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The British bark Assaye, Capt. McRitchie, which left London Feb. 16 for Wellington, N.Z., is supposed to have foundered. She was spoken March 16 on the Equator, but has not since been heard of. She carried a crew of 25 men.

Addresses Presented to the Kaiser.

NARVA, Aug. 21.—Emperor William to-day received delegates who presented addresses from the German residents at Reval, Moscow and St. Petersburg.

150 Lives Lost.

GENEVA, Aug. 21.—It is reported 150 lives were lost in the cyclone in the canton of Vaud yesterday.

NO LIVES LOST.

But the Big Summer Hotel at Thousand Island Park Is In Ashes.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Aug. 21.—The big summer hotel at Thousand Island Park, St. Lawrence River, was burned at 2 o'clock this morning, together with the adjoining cottages and a large store owned by the Park Association. There were 400 guests in the hotel but all escaped although many with only their night clothes. Two women servants were injured. The loss is about $150,000, partly covered by insurance.

Fire at Bowmanville.

BOWMANVILLE, Aug. 21.—Two tenement houses in Ontario-street, owned by S. Washington and occupied, one by Mrs. Barrett, dressmaker, the other by Harry Hooper, were burned last night. Washington is insured in the British American for $1000 and Hooper for $300 in the London & Lancashire. Mrs. Barrett has no insurance.

A Blaze at Copenhagen.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 21.—Fire in a custom warehouse here to-day caused a loss of 2,000,000 kroners.

THE SAENGERFEST.

Waterloo's Musical Festival a Great Success—The Program For To-day.

WATERLOO, Aug. 21.—The second day of the great tenth Peninsular Saengerfest was a great success in every respect. The concert this afternoon was not so well attended as expected, but to-night the hall was filled to overflowing. Mrs. Caldwell and Mr. Schuch of Toronto and Prof. Yunck of Detroit (violinist) were heartily encored.

The Rochester, Buffalo and Hamilton singing societies arrived in town yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock by special train, and at 8½ six Detroit societies and the Ann Arbor, Jackson, Bay City and Saginaw societies also arrived by special train.

To-morrow at 10½ the parade will take place, consisting of all the singing societies, fraternal societies, cadets, commercial travelers from Toronto, London and intermediate points. The Maccabees of Port Huron have arranged for an excursion and are expected to reach here in time for the procession. In the afternoon a picnic will take place in the new park. In the evening a ball will close the saengerfest.

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Moses Asino of Brockville Killed by a Dynamite Blast.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 21.—Moses Asino was fatally injured by the explosion of a dynamite blast in a sewer at Abbott and Maple streets yesterday afternoon. Asino made the connection with the blast and gave the signal. It was supposed he had gone to a place of safety, but his mangled body was found after the explosion lying at the bottom of the hole. He lived about three hours. The fact that the victim's boots were found clear off his feet in the hole and the fact also that his domestic relations were not of the most pleasant nature give rise to the belief that Asino made no effort to escape.

The Sarnia-Port Huron Big Bore.

SARNIA, Aug. 21.—Less than 100 feet of the tunnel remain to be finished, and it is expected that this distance will be completed within a week. Saturday a hole large enough for a workman to creep through will be bored from heading to heading so as to make certain of the adjustment of the shields, that they may come together with mathematical exactness.

A scene was created in Port Huron the other day by a report that the tunnel had caved in, and that seventeen men had been crushed to death. When investigated, the catastrophe dwindled down to the death of one mule and that was caused purely from carelessness.

Mysterious Death at Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, Aug. 21.—Thomas Watkins came here Saturday and put up at the Biggar House. Sunday morning he was found on the floor of his room dead. He had a pillow under his head, and his hands were clasped over his chest. It was observed that he must have experienced intense suffering before his death. Watkins was about 75 years of age and had been, for the past 30 years, living near the Boyne, in Trafalgar. He had no relatives in Canada. He had been employed with a Mr. McCartney, and had been receiving aid from friends in the Old Country.

A Close Call.

QUEBEC, Aug. 21.—While an unknown woman was crossing the Quebec, Montmorenci and Charlevoix Railway bridge at Chateau Richer she got caught between the ties and was unable to extricate herself. Just then a train approached, and before the engineer noticed the woman he was almost upon her. By a great effort, however, he succeeded in reversing the engine and putting on the brakes, and brought his train to a standstill within a few inches of the almost insensible prisoner.

A Cloudburst in York State.

BINGHAMTON, Aug. 21.—A cloudburst did great damage to-night at Cortland, but so far as learned no one was killed.

Not Satisfied with Their Wages.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Forty delegates representing Illinois Central brakemen and trainmen arrived to-day for the purpose of holding a conference with the road officials to demand a general increase of wages.

A FIGHT FOR EXISTENCE.

POWDERLY SAYS THE KNIGHTS' BATTLE IS FOR LIFE.

The Grand Master Workman Comes Out "Flatfooted" for the Strike—An Appeal to the People—The Case of the Men Presented—The Situation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Mr. Powderly made this statement to-day in reference to a report that the grand jury was considering the advisability of indicting the leaders of the strike: "The grand jury has nothing to do with the case. We have violated no law, either state or national, since we came to this city. The men have been orderly and peaceful, they have acted like gentlemen since the strike began. Whether this strike has been ordered wisely or not, has nothing to do with the matter now, so far as it affects the grand jury. The men have a right to quit work, and the grand jury has no right to decide that they must return to work.

"The railway officials have got men following us. This morning about 2 o'clock a card was sent up to my room. On it was written: 'The New York Herald offers its support, and I am authorised to represent it.' The man came to my room and began to ask questions as to what we intended to do without saying anything of the attitude of The Herald. I thought the man acted suspiciously and upon watching him after he left us we discovered he went to the New York Central depot instead of The Herald office. He was not a newspaper man and appeared very much flurried and excited while he was in the room. If the New York Central people hope to shape the action of the grand jury by such means as this they cannot expect success."

To-night Mr. Powderly issued an appeal to the people. The appeal reviews the causes of the strike and relates the unavailing efforts made to secure a peaceable settlement of the difficulty—referring to Holland's interview with Webb and Powderly and Devlin's interview with Toucey and Webb, accounts of which have already been published.

The appeal then continues: The public may have formed erroneous impressions of the position of the Knights in the controversy. We don't pretend to dictate to the company that it shall not discharge employes, but in all fairness the discharged men should be told why they are dismissed.

I have no doubt that it is the determination of the management to destroy the organization of Labor along the line of the New York Central unless that organization subserviently bends its knee to the will of the Vanderbilts. During the controversy Messrs. Toucey and Webb stated and repeated the statement that the men were not discharged because they were Knights of Labor, and they expect the public to believe them simply because they say so. Both of these gentlemen deny certain things in relation to their conversation with me, which both Mr. Devlin and myself are prepared to make affidavit to. I am, therefore, to be excused if I am not prepared to accept as true beyond question any denial by them of statements made by men whose words should be of equal value with theirs. Everything that could in honor be done to terminate the strike on an honorable basis for the men was done and the alternative of unconditional and absolute surrender on the part of the men or a protest against the tyranny of officials of the New York Central Railway was presented to us. Under the circumstances it would be unmanly, it would be cowardly—and unworthy of the sons of men whom two hemispheres struggled and died for the rights of humanity. We did not see the quarrel. The General Executive Board knew nothing of it until it was thrust upon them, and now that we have to face it we ask the entire order of the Knights of Labor to come to our assistance with the means to win the strike. We are not craving for sympathy; we are not in need of moral support. We have to fight a power which owes its lofty bearing to the wealth it has piled up from the labor of its employes; untold millions are at its command, and we want money to carry on the struggle. We ask all members of organized labor to come to our aid. We not only ask labor organizations but we ask of the great public beyond our organizations of labor to come to our relief.

It is not because a few cents more a day or some paltry concession to the men was required that this strike was precipitated. The real animus lies in the fact that our order has been struggling with the questions which concern the control of trusts, corporations and syndicates by the government of the people. The allied forces of the K. of L. and the Farmers' Alliance are marching on to Washington to secure legislation favorable to the whole people and to secure the repeal of certain unjust laws. It is in the hope of turning our attention away from these matters that the warfare is made on the part of the allied forces.

In conclusion Mr. Powderly says: The Knights of Labor hold themselves in readiness now, and will continue to hold themselves ready to yield to the will of the public in this matter. The company, on the other hand, holds itself above and superior to public opinion. I would here ask the men still in the employ of the N. Y. C. R. R. whether it be not to their interest to stand by and support those who are striking to vindicate the common right to organize. The General Executive Board will conduct the contest with all of their ability within the law and without violence. To do this we require funds, and that at once. Public spirited citizens who believe in fair play are asked to contribute to the liberty fund in aid of the striking employes of the N.Y.C. and H.R.R. Send all contributions to John W. Hayes, No. 814 North Broad-street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Think Other Roads Will Escape.

CHICAGO, Aug 21.—John Hall, a member of the Executive Board of the Federation of Railway Employes, said to-day in reference to the strike on the Vanderbilt roads that he did not believe the Brotherhood men west of Buffalo would be involved, as he thought the action to be taken at Terre Haute Saturday would be only as to the New York Central Railway. The leading officials of the Vanderbilt lines in Chicago say they are not making preparations for a strike and do not expect one.

Joined the Strikers.

BUFFALO, Aug. 21.—There is no change in the strike at this point. The men imported from the west have joined the strikers and will be sent home. They claim they came here to work on a new branch of the Central and were told the strike was over.

A "Solid Comfort" Cottage Robbed.

PORT COLBORNE, Aug. 21.—A sneak thief entered one of the "Solid Comfort" cottages to-day while the people were at dinner and stole jewelry valued at $400 which belonged to a Miss Block.

VEERED AROUND AGAIN.

SOME years ago Sir John Macdonald said that the Toronto Globe had expressed opposite views on every important public question and that an examination of its files would show that to be the case. Since then the Liberal organ has been true to its record in this respect. Notable recent examples of this have been its attitudes in regard to commercial union and the Jesuit Estates bill. When a demand was first made for the disallowance of the Jesuit bill passed by the Quebec Legislature the Globe argued that it should not be vetoed, and that if it was the consequences would be disastrous. Then it appeared that political capital might be made by taking an opposite course and the organ all at once "flopped" and as strongly called for disallowance. After keeping on that course for some weeks the Globe one day announced that the discussion was "played out," and now it has veered back its first position and in Thursday's issue says:—

> "For example, they (the Equal Rights Association) insisted that any Quebec bill, such as the Jesuit Incorporation and Estates Acts, which in the opinion of the rest of the Dominion was inherently bad, should be disallowed by the Governor in Council. The Liberals deplored the passage of those measures, but held that so long as we maintain a federal system and allow Quebec to have charge of her local affairs, it is necessary to permit her to administer them as she sees fit, provided, as happened in this case, that the legislation is intra vires of her authority. It is manifest that any other course must end in disaster."

It is decidedly cool of the Globe to speak of the demand for disallowance as though it had not taken part in it, but it changes its opinions so often that perhaps it should not be expected to remember all the various views it has expressed on such subjects. What position the Globe may hereafter take on the question it would be difficult to say, but it has clearly come back to its first view in opposition to the disallowance of the measure.

JAMAICA TRADE.

MR. ADAM BROWN, of Hamilton, having been appointed commissioner for Canada at the Jamaica exhibition, he is working energetically to secure a good exhibit from the Dominion. The energy he has thrown into the work has shown that the Government made a wise appointment in selecting him for the position. There will very probably be no desire to carry exhibits to Jamaica for the mere purpose of making an impression on the minds of the islanders as to the importance of the Dominion. The object in view will be to enlarge the trade done with the islands, and as Jamaica imports largely of articles that Canada has to export this object will no doubt be accomplished.

The imports of Jamaica in 1886-87 amounted to $6,611,000 worth, and its exports to $7,545,000. That is, this trade was done by Jamaica alone, without reference to adjacent islands, many of them of foreign trade of considerable importance. Of the imports of Jamaica the United Kingdom supplied 54.7 per cent., the United States 28.6, Canada 8.4, other British possessions 2 3, and other countries 1 0. The following figures will show the line of goods imported:—Food stuffs £496,964, liquors £73,673, tobacco £14,990, household furniture £19,-036, clothing, including boots, £309,832, hardware, £46,494, building material £41,-396, machinery and supplies other then foodstuffs, liquors, etc., £22 861, other machinery and tools, £12,366, coal and coke, £26,000, books and printed matter £8,824, miscellaneous £191,700. The principal exports were sugar, coffee, rum, pimento, dye woods, fruit, ginger, etc. The official reports of the United States consuls show that during the year ending Sept. 30th last, Jamaica bought $6,641,000 worth of goods from the States, including bread and biscuits, $62,-800; butter, $163,000: cheese, $30,000; dried and salted fish, $62,000; herring, mackerel and salmon, smoked or pickled, $35,000; wheat flour, $785,000; boots and shoes, $46,-000; peas and beans, $16,600; soap, $14,000; white pine, $78,000; shingles, $29,000; shooks, staves and headings, $50 000. The exports from Jamaica to the States during the same period amounted to $3,360,000 The principal items were:—Cocoanuts, $63-000; coffee, $610,000; bananas, $1 226,000; oranges, $242,000; ginger, $80,000; pimento, $124,000; rum, $18,000; logwood, $480,000; and sugar, $868,000. The expense of conveyance of the exhibits will be paid and the exhibition should be the means of increasing the trade between the islands and Canada.

MARRIED

MORRIS—COTTINGHAM.—On the 20th August, at St. John's Church, Peterborough, by the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson, MR JAMES MORRIS, son of Edmund Morris, Toronto, and grandson of the late Hon. James Morris, M. L. C., of Can., Brockville, to LETITIA KATE COTTINGHAM, daughter of the late William Cottingham, of Omemee.

DIED.

DOUCETT—At Norwood, on Saturday, 16th Aug., the infant daughter of Mr. Doucett, aged 8 months.

SMITH—At Warkworth, on Saturday, Aug. 16th, after a short illness, ELLIS SMITH, aged 19 years and 6 days.

MARSH—In Lindsay, on Sunday, Aug. 17th, WILLIAM GEORGE, infant son of the Rev. C. H. Marsh.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE REALM OF NICOTINE.

EMPRESSES. QUEENS. PRINCESSES AND NOBLEWOMEN WHO SMOKE.

Narghile, Cigar, and Cigarette in Fingers Fair—All do it Except Victoria, the Best of All—Yet One of Her Own Daughters Uses the Weed.

The crusade against the use of tobacco during the last three centuries has been preached in vain. The consumption of the soothing herb first brought to Europe by gallant Sir Walter Raleigh, far from showing any signs of falling off, increases every year.

Nor is the use thereof restricted to men. The fair sex, whose nerves are much more highly strung, and whose hearts throb half as quickly again, are finding that the weed first dedicated to England's virgin Queen is infinitely more effective and injurious a sedative than either chloral or morphine. It is true that in North America the prejudice against cigarettes still remains, and there is a tendency to look upon those who indulge in the habit as "fast" and even immoral.

But it is different in Europe. There not only the women of the people, but also a vast majority of the Empresses, Queens, and Princesses of the world rest in the conviction that life bears a more beautiful aspect when seen through the opalescent clouds of fragrant smoke that issue from their delicate mouths.

Empress Elizabeth of Austria smokes from thirty to forty Turkish and Russian cigarettes a day, and it has for many years been her inveterate custom to puff away after dinner at a strong Italian cigar—one of those with a straw running horizontally through it—which is brought to her with her cup of Turkish coffee every evening, already lighted on a gold salver. She says herself that smoking soothes her nerves, and that whenever she feels "blue" a cigar or a cigarette will do more than anything else to cause her to see things in a happier light. Spending much of her time in studies of a serious nature—she is a perfect Greek and Latin scholar—and while writing she smokes almost continually. On her writing table are always to be found a large silver box of repousse work filled with cigarettes, a match-box of carved Chinese jade, and a capacious ash-receiver made of the hoof of a favorite hunter, which broke its spine over a blackthorn hedge several years ago during one of the autumn meets at Schloss Gödöllo in Hungary. The Empress caused the handsome mare's front hoofs to be mounted in silver in the form of ash-receivers and gave one to the Emperor, the other constituting always a part of her dressing case wherever she goes. Almost mechanically does her Majesty light cigarette after cigarette as she sits at work in her great writing room at Gödöllo, which is fitted up with carved oak panels and Gobelin tapestries, the somewhat somber hue of the walls being relieved here and there by trophies of the chase. Any one who has the opportunity of examining closely the slender white hand of the imperial lady will certainly have noticed a faint yellow stain on the first and second fingers of the left hand caused by the cigarette. But this is assuredly the only deleterious effect which may be said to have resulted from her use of tobacco. Certainly Elizabeth's brain has not been dulled, nor has her marvelous beauty been impaired by nicotine. She still remains not only one of the loveliest, but also one of the most quick-witted, spirituelle, and intellectual women of the age.

Seen riding home in the evening from a meet at Gödöllo, or seated at her writing table; the contour of her matchless figure shown to perfection by the plain black, tailor-made gown that constitutes her customary dress, who is there who would venture to assert that there is the slightest trace of vulgarity in the cigarette so daintily held between the first and second fingers of her ungloved left hand.

The Czarina of Russia, who is likewise one of the vassals of nicotia, smokes in a somewhat more indolent and one might almost say Oriental fashion. Stretched on the silken cushions of a broad, low divan at Gatchina, she follows dreamily with her beautiful dark eyes the rings of blue smoke that her crimson lips send upward into the perfumed air of her boudoir—a boudoir which she calls her "den," and which is copied from one of the loveliest rooms of the Alhambra, with palms in cloisonne vases, raising their green banners against the gorgeous colors and diapered gold of the walls. Heavy-hearted and anxious as the charming sovereign of all the Russians often is, her mind filled with gruesome fears of a cruel death for those she loves best, she finds in the cigarette her greatest solace; and she spends many an hour, her small patrician head crowned by its wealth of brown braids reclining among the gold embroidered pillows of her couch, sending out those little clouds of smoke and sipping exquisite caravan tea at $40 a pound. The latter is brought to her in a service made by the goldsmiths of the Deccan, who provide work beside which all the best that Europe can funish appears clumsy, vulgar, and inartistic.

Queen Marguerite of Italy is another of the royal ladies who see no harm in the use of tobacco, and the coquettish way in which she toys with a verbena-scented papilletto can only be compared with the unequaled grace with which an Andalusian belle is wont to dally with her fan. Her flashing black eyes look laughingly through the fragrant clouds of smoke emitted from her mouth, which looks like the half open bud of a pomegranate, and she is wont to declare that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life. King Humbert, who is still as much in love with his charming consort as the day, twenty-one years ago, when he first brought home to the royal palace at Turin the lovely daughter of the Duke of Genoa delights in smoking his cigar in her company, and certainly prefers that he should be allowed to join his wife in a post-prandial cigarette rather than to be relegated, as are so many other husbands, to a distant smoking-room and to temporary exile from so fair a presence.

Christine, Queen Regent of Spain, is a great advocate of tobacco. She consumes a large quantity of Egyptian cigarettes, and there is nothing that her little "Bubi," his Most Catholic Majesty, King Alphonso XIII., enjoys more than when his mother permits him to strike a match and apply the flame to the end of her cigarette. When thus engaged the little fellow laughs merrily, and indulges in all sorts of antics, like a light-hearted little monarch as he is, his dimpled shoulders as yet unburdened by the cares and anxieties of his lofty station.

His Holiness, Pope XIII. at any rate does not consider the use of tobacco as a vice, else he would scarcely have conferred the Golden Rose on so inveterate and confirmed votaries of the weed as Queen Christine and the Ex-Crown Princess of Brazil.

The smoking paraphernalia of the beautiful and voluptuous-looking ex Queen Natalie of Servia is of the most elaborate and magnificent description, while the poet Queen of Roumania, so well known in the literary world under the psuedonym of "Carmen Sylva," is content with a gold cigarette case suspended to her chatelaine.

The Comtesse de Paris, the Queen de jure of France, is addicted to mild Havanas of delicate flavor and her daughter, Queen Amelie of Portugal, is a source of considerable fortune to the manufacturers of Russian cigarettes at Dresden. All the Russian Grand Duchesses and most of the imperial Archduchesses of Austria, including Marie-Therese, Elizabeth, and Clothilde, smoke to their hearts' content, and in the most public manner; and their example is followed by Queen Olga of Wurtemberg, who is a daughter of Czar Nicholas; by Queen Olga of Greece, who is likewise a Russian Grand Duchess; by the Princesses Leopold and Luitpold of Bavaria; and by Queen Henrietta of Belgium. Neither of the Empresses of Germany, nor the Queen of Saxony, nor yet the Grand Duchess of Baden, is known to use tobacco in any form, and if either Queen Emma of Holland or the Queen of Sweden indulges in an occasional cigarette for the purpose of soothing her sorely tried nerves, she does so in private.

Queen Victoria has an intense horror of smoking, and it is strictly proscribed at Windsor Castle, at Balmoral, and at Osborne. This, indeed, is one of the main reasons why the visits of the Prince of Wales to his august mother are so brief and so few and far between. For the heir apparent to the English throne is so little accustomed to self-denial and so fond of smoking that he is scarcely ever to be seen for an hour together without a cigar or cigarette between his lips, and cannot bear to go for any length of time without it. Of his sisters only the Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, smokes, but both his wife and his daughter, especially Princess Maud, are accustomed to indulge in a cigarette when in their morning room at Sandringham or Marlborough House with Miss Bessie Knollys. Many, in fact, most, of the great ladies of France, such as the Duchesses de Mouchy, de la Rochefoucauld, and de Maille are fond of cigarettes, the fashion having been set in France, some five and thirty years ago by Empress Eugenie who, like all Spaniards, was never at her ease except when puffing clouds of fragrant smoke from her lips. Indeed, during the Napoleonic regime there was scarcely a corner in the palaces of the Tuileries, St. Cloud, or Compiegne which was not redolent with the fumes of tobacco. One of the members of the imperial French court, Napoleon's cousin, Princess Mathilde (who, although over 70 years of age, has recently contracted a morganatic marriage with a young man of 28, and bearing the peculiar name of "Porquet"—little porker) the Princesse de Sagan, the Duchess de Persigny, the Marquise de Gallifet, the Marquise de Belbœuf, and the Comtesse de Pourtales may every one of them be said to have seen life only through hazy clouds of smoke. In Austria and Hungary all the great ladies divide their loyalty equally between their beloved Emperor on one hand and King Nicotine on the other, and many is the time that the Princess Metternich, Princess Leontine Furstenberg, Margravin Pallavicini, Countess Sbonborn, Princess Clam-Gallas and Countess Andrassy have been seen smoking on the race course of the Freudenau, or even in the Stadt Park, whilst listening to the strains of Strauss' orchestra.

It is in the Orient, however, that smoking has been developed into a fine art. Debarred from all social pleasures and active mode of life of their European sisters the ladies of the Zenana are restricted to gossip, coffee and tobacco. Nowhere else in the world are these three things brought to such a standard of perfection. A fair idea of the importance attached thereto by Turkish women of high rank may be obtained by a visit to the harem of the Khedive of Egypt at the Ismailia Palace on the banks of the Nile. The audience chamber of his Highness' only wife is a casket fit for a jewel. The furniture is of ivory and mother of pearl and the hangings of silvery satins, embroidered with pale roses and violets in silk and silver thread. The ceiling and woodwork are painted with groups of flowers and the glass in the windows is milk white, whilst the floor is covered with thick white Aubusson rugs, strewn with a design of rose leaves and buds. Here, lying back on a low velvet divan, is the Vice-Queen, smiling her welcome to the approaching visitor. She is still extremely beautiful, although a little too stout. Her face is brilliant and lovely, like a Titian, or a Rubens; her eyes are very large, dark, and velvety, full of the slumberous fires of the Orient: her scarlet lips are like a double camellia petal, and her skin of the warm creamy whiteness of a tea rose. She is generally clothed in white silken tissues cut a l Europeenne, with a great profusion of marvelous lace, and a perfect shower of pearls and diamonds glittering on her hair, on her white bosom, encircling her waist, and covering her small plump hands. Diamonds sparkle everywhere; the tobacco box, which lies on a low inlaid table near the Vice-Queen, is studded with them. The inkstand and penholder which adorn her vernis-martin writing desk are all ablaze with splendid gems, her Highness' slippers are thickly sewn with brilliants, and more jewels from monograms on all the dainty knick-knacks which surround her, from her gold footstool to her powder box and tortoise-shell handglass. On her left heart the Vice-Queen wears a miniature of her husband, framed with huge diamonds and rubies, and round her waist is a broad band of the same stones to which is suspended a fan of snowy ostrich feathers, its handle incrusted with pearls, emeralds, and sapphires.

She always rises most graciously from her couch and extends her hand to the visitor for the "baise-main reglementaire," and during the course of the audience she talks both pleasantly and cleverly about the topics of the day, with which she is thoroughly familiar. Soft-footed slaves hand round tiny jeweled cups filled with a fragrant beverage which in no way resembles the brown mixture that we, in our ignorance, are pleased to call coffee, and the Vice-Queen herself offers her guests some rose-scented cigarettes. The air of the room is heavy with the perfume of innumerable blossoms; great bunches of orange buds, baskets of delicate orchids, of lilac, of tea roses, and of gardenias are grouped on all the tables and stands, for the Khedivia is passionately fond of flowers, and in the large drawing-room adjoining, which is all white and silver, with velvet panels embroidered with silver thread, and doors made of huge mirrors, there are masses of feathery palms, and thickets of roses, azaleas, camellias, and plumed mimosas, like the vegetation of the vale of Cashmere.

The Vice-Queen frequently smokes a narghile (water-pipe). This suits her style of beauty even better than the more prosaical cigarette. The Khedive presented his wife with a narghile of great magnificence. The bowl is engraved rock-crystal, mounted in chased gold, fashioned in the form of a lotus flower. The tube is concealed by a deftly-wrought network of pink silk and gold thread, while the amber mouth-piece and gold plateau are one mass of sparkling jewels.—H. B. McDowell.

In the Surf.

Mr. Boldboy (smiling killingly.)—"The waves are using you rudely. Will you permit me to assist you to the shore?"

Miss Waterly—"Never mind, thank you. The waves may be rude, but they are not fresh."—Life.

The Restraints of Invention.

The profounder and more original the thinker, the greater is the barrier between himself and the learned and unlearned multitude, whom he would approach. Every advanced thinker must meet his obstacles. One might suppose that simple mechanical inventions would escape the hostility of fools; but they don't. So simple an invention as the percussion lock, which has superseded the old flint lock, was invented in 1807, but it was thirty years before it could be introduced into the English army. How difficult was it to introduce coal or even to introduce gas; the candle still survives in England. When the first oil-well was sunk in Pennsylvania by Colonel Drake, it was considered so crazy an affair that he had great difficulty in getting men to do the work. When anthracite was discovered in Pennsylvania, by Nicholas Allen, near Pottstown, he tried to sell a load but got discouraged, dumped it in the river, and emigrated westward. When Robert Morris and others secured a large tract of coal lands expecting to make a fortune, they failed to introduce it and gave up their scheme. When coal was first introduced in London (early, I believe, in the fourteenth century), it produced a great outcry, and a law was passed against it, making the burning of coal a capital offence. It is said that one man was executed, but this is hard to believe. Some persons were so hostile to coal that they refused to eat any food cooked by a coal fire. The opposition was not quite as great to the introduction of gas. The first cargo of ice sent to New Orleans was driven away by the mob. It was imported something like seventy years ago, by Judah Touro, and being put into an ice-house in Congo Square, before it was completed, a mob rushed in, drove off the workmen, demolished the building and ordered the captain to leave the port. The ice was sent to the West Indies, and the newspapers next day were fierce against the importation of ice.—The Arena.

YACHTS CAUGHT IN A STORM.

Flyers Come to Grief at the Kingston Regatta—The Winners.

KINGSTON, Aug. 21.—The regatta to-day was the liveliest and most disastrous ever experienced here. The weather was about as erratic as it possibly could be. The morning broke cloudy but calm. It was thought the races might not occur, but when the hour of starting arrived a nice wind from the southeast was blowing.

The special and forty footers got off in good form, but they were only well away when a squall from the south followed by a dash of rain made matters anything but pleasant. In the midst of the storm the 35 and the 30 footers made away. For several hours afterwards a good breeze was enjoyed.

But between 12 and 1 o'clock a howling gale arose and it created disaster and the wind whistled at a 60-mile gait. Thousands gathered on the wharf to await developments. It soon came, the Volante of Hamilton standing on the rocks at Point Frederick. The crew were saved, a sailor wading ashore and carrying a line with him. Many of the yachts ran for shelter. The Norah, Yama, Merle, Samoa and Gerda stood out the gale and came in victorious.

The yacht Victoria of Kingston, moored between two wharves, broke her stern lines and drifted outward. She knocked a hole in her side, filled and sank in ten feet of water. She is owned by G. Offord.

A yacht owned by Lindsay Russell was saved from going ashore at Murney Tower by a tug picking her up. The Gracie started for her moorings and manfully weathered the gale. She drifted much in the trough of the sea, but was finally able to get to her wharf. Her nose was at one time on the reef in which the Volante stranded. The Volante is lying on her side on Point Frederick. She pounded very hard during the afternoon.

The yachts will not start for Oswego to-night.

Special class:

	Start.	Finish.
Vreda	10	1.22.05
Norah	10	1.25.50
Ariadne	10	Did not finish
Condor	10	Did not finish
White Wings	10	Did not finish

The Norah was well to the front when a topsail was carried away and a boom split, and the Vreda won first place. The Vreda ran into Cataraqui Bay, tried to cast anchor but it was dragged and she pounded Cataraqui bridge. She was kept off the stone piers by soldiers and was finally towed to safe anchorage. The Ariadne, Condor and White Wings retired, though the Ariadne did not do so until after colliding with Gunn's wharf, damaging her rail and carrying away sail and rigging.

Forty foot class:

Yama	10	1.41.30
Merle	10	2.11.00
Verve	10	Did not finish

The Verve of Toronto in making port smashed her stern on the G.T.R. wharf. The Yama proved a good sailer. The yachtsmen wanted to see her in a heavy sea and their wishes were gratified. She carried much canvas and came home well in hand with her larger friends. The Merle proved very seaworthy.

Thirty-five foot class:

Gerda	10.15	2.20.00
Gracie	10.15	Did not finish.

There were only two entries in the 35-foot class, and the gale proved too much for the Gracie, the Gerda alone finishing.

Thirty-foot class:

Samoa	10.15	1.50.08
Amelia	10.15	Did not finish
Kelpie	10.15	" "
Maud B.	10.15	" "
Nadia	10.15	" "
Nancy	10.15	" "
Norma	10.15	" "
Volante	10.15	Stranded

There were no less than eight starters in the 30-foot class; the Hamilton boat Samoa was the only one to withstand the storm and took the prize.

Where are the Reapers?

Three residents of the town were summoned before the Police Magistrate this morning charged with allowing thistles to grow and go to seed upon their premises. This negligence of parties in allowing noxious weeds to thrive and scatter their seeds broadcast is going to be punished, so all parties may govern themselves accordingly. This morning Mrs. Grace Allen, of Wescott-st., Mr. John White, of McDonnel-st., and Mr. Thos. Stothard, of McDonnel-st., were charged as stated above. Since they had been served they had cut the weeds complained of, so the Magistrate dealt leniently with them and allowed them to go upon paying the costs—$2 65 each. More cases of a similar character will probably be heard.

Music at St. John's.

Dr. Davies, the talented organist of St. John's church, gave another organ recital at St. John's last evening. An audience which was delighted with the programme, as they have on all former occasions, listened last evening with an appreciative and attentive manner. The numbers rendered included some of rare merit and the masterly manner in which they were given by Dr. Davies could not fail to please and delight the person who had the slightest taste for music in his composition. The programme rendered was as follows:—

1. Marche Solonnelle........Beuvenuto Pisani (Composed for the Oecumenical Council at Rome.)
2. Andante—First Sy..............Beethoven
3. Chorale et Priere........................Wely
4. Sonata in B flat..........................Rheinberger
Allegro, Moderato, Andante, Grazioso, Finale
5. Fugue, in D Major........................Bach
6. Offertoire in A..............................Wely
7. Minuetto (Le Lac)........................Mozart
8. Overture, "Orlando Palandrino,"....Haydn
9. Schiller March...........................Meyerbeer

THE A. C. A.

A Letter From the Meet—More Prizes Won by Canadians.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—Since writing my last letter only one event has come off. The club race for sailing canoes came off on Saturday. Result—Yonkers first, and Vespers, of Lowell second. There were forty-six entries, the club having the least count for three canoes winning. The number of points for each canoe would be their number as they crossed the home line. It was a grand sight to see all the canoes working for a good position at the start. As usual, some were too fast and had to go back. They looked like a great flock of birds moving about rapidly and gracefully. There was not one collision and only two upsets. The start was made in good style. The race was two miles to leward and back. I have not the time made, but it was good. Quick, of Yonkers, was first, and Ford Jones, of Brockville, second. As he was the only representative he could not be in the race. The two McKendricks were 9th and 10th. On Sunday the Episcopal service was read in the ladies' camp, a large number of people attending. Several of our party paddled two miles and walked six and back, to have a roll in the great ocean surf at a place called Southampton. They were delighted with their trip. Others amused themselves walking along the beach, gathering shells and other salt water curiosities. The day was in general observed as Sunday should be. During the afternoon the wind was blowing a gale and the tents got a great shaking up. In fact some of them were shook down. This morning it rained for about an hour. The unlimited sailing race was billed for 10.30, but had to be postponed. The rain clearing off, a paddling race was called for 12 o'clock. For this race any canoe could enter, but open canoes would not count in the record. Every man had to paddle his own canoe, that is the canoe he intended using throughout the meet. There were about 25 canoes started, among them 6 or 8 of the best open canoes. Carnegie was 1st, Tilley, of Toronto, 2nd; Harry McKendrick 5th, with his big heavy sailing canoe. Carnegie got three and a tiger. So far Canadians are well to the front. Carnegie and Harry McKendrick are looked upon as the likely men for the paddling championship.

Canoeists from all parts of the U.S. are still arriving. I think that all the Canadians are here that will come. To-morrow will be visitors day. A great crowd is expected. They have been kept off so long that they will make a rush when they have the chance. Every boat that comes in brings former A.C.A. men coming to renew old acquaintances. They are generally received with a cheer and shaking of hands. Every day I think of what the manager of the REVIEW has missed by not coming to this meet. The black cat is in great demand. We have received many badges in exchange. There are more races called for to-day. The mail closes at 2 p.m. and I must close.

Yours,
WM. ENGLISH.

Jessup's Neck, Aug. 18, 1890.

MORE HONORS FOR CANADIANS.

SAG HARBOR, L.I., Aug. 20.—In the championship paddling race to-day there were eight starters. H. F. McKendrick was 1st, H. B. Tilley 2nd and J. H. Carnegie 3rd. Three Canadians thus captured the places. McKendrick won easily by at least eight lengths.

Combined Race.—22 starters—1st H. L. Quick, Yonkers; 2nd W. G. McKendrick, Toronto.

Picnic Cup.—24 starters—1st Paul Butler, Lowell; 2nd J. H. Oxholm, Yonkers; 3rd Ford Jones, Brockville; 4th W. P. McKendrick, Toronto.

SAG HARBOR, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The race for the the Internation Sailing Trophy was brought off to-day, and resulted in an easy victory for the Canadian outfit, Ford Jones, of Brockville, capturing it in his new canoe Canuck. Dr. Gage, of the Vespers of Lowell, was second, and the famous Fly of Paul Butler, of Lowell, third. Jones won with at least five minutes to spare.

The Erin Block Property.

Mr. W. Fitzgerald has just about completed another house on the Erin property. He has several offers for lots under consideration and the prospect is that several more new houses will be under way in a short time. The Erin property is bound to go ahead, especially as there are prospects that the new park will be located in the vicinity.

Grand Excursion to the Harwood Picnic.

Rev. Father Sweeney is making arrangements for a grand picnic and cheap excursion to Harwood on Tuesday, 2nd September. The managing committee are engaged in fitting up a magnificent artificial groove of tall and stately evergreens on Mr. Boyle's lawn adjoining the Town Hall. This is always a very popular picnic and deserves special patronage. The steamer Golden Eye will carry passengers from Peterborough and will leave the wharf at 8 o'clock a.m. well equipped with music and palace scow attached. A free throw on a $5 gold piece will be given to every one on the boat. Prof. Crowe and his famous Indian string band will be in attendance on the grounds, where a grand pavillion is erected for dancing. Other boats will run from other points. The Harwood mill shuts down for the day giving the boys a chance to gain a gala day. The large bills will be issued immediately and are full of attractions. 1d44-1w35

The Railway Accident at Lindsay.

The Lindsay Watchman says:—"At about five o'clock on Wednesday morning a collision occurred on the switch at the head of Victoria-ave. which leads on to the Coboconk division of the G. T. R. It appears that whilst one of the trains was being made up at that point several cars were left on the switch. Meantime a heavily laden timber train came thundering down the train line from Coboconk, and the result was a somewhat extensive smash-up. Some dozen cars were smashed, and the engine of the freight train was badly damaged. Fortunately all hands escaped, with the exception of one who in jumping from the train sprained his ankle severely. This is the second collision which has occurred in this section of the G. T. R., which is a very small number considering the large amount of traffic. In spite of constant vigilance, accidents will occur, however, and the heavy fog of the morning made it impossible for the men to prevent the accident, once the mistake in the first instance was made."

The Re-Opening of the Schools.

After enjoying the long vacation the school children will again gather together their books and begin work on Monday, when the schools open. Mr. Ferenden, of the Collegiate Institute, wishes as large an attendance as possible on Monday in order that the classes may be organized and work well started on the first day.

The Minister's Fishing.

Hon. C. H. Tupper, General Cameron, Mayor Stevenson and party, who were enjoying a couple of days fishing on the back waters, came down this morning. The party left here on Wednesday morning and went to Burleigh where they remained Wednesday night. Yesterday they went to Buckhorn, thence to Chemong and came down this morning. Some fine bass were caught, the greater part of the catch being captured at Buckhorn. The Minister was immensely pleased with the sport and the waters and would have remained longer but for urgent business which demanded his presence in the Maritime Provinces. Hon. Mr. Tupper and General Cameron left at noon for Ottawa.

Personal.

Councillor Cahill leaves to-morrow on a trip to the Pacific coast.

[The Lindsay Watchman says:—"Mrs. Laidlaw, mother of Mr. Sandford Laidlaw, of this town, is lying seriously ill at Peterborough, having received a paralytic stroke on Saturday last."

Mr. Stevens, head despatcher of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk railway at Peterborough, was in Lindsay on Tuesday on business in connection with his removal to Lindsay at an early date, the Watchman says.

Mr. F. M. Clarke, of Belleville, is in town to-day adjusting a loss for the Guardian Insurance Company.

There Will be a Big Time.

On Thursday evening next, August 28th, there is to be a "big time" in the Salvation Army here. Their order has gone out to "Blow the bugle, beat the drum and toot the horn, for there is a big time coming when a great welcome meeting will be held in the Army barracks," on Simcoe-st. The welcome will be extended to Major Spooner who is coming from England. He will be accompanied by a large staff of officers and a regular blood and fire, hallelujah time is expected. The Major will give a lecture and tell of what he has seen during his travels, among other things being the Army's 25 anniversary meetings at Crystal Palace, London, Eng., where over 100,000 people gathered to celebrate the anniversary. Tea will be served from 6 to 7 30 o'clock, followed by a torch light procession and open air bombardment. Tickets for tea and jubilee meeting 20c; tea only, 15c; jubilee only, 10c.

The Lacrosse Team's Defeat.

The lacrosse team arrived home last night from Orillia where they were to have played yesterday. The rain, however, prevented the game, so that only one game, that with the Checkers, of Beaverton, was played. The result of this game, 5 goals to 1 in favor of the checkers, does not exactly represent the game that was put up. The first part of the play was close and exciting and the prospects looked well for the Peterborough boys. The umpire, who it was alleged, had money on the game and a protest against whose acting was accordingly entered by the Peterborough club, called a third game for the Checkers when the rubber did not pass within two feet of the flags. This riled some of the boys and discouraged others, and in a good measure accounted for the bad defeat. A couple of the best players were also unable to go, and the team was proportionately weakened. The team left here in the morning with one man short on the twelve, no field captain and not a supporter or admirer with them. It was certainly a rather discouraging start. If any game is going to be played successfully it must be backed up by the citizens of the town to which the club belongs. The boys, however, are not crying over spilt milk, for they knew they had a heavy and well practised team to meet. It is possible that a match may be played here next week with the Orillia club. This club intends taking a tour east if the Cornwalls do not play in Orillia the day after they are in Toronto, and if they come east they will drop off at Peterborough and play a game.

A Musical Treat of Rare Merit.

The lovers of high class music will be afforded an opportunity probably in the last week in September of enjoying a rare musical treat. Mr. Thos. Dunn, whose interest in and love of fine music is well known, has succeeded in arranging for a visit to Peterborough for one night of Miss Clara Louise Kellogg and her company of famed and brilliant musical artists. The company renders a programme in concert and opera, which will probably excel anything ever heard here before. Miss Kellogg's reputation as America's prima donna is world wide, and she requires no words of eulogy to commend her to a music-loving public. She is a born child of song and is the possessor not only of an exceptional voice, but of talents, skill and beauty that have made her deservedly illustrous. Her company also comprises renowned artistes of song. Miss Carrie Morse, contralto, is well known in the operatic world, while Mr. Wm. H. Lee has a baritone voice of rich quality and rare fullness, and has been the subject of most favorable and flattering criticism wherever he has sang. Sig. Carlo Spyavolla, the tenor, is an Italian by birth and has a rare gift of song. These are some of the stars. The company will therefore be of an unusually high grade, and the Peterborough public are indeed favored in obtaining the opportunity of hearing such talent. This will be the only place the company will sing between Toronto and Montreal. Under the circumstances those who have undertaken the great expense of bringing such a company here should be well supported by patronage. The guarantee list is open at Greatrix's drug store or Doucet's, and those desiring seats should sign at once and thus secure first chance at the plan.

SHELLS AND SHOOTERS.

PRACTICAL HINTS TO PEOPLE WHO ARE GOING HUNTING.

Something About Rifles and Cartridges for Hunting This Summer and Fall—How to Buy a Cheap and Good Gun—Shot, Shells and the Loading.

Any man who intends to go hunting this summer and wants a fine gun can save money by making friends with some retail dealer. Let him decide what kind of a gun he wants and what make, and then have a small retailer buy it for him. There is a big discount on all sporting goods, which no man who is unacquainted can get from any of the big dealers. The manufacturers of guns and cartridges have to keep their rates up so that they shall not undersell their customers, the retail dealers. For the bulk of their customers are the retailers. It is the same in the gun business. The big manufacturing concerns do not care to sell a single gun or a few boxes of loaded shells. It is well known through the trade that they [illegible] the retail business [illegible] their orders. By using a retail dealer the purchaser may get more than half the discount. The discount runs from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent; it is the biggest in cartridges. The retail price of a box of cartridges is two or three times as much as they can be bought from the manufacturers for in a large order. All the standard grades of guns are so well known that the buyer can get from the manufacturer a price list of all his stock, and pick out by number just what he wants.

In hunting for any length of time the cost of the shells piles up. Improved methods of manufacturing, the extension of the big plants, and new inventions have cut down the price of guns so that a good repeating rifle can be got for $15 and a good double-barrelled breech-loading shotgun for $25 or $30. These guns are not fanciful, but they will do as good shooting as if their stocks were varnished and hunting scenes were etched on the locks. A hammerless gun does not shoot any better than a gun with hammers, and rebounding locks with patent catches and double bolts are so common that they do not cost much extra. The standard rifle costs from $15 to $40, the shotguns from $20 up. Fancy shotguns can be bought for as much as $500 or $700, but there is little difference between the shooting qualities of them and the $40 or $50 guns.

All the changes of recent years have been made for the convenience of the sportsman. The makers now will furnish him with a gun and all the shells that he may want, loaded with any charge of powder, any kind of wads, and any size and quantity of shot. Some sportsmen prefer to load their own shells, as it is a pleasure to them to measure out the powder and to ram down the wads and pour in the shot. But there are dozens of houses in New York that will do all that for them by machinery. The usual size of shotguns is ten or twelve gauge. The four-gauge guns are seldom used, and are too big for ordinary shooting. The fourteen and sixteen gauge are big enough for birds, but not for larger game; the twenty-gauge are good for birds only, and are intended for only small sizes of shot. The ten and twelve gauge will do for pretty much of anything.

The rates have fallen so that loaded paper shells of the best quality can be bought for 3½ cents apiece. The shells unloaded cost $8 or $9 a thousand, and the difference between the two is hardly more than the cost of the caps, wads, powder, and shot. Good primers in centre-fire shells cost ⅛ as much as the powder. The primers are worth $8 a thousand or five for a cent, while good powder can be bought so that five charges will cost as much as the caps. The shot costs more, as it does not take many 1⅛-ounce charges to use up a 25-pound bag. The wads cost from 30 cents to $3 a thousand. The shells can be loaded with either a big one-third-of-a-cent wad and with powder, or with a cheap cardboard wad, one or two pink edge wads, a pink and black edge wad, another cardboard wad, and the shot. The manufacturers will load it in any desired way. Brass shells are cheaper from one point of view, though they cost ten cents apiece, for the brass shell can be used almost indefinitely, while a paper shell can be used only a few times. Crimping the shells uses them up more rapidly, but it is an advantage, as in a double-barrelled gun the discharge of one barrel will loosen the shot in the other cartridge, particularly if it is a brass cartridge, unless it is crimped. A reduction of ten to twenty-five per cent. can be had on these cartridges by buying them through a small retail dealer, if it is worked properly. This reduction can be obtained more easily on paper shells than on rifle cartridges. Some of the manufacturers make a bid for the retail trade by refusing to sell any cartridges retail. The list price for four drams of powder and an ounce and one-eighth of shot, and with one card and two black-edged wads over the powder, and with a cardboard over the wad, is $36 a thousand. This rate can be cut some, and a well-known customer may get his cartridges for two cents each.

There are extras in the cartridges. Chilled shot costs $1 a thousand more. Buckshot is $1 a thousand extra. Three black-edged wads over the powder instead of two black-edged wads over the cardboard cost ninety cents extra per thousand. One card and two black-edged wads, instead of the black-edged wads alone, cost ninety cents extra. The cardboards are the cheapest things about a cartridge, as the regular price for them is only thirty cents a thousand. Some men prefer to cut their own cardboard out with punches. That is for the pleasure of it and not for economy.

There are rifle shells that cost more than any shotgun shell even with the wire cartridge. Rim-fired cartridges run as high as $40 a thousand for 56 calibre, with 45 grains of powder and 350 grains of lead. One of these cartridges will bore a hole through a frame house. There are centre-fire cartridges which cost five cents each in thousand lots at the factory. The Winchester Express, 38 calibre, with 90 grains of powder and 217 grains of bullet, one part tin to forty parts lead cost $50 a thousand. The Sharps, 40-calibre cartridge with 90 grains of powder and 370 grains of lead and the Ballard rifle also have cartridges costing $50 a thousand.

To the man who is going away for a week or two of sport the cost of his ammunition is a thing to be but little considered, but to professional hunters it is a big item. The men who shoot game in the Adirondacks, particularly small game, have to regard the cost of their cartridges. It would not pay to use eight-cent rifle cartridges on squirrels. In shooting small birds the cost of the ammunition may easily run up to as much as the value of the birds before they are shipped. That is one reason why some of the old hunters still cling to the muzzle-loading rifle and shotgun, aside from their sentimental attachment to them.—N. Y. Sun.

JUBILEE COINS.

One Curious Result of the Cheapness of Silver in England.

The cheapness of silver is having a result which it is surprising has not been made manifest before. Silver coins of the Jubilee issue are being manufactured on the Continent and circulated in England. The mint warns us not to accept these coins; but it seems to be very difficult to distinguish them from those that issue from Towerhill. As silver they are just as good as the coins made at the Mint; they are not mere spurious coin; but their circulation here is an attack upon the monopoly of the Mint and consequently illegal. It is, of course, only at a time of cheap silver that such a process is possible. The market price of an ounce of silver fluctuates at about 3s 10½; but when coined, since silver coins are but tokens, it is worth 6s. 6d. Thus, even with the cost of getting the money to England, there is a very substantial profit. It would be interesting to know how these coins are introduced into England in the first place, and how, being here, they are put into circulation. Some London agent presumably makes a profit by distributing the money.—St. James' Budget.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

And so they conversed until their drooping lids would no longer remain apart, and then, having first rendered up their thanks to God, and asked his help for the future, they retired to their respective places of rest. Ruric had strange dreams, and for the life of him he could not tell whether they were good or bad. Once he dreamed that he was a duke himself, and that he had a wife whose face he had never seen. She would not raise her veil until the ceremony was performed. Then she removed the obstruction, and Ruric started on beholding the face of Valdimir the monk; And then Valdimir seemed to say: "All this I have done for thee. Do you like it?" And Ruric dared not object because Valdimir had done so much for him.

And now, while Ruric awakes from his dreams and wonders what they meant, let us look in and see what is going on in the ducal palace.

It was early morning, and the Duke of Tula was once more in his own private apartment. He had not slept well, for he, too, had had dreams, and they were troublesome ones. They hung about him even now, and they filled his mind with dark and gloomy forebodings. He paced to and fro across the apartment, sometimes stopping and bowing his head, and then starting on again with new clouds upon his brow. Thus he walked and pondered until he was aroused by a stealthy footfall close by the door. He stopped and listened. He knew the step. 'Twas the one he had been waiting for. He moved to the door and opened it, and the humpbacked priest, Savotano, entered the apartment.

"By St. Paul, Savotano, I feared you would never come," the duke uttered, as his workman closed the door behind him.

"I would have come sooner if I could, my lord; but even now it is early morning. The sun is hardly above the city wall."

"Well—it is early, I know; but I have not slept well."

"I have not slept at all, my lord."

"No. Savotano, you look worn and weary. But you have been at work."

"Aye—I have."

"And you have come to tell me the result of that work. Does it move you so, to do such work? I thought you were used to it."

The priest gazed into his master's face, but he did not speak.

"Bah!" uttered Olga contemptuously. "What is the killing of a man? But tell me—did you conceal the body so that no one will find it?"

It was some moments before Savotano spoke. His frame trembled, and his hands worked nervously together. But at length he said, in a hesitating tone:

"He is not dead, my lord."

"Not dead yet? But you promised me he should be."

"I know—but we could not do it."

"Bah! I gave you credit for more firmness. Not kill a man? What is there so terrible in that?

"You misunderstood me, my lord. We did all we could toward killing him, but he escaped us."

"Hold!" cried the duke, starting forward and grasping the priest by the shoulder. "You do not mean that Ruric Nevel has escaped you."

"He has, my lord,"

"But not entirely! You do not mean that he has fairly gone from out your hands?"

"He has, my lord. But listen—"

"Listen, thou bungler? By the saints, what story can ye tell to make that smooth and reasonable? You had him in your power, and you should have kept him."

"But, my lord, the devil himself is working for that man. We went last night to kill the fellow, and I waited all of two hours for Totma and Viska, but the rascals did not come, and I engaged others."

"And did they prove treacherous?" cried Olga, in sudden passion.

"No, my lord—they did their best, but they were interrupted by that accursed monk, who came backed by some dozen men."

"What! Do you mean that Valdimir came there?"

"Yes."

"And with a band of armed men?"

"Yes."

"Then, by the gods, there's treachery somewhere!"

"I know not what to think, my lord," returned Savotano, in an uneasy, perplexed tone. "The only men who are absent are Lesko Totma and Frederic Viska; and they are surely our best men."

"But you see plainly that there must have been treachery!" exclaimed the duke, passionately. "Oh, how I would like to know the man! And did this monk carry off the gun-maker?"

"He did. And he captured four of our men. I escaped without being seen."

"That is fortunate—"

"I mean that the monk did not see me—nor did any of his followers. But the gun-maker saw me."

"And do you think he mistrusted you had any hand in the matter of his imprisonment?"

"I should judge so," returned the priest with a peculiar twinge of vengeance about the lips. "The villian knocked me down."

"Ha!"

"Aye—the moment he saw me."

"But do you think he knows anything about it?"

"No. I do not think he does. He can only suspect."

"Then we'll be prepared for him if your own men are to be depended upon. But leave that to me. I'll fix that matter with the Emperor. I'll see him this very day, and be sure he shall have a story that can destroy all evidence which these fellows can hatch up."

"But I must flee, my lord."

"Not yet, Savotano. I must have your help within a very short time. By the true God I swear, that the Countess Rosalind Valdai shall be my wife within the present week. I'll place the seal of fact upon that matter at once. Fear not, for I know my influence over the Emperor will shield you from all harm. Why, Peter would sooner lose his right hand than lose me."

"Then most surely I will remain, my lord, for I much wish to perform that ceremony for you. But who is this black monk—this Valdimir?"

The duke started across the floor, and for some moments he continued pacing to and fro. When he stopped he brought his hands together with an energetic movement, and looking the priest sternly in the face, he said:

"Let that monk be who he may; whether man or devil, God or saint, I'll destroy him! I have the power, and I'll use it. As Warden of the city I have the power to arrest him upon suspicion of conspiracy. I'll do it! Where is he now?"

"I know not."

"Never mind, I'll to the Emperor first. I'll study my plan, and ere the sun sets it shall be carried out. By heavens, I'll be baffled thus no more. I could have wished that this gun-maker had been quietly out of the way, for then all would have been clear and plain, and I should not have feared the trouble of his clamoring about my ears. But let him go. I would not give much for the life he has left. I'll dispose of him soon. But that monk—by heavens, he dies at once, and without consultation with the Emperor; for I can swear he is a conspirator."

"Good!" ejaculated the priest.

And thus the business was arranged for the present. Passion helped the duke wondrously in his conclusions; and the wish was made into the power. But even before the priest left, the stout nobleman began to wish that he had a very little more power. In fact, as he came to reason he began to doubt; but he gave up not one idea of the plan he had formed for the vengeance his soul so madly craved.

CHAPTER XVII.

"I dare not! Oh, I dare not!"

"But it is only our hope."

"And whither shall we go?"

"Anywhere rather than remain here. Oh, my mistress, if you do stay here you know the fate which awaits you. There is no other means of escape from the wicked duke's power."

"And I must thus cast myself among strangers—lose my all of earth—"

"Hold, Rosalind. By St. Paul!" there is surely one in Moscow who will help you. Let us go to the Emperor. Oh, if he be the man I have heard he will surely listen!"

"Ah, Zenobie!—the duke is high in power, and his influence is great at court. Peter would not dare to thwart him."

"It may be so, but I do not believe it. And yet, my mistress, just think, for one moment, how you stand in that respect. You have nothing to lose. This life of earth, with all its pains and sorrows, and with its most exquisite tortures, holds nothing worse for you within the bounds of possibility than to become the duke's wife. If there were but one chance in the thousand you had better try it. Remember—you can not possibly lose anything; but the chances are for you. Let us go to the Emperor."

"But how, Zenobie?"

SUDDEN TAKING OFF.

Hamilton Farrell of Huron Township Dies Under Peculiar Circumstances.

KINCARDINE, Aug. 21.—On Thursday week Hamilton Farrell of Huron township died somewhat suddenly, and his taking off was much after the manner of his brother Ben's, which occurred about a year ago. Dr. Secord, the family physician, was anxious that an inquest should be held, and took the necessary steps. Dr. McCrimmon of Underwood was the coroner, the body was exhumed and viewed by the jurymen. The evidence did not go to show that there was foul play nor is that idea entertained. The stomach, kidneys, etc., have been sent to Prof. Croft of Toronto for analysis.

The Minneapolis Flour Report.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 21.—The Northwestern Miller says: The flour output last week was 156,450 barrels. The demand for patent flour during the past seven days has been very good. Some of the heavier firms sold quite freely, New England taking the most, New York and Chicago also buying a good deal. Some mills, however, have nearly caught up on their orders. Prices are about 35 to 50 cents per barrel higher than a week ago, on account of the advance in wheat. Bakers' are still in good request for export, and some sales have been made at a slight advance. The direct export shipments last week were 43,500 barrels. For eleven months of the crop year the flour output this season has been 6,184,295 barrels, against 5,237,895 a year ago. The direct exports of flour are 538,800 barrels ahead of last year.

Toronto Musicians Going to Brantford.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 21.—Mr. G. H. Fairclough of the Toronto College of Music and organist of All Saints' Church has been appointed director of music in the Presbyterian Ladies' College here. He will also be organist and choirmaster of Zion Presbyterian Church (Dr. Cochrane's). Miss Alice Waltz of Toronto has also been engaged as teacher of vocal music and voice culture.

The Stranded Dania.

FIRE ISLAND, Aug. 21.—The passengers of the stranded steamer Dania were transferred to the steamer Augusta Victoria of the same line and the latter took them to New York. She had started for Europe this morning. The captain of the Dania expects to get her off at the next tide. The Dania carried 333 steerage passengers.

THE PULSE OF TRADE.

BRADSTREET'S AND DUN-WIMAN ON THE SITUATION.

Autumn Business Begins With Fair Demand—The Stock Markets Affected by the Industrial Disturbance—The Advance in Wheat and Corn.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Special telegrams to Bradstreet's show that general trade incident to autumn has begun with a fairly good demand. Grained leather is generally scarce and in active request with prices higher. Boots and shoes have advanced 10 to 15 cents per pair at first hands. Cattle are lower for common, but hogs are 5 cents up on increased demand. After a sharp depression due to the stringency of money, stock prices show a tendency to rally on the expectation of increased supplies of funds from the tender of 4½ per cent. bonds to the treasury. The threatened extension of the New York Central strike is also an element in the market.

Net earnings of 96 railroads for June aggregate $12,710,378, a gain over June, 1889 of 10.2 per cent.; for six months of 1889 of 13.4 per cent.

Copper tends upwards at home and abroad, notwithstanding the recent prices. Iron and steel remain steady as to price.

Renewed short crop reports as to wheat at home and a decided preponderance and bullish sentiment served to push wheat up 2½ this week, despite the natural bearish tendencies of the northwest exclusive of producers. Indian corn, too, advanced ⅝c and oats ½c.

Business failures reported to Bradstreet's number 169 in the United States this week against 148 last week and 218 this week last year. Canada had 29 this week against 29 last week. The total number of failures in the United States, Jan. 1 to date, is 6663 against 7497 in a like portion of 1889.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Dun, Wiman & Co's Weekly Review of Trade will say: The signs of monetary disturbance which were noticed in previous reviews were not misleading. Money loaned on Thursday at half a cent per day premium or about 190 per cent. yearly, and most of the loans were at a quarter premium. Money for commercial loans is scarce and rates nominal. Though the Bank of England lowered its rate from 5 to 4 per cent. and European markets were easier, there was no relief for the immediate demand here. In general the condition of legitimate business is encouraging, unless monetary pressure of labor controversies interfere. The threat of a great strike on all Vanderbilt railways has helped to depress stocks and to disturb shipments.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Charged With Assaulting a Constable—A Surprise for Wormworth.

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—Nathaniel Wormworth, who tried to make out he had been robbed of $700, was yesterday charged with carrying a revolver. He was remanded until Monday, the same day as O'Leary, the man falsely charged with robbing him.

Paul Gates, charged with assaulting Constable Dewhurst, was remanded till Tuesday, when his alleged accomplice, Francis Houck, will be in the city. Houck was working on a farm near Paris and was arrested there on information received by the detectives. Dewhurst was stabbed by these men in the arm, it is alleged, on Aug. 8. Dewhurst was in court with his arm in a sling.

The Mayor has received a letter from the Governor-General, promising to endeavor to attend the exhibition but he could not promise sure.

Superintendent Tait, according to arrangement, surrendered himself at Osgoode Hall yesterday morning in answer to the Coroner's warrant charging him with manslaughter. J. P.'s Baxter and Fleming were in attendance to accept the bail bonds which were offered by E. B. Osler and H. C. Hammond.

Edward Hancock, the tramp who was so badly injured in the collision near Cobourg Thursday afternoon that his leg had to be amputated on the spot, was brought to the Toronto Hospital early yesterday morning. Last night he was reported to be in a serious condition.

AFTER MANY YEARS.

Mrs. Beavis, an Old Hamiltonian, Granted a Pension by the U.S. Government.

HAMILTON, Aug. 23.—In 1863 Edward Beavis, known among his friends as "Ted," who lived with his parents in King William-street, near Ferguson-avenue, crossed the border, and going to New York, enlisted in a regiment of New Jersey cavalry. A number of letters were received from him by his relatives after his departure until a battle in which he participated, when communication ceased. His friends heard, however, from those who had seen him that he was lying dangerously wounded in a southern hospital. About 18 months ago his aged mother, who resides at present in London, Ont., consulted with ex-U.S. Consul Roberts and steps were taken towards securing a pension. U.S. Consul Monaghan of this city also interested himself in the matter, and the result was that after accumulating a quantity of evidence, a few days ago Mrs. Beavis received about $200 pension money from the date of the application and will continue to receive $12 per month during her life.

John D. Dent, whose hack was cut to pieces by some malicious person the other night, has offered a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty party

ARBITRATION DECLINED.

POWDERLY IS WILLING BUT WEBB FLATLY REFUSES.

Another Offer Made by the State Board—The Replies of the Labor Leader and the Vice-President—The Latter Says He Fears no Trouble Except Violence.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—State Commissioner Donovan yesterday afternoon sent this letter to Vice-President Webb:

"It having come to the knowledge of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration that another strike is seriously threatened on the lines of your company, I am instructed by the board to again communicate with you and invite a joint conference in the offices of your company between you and representatives of your employes with a view of devising some means either by arbitration or such other method as may be mutually agreed upon whereby the threatened strike may be averted and abrupt interruption of travel and transportation of freight be prevented."

A similar letter was sent to Mr. Powderly, who sent a reply to Mr. Donovan, in which he says:

"Our board is willing to comply with your request and hold itself in readiness to respond at a moment's notice. We hold ourselves in readiness to do any honorable thing to terminate the strike or avert another one and sincerely hope that either arbitration or such other methods as may be agreed upon will have the desired effect. Recognizing in you an officer of the state and assuring you that we have from the beginning been willing and anxious to submit the matter to you for adjustment, I am very sincerely yours."

In his reply to Mr. Donovan, Webb expresses the belief that the efforts to extend the strike will fail and says: "The operating force of the company is full, the passenger service is regularly performed, and there is no obstruction to its freight service except lawless interference and the apprehension thereof." He states that he is not aware of any difference or grievance existing between the company and its employes. He assumes the conference suggested is one between the officers of the company and the officials of the Knights of Labor. These officials, he says, represent "not our employes but persons who have left our service and have not asked to be re-employed." The letter concludes as follows: "Of course we deprecate any interruption or delay in the transportation of freight upon the lines of this company. I shall take every means in my power to prevent such an occurrence, and if the constituted authorities prevent lawless interference with our employes I do not anticipate any interruption of passenger or freight traffic. For the above reason it seems to me inappropriate and unnecessary to have the conference suggested by you."

APPLYING THE BOYCOTT.

The D. & H. Asked Not to Take Freight from the Central.

ALBANY, Aug. 23.—The report current yesterday that 20 yardmen in the Green Island yards of the D. & H. who are Knights of Labor had gone out on strike because the D. & H. road persisted in receiving Central freight was more than a trifle exaggerated. A deputation called upon Superintendent Hammond and requested him to refuse freight from the Central and Superintendent Hammond said he would let the men know to-day what the road would do. One of the officials of the road in speaking on this question said it was difficult to see what right the men had to make such a demand, the effect of which if granted would be practically to tie up the D. & H. almost as bad as the Central road, as a large part of the road's own freight traffic depended upon its connection with the Central. At the West Albany and the Karnan yards yesterday great progress was made in cleaning up these yards. Over 200 men are now at work there and 100 more from Chicago and other points west are expected to-night.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon as James Gray, a plumber, was making his way over the railway crossing at the East Albany end of the upper bridge George Wahl a C., B. & Q. conductor, who was on a freight train at that end of the bridge, fired three shots at him from a revolver without any provocation. None of the shots took effect except to excite the anger of a crowd of 150 strikers who were standing on their side of the track viewing the operations of the green hands. When they heard the shots they made a rush for the conductor who jumped from the train and ran over the foot path on the bridge to the Albany side, where he was taken in charge by the Albany police and held for assault in the first degree.

About 250 men were at work in the West Albany shops yesterday. A few Knights of Labor who went out first have returned to work. These men attend to the daily repairs required by the road. The usual number of men daily employed in these shops is 1500.

A MAMMOTH LOCK-OUT.

All the Building Trades Will Be Out of Work Next Monday.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—On Monday morning New York will see an extraordinary lock-out of bricklayers, carpenters, joiners, hodcarriers and every trade and business connected with building, and thousands of men will be idle. After to-day not a brick will be received in the city, and consequently so far as building is concerned there will be nothing to do after that day.

The lock-out arises from the fact that in certain yards non-union men were employed, and the Knights of Labor wished to change that state of affairs. The firms were McConnell & Vaughey, Avery & Mackey, Cyrus Travis and King & Lynch. They would not accede to the demands of the Knights, and consequently the latter ordered a boycott of their yards.

Then the brickmakers all around determined to stick by their fellows and crush the labor organizations. The result is that no manufacturer will supply bricks to New York till the boycott on the four firms named shall have been raised.

A general gloom, the shadow of the approaching event, prevailed to-day in the building exchanges, and the members talked in a disconsolate way of the outlook for next week, and laid the blame entirely on the walking delegates who ordered the boycott

They Side With the Company.

AMSTERDAM, N.Y., Aug. 23.—A large number of manufacturers of this city have signed a letter which has been sent to the acting president of the Central Hudson Railroad congratulating him on the manly stand he has taken against the strikers. The manufacturers say they trust that he will not recede from his position and they predict that he will come off victorious if he remains firm.

The Vice-President's Case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Mr. Webb last night gave out a statement declaring that the company has not discharged any men because they belonged to a labor organization. The discharge of the 50 or 60 men mentioned in Mr. Powderly's appeal was due to drunkenness, incapacity, breach of duty and insubordination on the part of the men and to lack of sufficient work to employ them. The officials of the company do not intend to transfer their duties, including the employment and discharge of employes to anyone except their duly appointed successors. The remark is made that it would probably be criminal neglect of duty not to discharge a switch tower man for drunkenness when the safety of many passengers depend on the man's sobriety. No business could be carried on, says Mr. Webb, when men are allowed to be absent without leave, and no employer could tolerate insolence and insubordination based upon the belief that the offender will be supported therein by a secret organization by the agency of which the employer's business can be damaged or stopped. Mr. Webb considers it a monstrous absurdity for Powderly and his associates to ask that anybody except the railway authorities should be satisfied that cause existed for discharging the men.

Nothing is doing in strike matters on the surface and no new developments are expected.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

The Trade of Australia Paralyzed by the Shipping Strike.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 23.—The shipping strike has caused a general paralysis of business. It is reported the Victoria and New South Wales iron works and factories will close down owing to the lack of coal. Nine Woollongong collieries have stopped work owing to the cessation of the steamship demand and lack of means of transportation. A joint conference of Melbourne and Sydney shipowners has been arranged. The great labor employers have renewed their pledge to stand fast against the strikers' demands.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 23.—The strike in the Borinage district is spreading. Yesterday 3600 miners quit work, making a total of 11,800 on strike.

The Duke of Clarence Ill.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—It is stated the Duke of Clarence is suddenly ill. He has never been well since his return from India and has lately been confined to the house. Unless a change for the better takes place soon his physicians will recommend a long sea voyage.

THREE NEW EMPRESSES.

To Steam at Sixteen Knots and a Half Between Canada and Japan.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—The three new steamers of the C.P.R.—the Empress of India, Empress of China, and Empress of Japan—are approaching completion at the yards of the Naval Construction and Armament Company, Barrow-in-Furness. The Empress of India will be launched Aug. 30. The other two vessels are to follow at intervals of two months. No expense has been spared and all the work is of the best character. The vessels are twin-screw steamers of 10,000 horse power, gross tonnage of 5700, and are contracted to do 16 knots on the measured mile and 16½ knots on a 400 mile sea trial. The dimensions are: Length, between perpendiculars, 485 feet; breadth, moulded, 51 feet, and depth, moulded, 37 feet. Each vessel will be lightly rigged with pole masts and fore and aft canvas, and the form, both under and above water, is of such symmetry and finish as to ensure propulsion at the high speed required. The greatest possible attention has been paid to precautions for the safety of the vessels.

The accommodation for passengers is extensive and luxurious. Each vessel will carry 120 first class, 50 second, and 300 steerage, as well as nearly 4000 tons of cargo. On the upper deck an extra promenade is provided for the use of passengers, while a good many special staterooms are also to be found on this deck. On the lower deck, which is 200 feet long, there is a covered promenade of 100 feet, where shelter and fresh air may be sought in wet weather; while the dining saloon, library, and other parts of the saloon accommodation are richly upholstered.

The total cost of the three vessels will be between £600,000 and £650,000 sterling.

The Anglo-Portuguese Agreement.

LISBON, Aug. 23.—According to the Portuguese version of the Anglo-Portuguese agreement, England recognizes as Portuguese territory the Hinterland of Angola from 11½ degrees south latitude to the northern boundry of the German sphere, Great Britain having free way between her northern and southern territories. All the country westward from Lake Nyassa will be British territory. The agreement also provides that any further boundary disputes shall be referred to arbitration. The transit dues in Portuguese territory are not to exceed three per cent. ad valorem. The comments of the Lisbon press are generally favorable to the treaty.

CANADA AND THE BAHAMAS.

Governor Shea Trying to Obtain Steam Communication With Canada.

HALIFAX, Aug. 23.—Sir Ambrose Shea is here endeavoring to obtain steam communication between Canada and the Bahamas. He tells a glowing story of the purchasing power of the colonists and their increasing efforts. Their whole trade is now practically with the United States and their sole communication is with New York. Sir Ambrose thinks Canada could supply the Bahamas with nearly everything they require, while the Dominion would obtain its supply of fibre there. Sir Ambrose will go to Ottawa to urge this upon the Government.

To Vote on the Tariff About Sept. 5.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The committee appointed at the Republican Senatorial Conference to arrange an order of business to take the place of the Quay resolution met and reached a conclusion upon the order of business, but some details remain to be settled. The Tariff Bill, after a date to be fixed, is to be considered under the 5-minute rule until a vote is taken. The date of this has not been decided and will be subject to arrangement with the Democrats. It is expected that the vote will be reached about Sept. 5. After the Tariff Bill is out of the way other measures named in Quay's resolution are to be taken up and disposed of. The election bill will come up the first thing after the reassembling of Congress in December, but the time at which a vote shall be taken is reserved for further consideration

A Large Manitoba Seizure.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—The Customs Department has now under consideration one of the largest seizures that has ever taken place in the city of Winnipeg. It is the seizure of an electric light plant of the Northwest Thomson & Houston Electric Light Company of Portage la Prairie. The reason given is that of undervaluation. The invoices on which the goods were shipped, it is alleged, only showed the cost price and not the actual commercial value. On behalf of the shippers an affidavit has been made that it was through error that the plant was shipped on the invoices which accompanied it. In the meantime the plant is held to permit the department making a thorough investigation. The plant is worth many thousands of dollars.

WENT DOWN TO DEATH.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON A GRAVITY RAILWAY AT READING.

A Car Runs Away and Carries Its Living Load Down the Mountain at 80 Miles an Hour—Four Persons Killed Instantly and Many Injured, Several Fatally.

READING, Pa., Aug. 23.—A horrible accident occurred yesterday afternoon shortly before 11 o'clock on the Mount Penn Gravity Railway, a mountain route encircling Mount Penn 800 feet above the city of Reading. The road was opened five months ago and has been doing good business ever since. The cars were taken from a point on the outskirts of the city to the top of the mountain, a distance of five miles. On returning the cars were allowed to go down the mountain by gravity, by way of another route, to the point of starting. This forenoon at 10½ a car containing about 18 passengers was taken from the station to the top of the mountain. This consumed about 30 minutes. On the top of the mountain there is a high stone tower where the passengers were allowed to alight and enjoy the scenery for 30 miles around.

There are different stories as to the cause of the accident, but it appears that when the tower was reached, the point where the gravity portion of the road commences, the engine was detached and the car ran away while the passengers were still on board. The distance to the point of starting is five miles, and it is estimated that this was covered by the runaway car in three minutes, the car attaining a fearful speed estimated at 80 miles an hour. It remained on the track to the foot of the plane going around all the curves, while the passengers shrieked in their fright and several jumped off.

When the car reached the station at the foot of the plane it jumped off the track and rolled down a 30-foot embankment, where it landed upside down with the passengers imprisoned inside. The greatest excitement prevailed and soon a large crowd gathered. Doctors and the ambulance were sent for and the dead and injured removed. Four were taken out dead. They included Charles Rettow, conductor of the car, and E. M. Lavan, a lawyer of this city.

Norman B. Wisher of this city, who was standing at the foot of the plane when the car came crashing down the mountain, says he first heard a distant roar as of thunder, and looking up saw the car coming down the mountain—but sticking to the track—at the rate of about a mile in 45 seconds. He had barely time to recover himself when the car like a lightning flash dashed past the station and down the embankment 30 feet below. Mr. Wisher was the first on the ground. He says he found the car turned upside down, the passengers all thrown into a confused mass, and that with the assistance of others who arrived he helped to carry out the dead and injured. There were about a dozen of the latter with broken limbs and battered heads, their clothing being covered with blood. Mr. Wisher said as the car fell the united shrieks of twenty voices added terror to the scene. In addition to Edgar M. Lavan and Charles Rettow the two others killed were Miss Rosa Pfeiffer, a young lady of this city, and Miss Harriet Hinckle of Philadelphia. The following will die: Mrs. Hiram Schittler and Mrs. W. A. H. Schmel. Among the injured are Sallie Bye and Mary Guthrie of Wilmington, both badly hurt, and Willie Schmel of this city, both legs broken.

BROKE THE BANK.

Toronto Turfites' Big Winnings on Bledsoe in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Aug. 23.—A party of "dead game" turfites from Toronto put up a lot of money in the pool rooms here Thursday on Bledsoe. The odds were six to one against the Canadian horse, and when his victory was announced the West Eagle-street place closed its doors. The "bank was busted." Two other places lost $2500 each, but paid up and looked pleasant. This is the second time that Canucks have "broken the bank" within a few months. The first occasion was when Echo pulled off a big steeplechase at Brighton.

Cardinal Smith's Woodstock Experience.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 23.—Cardinal Smith, the man now lying in Simcoe jail charged with the murder of Maria Colville in 1884, says The Standard, four years ago, in company with a woman he called his wife, opened a house of ill-fame at Woodstock. When he came here he made no secret of his intentions. He went to Chief of Police Smith, and taking him into his confidence asked for protection in opening out a high-class establishment. The chief allowed him to go on, and when the house was opened he arrested the whole crew. They were brought before P.M. Field and he sentenced Smith to the Central Prison for six months, and his wife, who went by the name of Rena, to the Mercer Reformatory for 23 months. They did not serve out their terms, however, as through the efforts of a Woodstock solicitor and affidavits of certain parties alleging that Smith and his wife were committed to jail before conviction (although such was not the case) they were released after a confinement of only a couple of months. Smith, as remembered here, was a cold-blooded scoundrel.

Attributed to an Accident.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—Oscar Maloy, a young detective in the employ of the Secret Service Bureau, yesterday shot and probably fatally injured Policeman Muckle. The affair occurred in the corridor of the Central Station and is thought to be accidental, though there were no witnesses of the deed.

To Meet at Hamilton Next Year.

WATERLOO, Aug. 23.—The Saengerfest closed last night, the events of the day being a procession and picnic, winding up with a ball in the evening. The attendance was large and the affair has been a grand success. It was decided to hold the next Saengerfest at Hamilton.

A C. P. R. Brakeman Killed.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23.—W. J. Fox, brakeman on the Canadian Pacific Railway, fell from a freight train while entering the yard here last night and was instantly killed. He was a single man and came from Oxford, Ont.

To Aid in Cardinal Smith's Defence.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 23.—James McKenzie of Brantford has been engaged to obtain evidence for the defence of Cardinal Smith, charged with the murder of Mary Colville near Bloomsburg in December, 1884.

RECIPROCITY AND FREE TRADE.

A SINGULAR hallucination has taken possession of a number of good Liberal journals in regard to Mr. Blaine's policy as announced in connection with the McKinley bill. Mr. Blaine, it will be remembered, tried to secure a change in that measure and as he did not succeed he made a public protest against a part of it. Upon this it is claimed by Liberal papers that Mr. Blaine, who has always been a protectionist, has become a free trader. But was it that Mr. Blaine protested against? Mr. McKinley proposed to admit sugar free of duty, and the Secretary of State raised his voice in protest and argued strongly that the duty should be allowed to remain. If that is evidence of the entrance of the "thin edge of the wedge of free trade" into the mind of Mr. Blaine, free trade must be something altogether different from what the term would seem to imply. On the face of it there is no appearance of free trade in the position taken by Mr. Blaine, but the opposite.

But the Liberals who have all at once found something in the Blaine statesman to admire will say that he went further than that and gave a reason for his protest. So he did. He wished the duty retained in order that he might use it as a lever to secure concessions from sugar exporting countries—so that he could say to these countries that if they would remove the duties on agricultural produce and manufactures from the United States the Republic would reciprocate by admitting sugar duty free. But that is not free trade. England is a free trade country. Cobden and his disciples did not wait until the United States, France and other nations were willing to reciprocate before they proclaimed free trade in England and removed the protective tariff duties. They were free traders and they said that the duties must go without reference to what other countries did, although they held out the hope to the lingering protectionist sentiment that other countries would follow their example, and the duties went. The hope that other nations would also adopt free trade was not realized, but the English remained free traders and continue that policy without reciprocity. That is free trade, and that is not what Mr. Blaine proposed.

Reciprocity is not incompatible with protection, at any rate as it is understood and practised in this country. There are industries that can be aided by the tariff; there are articles that this country cannot produce and must import. Canada is ready to enter into reciprocal relations with any country that can supply this country with what it requires and that will take from this country on equal terms what it has to sell and the other country wants. There would be little use in trying to reciprocate with a country that produces the same class of articles as the Dominion does, as little use as it would be for two farmers who have a surplus of wheat to buy wheat from each each. Yet almost any two countries can supply each other with some things, and although Canada and the United States produce in the main the same articles, this country at the time of the adoption of the National Policy in 1879, and previous to and since that time, has made overtures to the United States for freer commercial relations, but they were rejected.

A country that adopts free trade is not in a position to make advantageous reciprocal arrangements. Mr. Blaine saw that when he protested against the removal of the sugar duties by the McKinley bill. Our Liberal friends recognize the same thing when they endorse Mr. Blaine's action, and this fact is emphasized when the advocates of commercial union say that it is the United States that Canada should made a free trade treaty with, even though by so doing the duties on British imports were increased, because we already have free access to the English markets. It is clear that by adopting free trade a country loses its power of making advantageous commercial arrangements, it is equally clear that Mr. Blaine did not advocate a free trade policy and that those Liberals in Canada who endorsed his action and his arguments were strongly, though perhaps unwittingly, tainted with that protectionism that they profess to dispise.

HER LOVER USED AN AX.

William Taylor Chopped Down His Successful Rival.

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 23.—A tragedy was enacted at Lakeside Park, a summer resort about 12 miles south of here, last evening. William Barber and William Taylor had been courting the same girl, a Miss Aggie Miller. Taylor was her first lover, but when Barber, a rich Chicago business man, appeared on the field the star of Taylor quickly set. He took the latter very much to heart, became moody and made threats. Last night while Barber and his sweetheart were strolling along the bank of the lake Taylor followed them with an ax. When he had the ax raised to strike his rival, Barber heard him and started to run. Taylor followed, and soon catching up with the fleeing lover, dealt him a blow in the head which felled him to the ground. This was followed by another and another, until Barber lay dead at Taylor's feet. Taylor ran away but was soon captured, and is in the Kosciusko county jail. He is a good-looking young fellow, but has always borne a bad reputation around Warsaw by reason of his bad habits.

HER HUSBAND'S NIECE.

"George, when did you get this letter?" asked Mattie Henderson, as she glanced into her husband's face.

"On Wednesday," he said, with some hesitation.

"And this is Friday," rebukingly replied his wife. "You carried it about in your pocket for at least two days. It is from your niece, Fanny Atwood. She left New York yesterday and will be here on the 8 o'clock train this morning, and it is half-past 7 now. This is a nice state of affairs, isn't it?"

"It was careless in me, Mattie," the young farmer regretfully admitted.

He was a handsome, good natured fellow, sturdy in frame and pleasing in speech. He had a whip in his hand, and his wagon, loaded with milk cans, was standing at the gate.

"She says she'll get off at F——d station, where you are to meet her," Mrs. Henderson said, her eyes once more on the letter.

"Oh, pshaw," cried the husband with an impatience unusual with him. "I can't. I must have my milk at Beaver station on time. Why didn't she come over the road most convenient to me?"

"I suppose she'll have to walk here," replied the young wife. "And as she says that she intends to stay three weeks, no doubt she has brought her trunk with her—a trunk of no mean dimensions, I'll venture to predict. I am a good deal more put out about it than you are. There's the butter to churn, the clothes to iron, the currant jelly to make, and goodness only knows what else. She'll be too dainty to lay a hand to anything, and will spend her time reading, sleeping and lolling in the hammock. She might have waited to be asked."

"I know it will prove an infliction," the husband consolingly said. "But I guess there's nothing to do but to bear it. Things may not turn out as bad as you fancy they will."

He got into the wagon and drove off. Mrs. Henderson walked into the spring house to churn the butter. She was seldom peevish and rarely complained, but the visit really seemed inopportune. She was not very strong, and as she worked early and late and took no recreation, it was beginning to tell on her nerves.

The farm was not entirely paid for, and they were not able to keep a girl. She was a sensible little woman, and felt that it was her duty to second her thrifty husband's efforts. Leisure, if not competency, would come by and by.

In descending the steps of the spring house she fell and sprained her ankle, the pain so great that she almost fainted.

"That means a week of enforced idleness," she despairingly thought. "Time so precious, and that fashionably reared niece of George's more of a hindrance than a help. "Oh, dear!"

After much painful effort she succeeded in reaching the sitting room and threw herself upon the comfortable lounge. She fell into a doze, and when she opened her eyes there stood Fanny Atwood, looking down into her face.

She had on a plain, sensible looking traveling dress. Her figure was compact, her complexion healthy, her air cheerful, her demeanor self-possessed. Her cheeks were dimpled, her mouth indicated resolution, her soft brown eyes offered confidence and invited it. She had walked two miles through the hot sun, over a dusty road, but one would hardly have thought so, she looked so neat, clean and placid.

"You are my Aunt Mattie, I suppose?" she said, in a low, sweet voice, a smile lurking among her dimples.

"Yes," Mrs. Henderson said with an effort. "Your uncle forgot to give me your letter until this morning. He could not meet you because he had to deliver the milk over at the other railroad at the hour you named. I am sorry you had to walk."

"I wasn't vexed about it," replied the visitor. "Nor am I in a hurry about my trunk."

"I sprained my ankle," Mrs. Henderson said. "I am afraid I will not be about for three or four days."

"That is too bad," commiseratingly rejoined Miss Atwood. "It seems I was just to come. I can do ever so many things for you."

"Yes," grimly assented Mrs. Henderson.

"I'll first look after that ankle," the visitor said briskly, cheerfully.

She removed her dainty looking cuffs, and then took off her aunt's shoe and stocking.

"It is considerably swollen," she said.

"I am not surprised," replied Mrs. Henderson. "You'll find a bottle of liniment in the cupboard yonder."

"I wouldn't put liniment on it just yet," advised Fanny. "Have you any sugar of lead?"

"Very likely. Look in that medicine box in the cupboard. There's a little of everything there, almost."

Fanny found the sugar of lead, and then some linen suitable for a bandage. She put the sugar of lead in a basin, added cold water, soaked the bandage in it and then wrapped it around the swollen ankle. She went about it like a professional nurse.

"That feels very cooling," Mrs. Henderson gratefully said.

"There is nothing reduces a swelling like sugar of lead water," replied Fanny. "I'll wet the bandage every now and then with it. Just you remain quiet, dearie, and don't bother yourself about anything. You have no girl?"

"No, my child," Mrs. Henderson said. "We cannot afford to keep one."

"I'll get uncle his dinner," announced Fanny.

"You'll—get—George his dinner?" repeated Mrs. Henderson.

Fanny noticed the incredulity in her tone, laughed prettily and said:

"Why shouldn't I? If you will allow me to skirmish around I'll manage to find things. However, it isn't near dinner time yet. When I went to the kitchen for the basin, I saw you had sprinkled the clothes. Shall I iron them?"

She saw the odd smile that came to her tired aunt's lips and correctly interpreted it.

"Maybe you think I can't iron?" she pleasantly said. "Just you wait and see."

"But the dress you have on, Miss Atwood? It"——

"Was selected for service," completed Fanny. "Of course I'll put on one of your aprons."

When George Henderson returned from his errand he heard some one singing cheerily in the kitchen. He stopped in and saw his niece ironing away as deftly as if she had spent the best part of her life at it. She made such a pretty picture that he stood still and looked at her.

"How do you do, uncle?" a twinkle of merriment in her brown eyes; then she went and kissed him, standing on tip-toe to do so.

"I'm glad you've come, Fanny," he said with heartiness. "I suppose Mattie explained why I did not meet you at the station? But why are you ironing? Where is Mattie?"

"She is lying down, uncle. She fell and sprained her ankle."

Mr. Henderson stepped into the sitting room, a look of concern on his face.

"Why, dear, how did this happen?"

"Oh, how does anything happen?" she replied, a little querulously. "Through my own awkwardness, no doubt. I almost fainted, the pain was so great."

"Does it pain you now, dear?"

"I am glad to say that it doesn't."

"I'll bathe it in sugar of lead water," he said. "There isn't anything better."

"Fanny has already done that," replied the wife. "It was her own suggestion."

"Oh," ejaculated Mr. Henderson, with increasing appreciation of his niece.

"And she insists on ironing. A pretty mess she'll make of it!"

"Well, maybe not," Mr. Henderson said in a quiet tone. "I watched her a little while. Mattie, you are a good ironer, but she is your equal."

"Oh, nonsense, George!" exclaimed his wife. "Reared in the city, as she has been"——

"Didn't necessarily make her a lazy, silly, novel reading imbecile," interrupted her husband. "Perhaps we haven't been just to Fanny. I think she is a solid, energetic, capable sort of a girl, and it is lucky that she came."

"Well, I hope it may prove so," doubtingly rejoined the wife. "George, there's the butter!"

"I'll churn that," he said. "We'll get along. Just you keep your mind at ease. You will get about much sooner if you do."

On the third day Mrs. Henderson was able to hobble to the kitchen, where she found everything in most excellent order.

"Look at my currant jelly," Fanny proudly said, as she held up one of the glass jars to the light. It was translucent and bright as ruby tinted wine.

"It is very nice," Mrs. Henderson said. "How much sugar did you take?"

"Pound for pound," replied Fanny, "I wasn't extravagant, was I?"

"You were wise," her aunt said with a smile.

She opened the door leading to the cellar.

"Fanny, did you whitewash the stairway?" she asked in surprise.

"Yes, auntie. It needed it. I knew you meant to do it, for I saw you had slaked the lime. Isn't it nicely done?"

"Very nicely," Mrs. Henderson said. "But it wasn't right for you to do it. Surely your hands"——

"Look at them," Fanny said, laughing. "They are as white and soft as any lady's. I put gloves on, and then I have a sort of dainty way of working. I can do it well without pitching into it all over. I have a knack, as mother calls it. If it was right for you to whitewash the cellarway, it was right for me to whitewash it. I came here to help you and to spare you; to ride the horses, to go to the mill with Uncle George, and to make myself useful and—welcome. If you are not going to let me work, or have any fun, why I'll go right back to New York."

Mrs. Mattie Henderson sat down in a chair and cried.

"Why, aunt, what is the matter?" asked Fanny, her brown eyes widening. "I hope I didn't say anything to"——

"No, dear, you didn't," replied Mrs. Henderson in a broken voice. "I am crying because I am ashamed of myself—because I have been so unkind to you in my thoughts. I supposed that you would annoy me, and hinder me; that you would be helpless, selfish, fault finding; that you"——

"But you think more kindly of me now, do you not?" interrupted Fanny, her hands moving caressingly over her aunt's hair.

"Most certainly I do," replied Mrs. Henderson explosively. "That is why I confess my injustice—why I want to make amends—why I"——

"Don't mind it, aunty," said the sweet, forgiving, sympathetic voice. "I don't censure you, and it's all right now. There may—and, in fact, there are—listless, frivolous, helpless girls in New York city—and in other cities—but I am not one of them. If I was, I am afraid I would despise myself."

"I am glad you have come, Fanny, and I will be sorry when you go," Mrs. Henderson said, and she meant it. "My prejudices mislead me, and I have been taught a lesson. Hereafter I'll not be so hasty in estimating people, especially before I have met them."

Won by Hard Work.

Mr. T. C. Doidge, of 372 Wellesley-st., Toronto, a fourth-year undergraduate of Toronto University, won The Canadian Queen's "Free Trip to Europe" by making over eleven hundred words from letters contained in the name of that magazine. Mr. Doidge worked over seventy hours to accomplish the task. He sails by the "Parisian," September 3rd, and will be abroad three months. The publishers of The Queen will soon announce another "Free Trip to Europe" word contest, with $200 for expenses.

A Fish Story

The Lakefield Chronicle says:—"Many of the residents of Stony Lake while waiting at the store one day last week for their daily mail were witnesses of an amusing incident. A fair young lady from Peterborough was engaged in trying to entice some of the far-famed bass of Stony Lake from their cool retreat. The pull announced a bite and with a vigorous pull and toss of the rod she landed a fair sized eel into the boat. One glance was sufficient, and with a scream 'a snake' jumped overboard and scrambled to the shore, never looking behind until she had regained the group of amazed spectators."

Labor Day Celebration.

The Trades and Labor Council have about completed arrangements for their grand labor picnic to Campbellford on Labor Day, September 1st. As this day has been proclaimed a public holiday it is probable that a great crowd will go to Campbellford. A good programme of sports and games has been arranged and the committee will allow nothing to remain undone which will add to the success of the day. The following is the committee which has the arrangements in charge:—Messrs. George Rose, chairman; Robt. McGreggor, secretary; John Kelly, treasurer; John Emmerson, A. Wright, John Gibson, H. Williams, Jas. Moore and H. Martin.

The Queen Pays all Expenses.

The Queen's last "Free Trip to Europe" having excited such universal interest, the publishers of that popular magazine offer another and $200.00 extra for expenses, to the person sending them the largest list of English words constructed from letters contained in the three words "British North America." Additional prizes, consisting of Silver Tea Sets, China Dinner Sets, Gold Watches, French Music Boxes, Portiere Curtains, Silk Dresses, Mantle Clocks, and many other useful and and valuable articles will also be awarded in order of merit. A special prize of a Seal Skin Jacket to the lady, and a handsome Shetland Pony to the girl or boy (delivered free in Canada or United States), sending the largest lists. Everyone sending a list of not less than twenty words will receive a present. Send four 3c. stamps for complete rules, illustrated catalogue of prizes, and sample number of the Queen. Address, The Canadian Queen, Toronto, Canada.

CAUGHT BENEATH A BED.

A Young Man Caught in Mr. G. M. Roger's House and Arrested as a Burglar.

The capture of an alleged house breaker was made last night under unusual circumstances. As a result of the capture Wm. Sharpe, a young man just about reaching his majority, was in the prisoner's box at the Police Court charged with having broken into the residence of Mr. G. M. Roger with felonious intent to steal. The prisoner is a respectable looking young man and would be little suspected of doing a job of house-breaking.

The way the young man found his way into a prisoner's cell would point straight at guilt. For a couple of weeks past the residence of Mr. G. M. Roger has been standing closed up, Miss Roger being away in Muskoka and Mr. Roger enjoying a holiday at Stony Lake. Last evening both of them returned and were met at the station at about nine o'clock by Mr. Arthur Blade, who was to drive them to the house. When approaching the house Miss Roger thought she saw the glimmer of a light in one of the bedrooms, but Mr. Blade, never dreaming of burglars, said it was only the reflection of the electric lights of the town that the lady had seen. The party drove up to the house and entered, but an uneasy feeling that the light she had noticed came from something other than the distant electric light, made Miss Roger still feel a little frightened about going upstairs. Mr. Blade therefore took a lamp and went up to make a tour of inspection and quiet all fears. What was his great surprise when upon entering one of the bedrooms to see a pair of good-sized feet protruding from beneath the bed. Setting down his lamp Mr. Blade promptly seized the protruding feet and dragged a full grown man

FROM BENEATH THE BED.

The young man said nothing at first. He was taken down stairs and the police telephoned for. Then the prisoner began to plead for mercy and to be allowed to go. He said there had been an accomplice with him in the house. Search was accordingly made, but no partner was found. The prisoner then said his mate had been outside, to keep watch, but, if such is the case, he must have been an unreliable sentinel. When caught the young man had a silk handkerchief, a pair of socks, a pencil case and some other trifles in his possession, so that it was evident that he had not been long inside.

Acting-Constable Moore was sent up from the police headquarters and brought the young man to the cells. After coming down he denied that he had any accomplice in the job, but said he was alone

At the police court this morning Mr. Arthur Stevenson appeared for the defence. The prisoner pleaded not guilty and, upon request of his counsel, was remanded until four o'clock when he will come up for trial summarily, as he elected.

South Monaghan Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society will be held at Centreville, on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 2nd and 3rd.

A Mason Dead.

A telegram was received here to-day from Cobourg announcing the death at that place of Thos. Battell, a gentleman who is well known in Peterborough. The deceased is a Mason and will be buried with Masonic honors on Monday afternoon.

A Severe and Painful Accident.

Mr. Wm. Hook met with a very severe accident last evening. While drawing his waggon into his shed (moving backwards), his foot slipped on a piece of metal and his knee struck against the whiffletree, breaking the cap. Dr. Carmichael, his medical attendant, was promptly on hand, and with the assistance of Dr. Yelland did all that could be done under the circumstances. It will be some time before Mr. Hook will be able to resume his business.

Ashburnham Annexation.

It will be remembered that at the last meeting of the Town Council Councillor W. H. Moore introduced a motion which was carried, appointing a committee on the annexation of the village. This committee was appointed on the strength of the belief that the Ashburnham people were desirous of becoming part of a city, it being stated that several of the Ashburnhamites were anxious for such a union. A leading resident of the village speaking to a REVIEW reporter yesterday and being sounded in regard to the feeling of Ashburnham in regard to annexation, said if there was any desire at all, it was the business men of the village who were anxious for the union, the ordinary residents being willing to remain as they were at present. Said he:—"These residents think that their taxes would be higher and that they are being brought into Peterborough just to pay for a system of sewerage for the town. People in the village say that Peterborough wants sewerage and that they would like to get Ashburnham to help to bear the expense and receive none of the benefit." However, the gentleman said, he did not think there was any anxiety or strong feeling on the question at present in the village, but they would wait for the town. This is just about the feeling in the town. No advance will be taken by the town until Ashburnham speaks or moves. The village Council meets on Monday night, but annexation is not likely to be discussed.

The Horticultural Exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society is to be held on September 4th in the new market building. Prize lists and particulars can be obtained by interesting exhibitors from Mr. Peter Henry, Secretary, at Mayor Stevenson's office, Water-st. The exhibition this year promises to be a success. A good prize list has been arranged and those who have exhibits should procure a copy at once.

Music and Illumination.

A garden party and social under the auspices of the W.C.T.U. was held at the residence and grounds attached of Mr. A. Rutherford on Reid-st. The beautiful lawn was beautifully illuminated, while the commodious house was also thrown open for those present. The Y.M.C.A. band was in attendance and discoursed some excellent music during the evening. Refreshments were served by the young ladies and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present. The attendance was good, so that a very nice sum will be realized by the ladies.

Moving the Town Time Piece.

The work of moving the town clock from its present position on the Opera House block to the tower on the new market building will be commenced by Mr. R. W. Muncaster early next week. It is hardly probable that glass dials which can be illuminated at night will be placed on the clock, as the expense is too great. New dials will have to be purchased for the clock, as the present ones cannot be moved, but it is likely that wooden ones will be used. The glass dials would cost about one thousand dollars when they were in their place, and besides this there would be the cost of illumination. Of course the general public would like to see the clock illuminated the same as the post office clock, but the expense must be considered.

It was a Close Contest.

Referring to the drill competition at Cobourg the Sentinel-Star says:—"Three Cantons entered the contest:—Belleville, Peterborough and Bowmanville, the latter being accompanied by the renowned band of that town. The drill of the uniformed cantons was a very interesting sight. The first to go through their evolutions were the Bellevilles, followed by Peterborough and Bowmanville cantons. The drill of the two latter was excellent, and so close were they in ability that the judges, in order to decide between them, had to seize upon every little defect. The movements of the Peterborough contingent were somewhat more animated than those of their rivals, and they would probably have taken the first prize, only that one of their men was constantly out of step, which told seriously against them in the summing up of the points."

A CHILD'S HORRIBLE FATE.

Eaten While Alive by Two Idiot Boys—Gloating over Their Prey.

By Telegraph to the Review.

OTTAWA, ONT., Aug. 23.—A few days ago Mrs. Cote, who lives with her husband in a small settlement on the Du Lievre River, went berry picking and foolishly left her one year old boy in charge of the two deaf mute sons of a neighbor, Ritchie Newton. The boys are of unsound mind, but were regarded as comparatively harmless, although occasionally they had shown signs of a vicious disposition. When the mother returned, a fearful sight met her gaze. The babe was frightfully torn, its cheeks had been literally eaten to the bone, and the flesh devoured from one side of the neck. The gory faces of the idiots, who were still gloating over their prey, showed all too plainly that they had literally eaten the child alive, for it died a few moments later in its agonized mothers arms.

Our English Cousins.

England is the banking-house and financial agency of the world. She is a great factory and shipyard, but in the next century will have to give up her pre-eminence in these particulars. She does the ocean carrying trade of the world, but in this, too, she cannot always stand first. Some of her scientific and economical investigators give her only one hundred years in which to exhaust her supply of coal situate for inexpensive mining. With her cheap coal, her superiority in facture will depart. Till Babylon itself shall fall, England seems likely to be and remain the banking-house of the world. A recent estimate gives her revenue from investments outside of the United Kingdom at $5,090,000 a day or $1,825,000,000 a year. The taxed income alone of Great Britain in 1886 was $3,160,000,000, on which the tax, at 6 pence the pound, was $63,500,000. Of the income and profits of the people of Great Britain only that which is above a certain amount is taxed. Hence the income taxed does not notify the total income of our English cousins. That is estimated carefully at somewhat more than $7,000,000,000 a year. It costs England a round sum to support her royal family.

Queen Victoria is paid $300,000 a year into her privy purse. She is paid $1,150,000 a year, for salaries of the royal household. She is paid $880,000 a year for retiring allowances and pensions to servants. She is paid $66,000 a year to give away in royal bounties, alms, etc. She has $161,000 a year for incidentals. As Duchess of Lancaster she gets $200,000 a year from that duchy. This makes a total of about $2,175,000 a year. Her son Alfred, the Duke of Edinburgh, is paid $125,000 a year. So is her son Arthur, Duke of Connaught. Her daughter Victoria, ex-Empress of Germany, is paid by Great Britain $40,000 a year, and each of the other girls $30,000 a year. Her cousins, too, are paid all the way from $15,000 a year to $60,000 a year, her cousin George, Duke of Cambridge, getting the latter sum. Her eldest son and heir apparent, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is paid $200,000 a year for himself and $185,000 a year for support and maintenance of his children. Besides this from his duchy of Cornwall he gets about $310,000 a year.—Public Opinion.

SUNLIGHT SOAP

and how to use it.

Drop the old and hard way. Try this:

Dip the pieces one by one in luke-warm water and rub the soap on lightly, taking care to soap each piece all over.

Roll each piece in a tight roll and leave it to soak for about 30 minutes, while the "Sunlight" Soap does its work.

After soaking the 30 minutes or so, rub out lightly on the washboard, and the dirt will actually drop out.

Then rinse in clear luke-warm water, taking special care to get the suds away.

Do no scald or boil a single article, no matter how dirty, and do not use washing powders.

Colored goods, woollens, etc., are treated the same way, but not soaked so long.

They are kept soft and smooth by this soap.

Put aside your own notions next washday and try the Sunlight Labor-saving way.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

"This evening—after the darkness of night has gathered over the city—let us go. I tell you I do not believe the Emperor will deliberately suffer a great wrong to be done for the sake of pacifying the duke. He has more noble independence than that."

The young countess did not answer at once. She pressed her small white hand hard upon her brow, and then she remained for some time buried in profound thought. At length she raised her head, and the fire of determination was in her eye.

"I will go," she said. "I will go to the Emperor. He will help me if he has a human heart."

"You have one satisfaction, my mistress; he can not harm you."

"Can not?"

"I mean that you can but be made to marry with Olga; and all other harm would be as nothing compared with that."

"Aye—you are right, Zenobie. We will go this very night."

The more Rosalind pondered upon this new resolve the more hope did she derive from it. Ere long she conversed more freely with her attendant, and at times that old smile would struggle for a moment upon her face. Yet she had gloomy moments, too. Her fear was too deeply fixed to be swept away so easily.

The afternoon passed away, and as the shades of night gathered over the great city the two girls were astir. Zenobie gathered together such articles of clothing as would be needed, and then proceeded to prepare her mistress for the adventure.

"Fear not," she said, as she drew on Rosalind's robe of fur, "for there can be no danger worse than that we flee from. Try only to remember that you flee from the duke's foul embrace!"

This served to nerve the fair young countess up to the task, and her frame ceased its trembling.

"I shall not falter now," she said. "But shall we find the Emperor at this late hour?"

"Bless me, 'tis not late. But even if we do not see him to-night we can do it in the morning. We shall find plenty in the imperial palace who will shelter us till then."

The girls were now ready, and all that remained was to start on their strange mission. With noiseless steps they left the apartment where they had dressed and proceeded along the corridor to the great staircase. Zenobie knew there would be less danger there than to go down the other way among the servants. Having descended these stairs they came to the great hall which opened one way into the saloons. They took the former course, and were soon in the court. The only trouble now was in passing the porter's lodge at the gate, for they knew the great gate was not open, and to gain the street they must pass through the room where the porter always stayed. Zenobie went ahead and looked in. The porter sat by the fire playing with his dog.

"My mistress," whispered the girl, as she came back, "old John is in the lodge, and we need have no fear. He is a simple, good-natured fellow, and I am sure I can get by him. Do you go in advance—cover up your face—don't look at him; and be sure you don't tremble. Leave it all to me. Remember now; you have—"

"Fear not, Zenobie. Go on."

So on they went, and when they reached the lodge Rosalind went in first and stood by the wicket, while Zenobie followed, and opened the door that looked into the porter's room.

"Good John," she uttered, in anxious tones, "come and open the wicket for me quick. My good mistress is very ill, and Tilda and I are going for the doctor. Come—be quick."

"But why don't some of the men go?" asked John, as he started up and forced his dog back.

"Because 'twould take them longer to do th' errand than 'twill us. But don't detain us. We shan't be gone long."

The honest porter had orders not to allow the countess to pass out, but he thought not of that now. He had known the gentle girl from a child, and so well did he love her that he might not have stopped her even had he known she was then waiting to pass out. At all events, he could not refuse the present request, so he came out and opened the wicket without further question, and the girls passed through.

"Now—now," uttered Zenobie, in nervous haste, "we are clear of the palace. Here is the street. Our walk is not long."

Rosalind answered not, but drawing her robe more closely about her to keep out the cold, biting wind, she hastened along by the side of her companion. Hope was now alive within her. She turned one glance behind her, and she could see the light which she had left burning in her chamber. It seemed at that moment to be the fiery eye of a demon gazing after her, and instinctively she quickened her pace.

Twice during the day did the Duke of Tula call at the imperial palace without being able to find the Emperor; but in the evening he was more fortunate. The Emperor was in, and Olga was admitted at once to his presence.

"Well, my lord duke," said Peter, as Olga approached; "what business calls you from home at this hour?"

"Business of importance, sire. Business of less moment to me than to the state."

"Ah? Proceed."

Only two attendants were with the Emperor, one of whom was Demetrius the Greek, and the place of audience was in one of the private apartments near the bedchamber, where only privileged ones were ever allowed to come.

"Sire," commenced the duke, "you remember the gun-maker who was before you not long since?"

"Ah—yes. The one who took my Greek's sword from him."

"The same, sire. Have you heard from him since?"

"By my soul, Olga, I had well-nigh forgotten the fellow. Yes, yes—I remember him well now. He was a right stout knave."

"Aye—and a dangerous one, too, sire. A dangerous man," said the duke, with a dubious shake of the head.

"Ah—what has he done?"

"Why he has been engaged in various robberies to my certain knowledge; and only a few evenings since he knocked down one of our holy priests, and robbed him of all he had. He is at the head of a numerous band of desperadoes."

"Is it possible?"

"I know it, sire."

"By St. Paul! I should not have believed this."

"Nor would I have believed it, sire, had I not received proofs not to be questioned. I, as is my duty, have long been anxious to ferret out this gang of robbers—"

"But I have never heard of them, Olga," interrupted Peter.

"Ah, sire, because I gave direction that you should not be troubled with the affair. But I have them now. It is only last evening that I got a clue upon them. We found them in an old building near the river, here in the Kremlin, and this same Rurik Novel was with them. But he made his escape."

"I do remember me now that the fellow had a bold bearing, and a fearless look," said the Emperor, half to himself; "and if such a man turns villain there must be danger in it."

"Aye, sire—you speak truly. And now with your order I can apprehend the fellow at once."

"I can send and have it done my dear duke."

"But your officers may not find him. I know where he is, and can have him taken at once. He has several hiding places."

"Well—then you might do the work with more advantage."

BOOMER COOLICAN IN JAIL.

The Well-Known Speculator Gets Into Terrible Trouble at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Yesterday the police arrested the famous Canadian real estate speculator and boomer, James F. Coolican, the man who made Winnipeg well-known in Chicago. He came here on Sunday from Chicago with a 16-year-old girl, Hattie Stevens, and registered her as his niece at the Quincy House. The proprietor had him arrested for abduction and adultery. The prisoner is now at headquarters awaiting bail.

Inoculation for Consumption.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Dr. Grancher, the most cherished of M. Pasteur's pupils, read before the Academy of Sciences a report on experiments which, in conjunction with M. H. Martin, he has been making with a view of discovering a remedy for the fell disease which has hitherto completely baffled medical science—viz., tuberculosis. In an interview he said:

"Yes; we have reached in our experiments such a stage as justifies the hope that we shall sooner or later have at our disposal the means for effectively combating consumption," said Dr. Grancher modestly. "As yet, however, we are far from our ultimate goal; so much so, in fact, that we should not have made our experiments had it not been for Professor Koch's communication to the Berlin Medical Congress.

"The German professor, it will be remembered, read a paper stating that he had found a chemical which rendered guinea pigs impervious to tuberculosis. Coming from an unknown physician this announcement would have probably passed unnoticed, but made by Professor Koch it was of capital importance. Mr. Koch stated he had been experimenting for a year past. We began our experiments five years ago, though that does not, of course, prove that we are any further advanced than he.

"Exactly what we have succeeded in doing is this: We have inoculated rabbits with bacilli tuberculosis in quantity sufficient to make a fatal result, certainly. Then with our treatment—which of course we must keep secret until we are assured of its value—we have kept those rabbits alive from two hundred to three hundred days. On examining them after death we have found the spleen and liver healthy, without any trace of small tubercular bacilli. Rabbits which we have inoculated with an exactly similar quantity of microbes and which we have not treated have died within a few days of the inoculation with all the symptoms of injected disease.

"Two hundred days in the life of a rabbit would represent several years in the existence of a man, as you suggest, but we are not content with analogies; we want facts scientifically demonstrated beyond all possibility of controversion. On that account we have taken the precaution of injecting the maximum amount of bacilli, injecting it, furthermore, into the veins of the ear, whence it is certain to at once enter into the whole system.

"I lay particular stress upon this fact, each of our inoculations in this series of experiments was sufficient to kill—not one, but half a dozen animals. Having succeeded in keeping those rabbits which we treated after inoculation, alive for periods ranging from 135 to 220 days, while rabbits not treated died 22 days after inoculation, we have proved the value of our treatment in so far as rabbits are concerned. We shall shortly experiment with monkeys, and if those tests succeed then we shall feel justified in experimenting on human beings.

"Our experiments have had yet another object—that of determining whether vaccination can be used as a preventive against tuberculosis; in other words, if by vaccination we can render a subject refractory to the disease. That this can be done we have also proved, always in respect to rabbits. Thus you see we have at least advanced a stage toward both the prevention and cure of tuberculosis."

Suicide at Oakville.

OAKVILLE, Aug. 22.—Edward Gordon, who for some time past had conducted a real estate business in Toronto, died at his home here Wednesday afternoon under circumstances which lead to the belief that he committed suicide. The deceased was a bachelor and resided with his sister. During the latter's absence the domestic hearing what she took to be a pistol shot ran to Gordon's room and found him unconscious. Dr. Urquhart was summoned and the discovery of a bullet hole over the the heart explained the sudden death. Deceased had been in poor health since recovering from an attack of grip and had been unable to attend to business. In consequence, it is said, he sustained heavy losses and recently made an assignment. He had been despondent ever since.

Leprosy in Cape Breton.

HALIFAX, Aug. 22.—Several cases of leprosy have been discovered at Englishtown, C.B., and the people call upon the Dominion Government to investigate the facts and take charge of the lepers.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face (pityriasis), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued use for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude,

(Rev.) WM. CREELMAN, York Corner, Me.

Cuticura Remedies

Are compounded upon scientific principles, are absolutely pure, delicately manipulated and in every respect bear the stamp of a refined and cultivated origin. Wherever there is the highest intelligence, there you will find the greatest appreciation of these remarkable remedies. CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood and Skin Purifier and greatest of Humor Remedies, internally (to cleanse the blood of all impurities, and thus remove the cause), and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally (to clear the skin and scalp and restore the hair), cure every species of itching, burning, scaly and pimply diseases and humors of the skin, scalp and blood, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, whether simple, scrofulous or hereditary.

Sold everywhere. Price, CUTICURA 75c.; SOAP, 35c.; RESOLVENT, $1.50. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Boston.

Pure Lime-Fruit Juice.

WHAT is Lime Juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the Best Temperance Beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the Lime Fruit without admixture.

By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the Lime Fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand (as supplied to the British Government), in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, prepared Lime Juice, &c.

AN OUTLAW IN GLENGARY

THE MEGANTIC BRAVADO FINDS A COUNTERPART IN ONTARIO.

Wanted at Auburn for Murdering a Prison Guard—Hounded Around the Country by Four Detectives, But They Can't Get Onto Him—His Clansmen See That He Does Not Starve.

CORNWALL, Aug. 24.—The pursuit of a murderer is at all times exciting, but the circumstances connected with one now going on in the county of Glengarry are of more than ordinary interest. A convict defying arrest, baffled detectives and a sympathizing community combine to make a case rivaling in interest that of Donald Morrison, the Megantic outlaw.

Some years ago Peter McClellan, the son of a respectable Scotch farmer in the township of Roxborough, and related to many of the leading families in the county, left home to work in the lumber shanties of Michigan. Leaving the shanties he fell into bad company and, after wandering over the States for a while, was arrested and condemned to Auburn (N.Y.) penitentiary for burglary. About three months ago he succeeded in escaping from the penitentiary after a desperate struggle in which one of the turnkeys was killed. The reason of his desperation was that he had heard that, immediately on the expiration of his term, he would be arrested for a murder which had been mysteriously committed some time before, but the particulars of which only recently came to light.

McClellan made at once for his home in Glengarry, followed by two United States detectives and two officers from Montreal, one of whom is Detective Carpenter, who shot and captured Donald Morrison. To complete the parallel with the Megantic case, the clans soon got the idea that the man was being hounded and naturally manifested their sympathy. If they do not actually assist in concealing him they at any rate refuse to give any information as to his whereabouts. Most of the farmers send milk to the cheese factories there and are in the habit of leaving the cans at the road side over night for collection in the morning. Wherever McClellan happens to be, he is almost sure to run across some of these cans, and if he takes enough to last for several days no one ever complains. Again, as in most country places, the cellars have outside entrances, the doors of which are never locked. McClellan has been heard several times helping himself to cold meats, pies, bread, etc., but the householder quietly ignores the noise. He has been seen at the house of his married sister and also on the farm of one McGillivray, in the 18th concession of Lochiel, but has declared that he will never be captured alive. As he stands over 6 feet 2 inches in his stockings and is of gigantic strength, it can easily be imagined that the police will be somewhat cautious about attempting a capture unless in full force and this of course will prolong the chase. In fact it has become a saying in the county that if McClellan is in one concession, Donald the blacksmith, a local constable, is sure to be in the other.

Detective Carpenter is said to march along the road with a gun on his shoulder, but so far has not had a sight of the convict, although it is well-known that on one occasion he was within half a mile of his bird. However, the sympathy of the inhabitants for the hunted man makes it a difficult matter to learn anything of his movements.

One thing is certain, that if the posse ever does come upon him a bloody fight will ensue.

THE PRINCE HAVING A GOOD TIME

Halifax in a Gay Whirl Over the Presence of George of Wales.

HALIFAX, Aug. 24.—Society folks in Halifax are having a constant round of festivities just now in which Prince George, Gen. Sir John Ross and Admiral Watson take a conspicuous part. Last night Sir John gave a supper party at Maplewood, on the banks of the Northwest arm, when a procession of illuminated boats, carrying many of the guests, passed up the arm and landed their gay occupants at the grounds.

To-morrow evening the Prince and some of his brother naval officers give a small dance at the dockyard.

On Tuesday evening Sir John Ross gives a large ball at Bellevue.

A Woman Breaks Jail.

SARNIA, Aug. 24.—About noon Wednesday a woman named Clisold, sent to jail Monday, to serve a six months' term for being a loose and disorderly person, performed an unprecedented act in the history of Sarnia jail, viz: that of being the first woman to make her escape from that institution. While alone in the yard she climbed a water pipe running down the north wall of the jail, reached the roof of an outhouse adjoining, and from there made her way to a window leading into the grand jury room, through which she entered. Once in there it was an easy matter to descend to the street.

The Peach Crop Killed Once More.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 24.—Competent persons set the amount of money kept from the pockets of the growers in the peninsula by the failure this year of the peach crop at nearly $3,000,000. This, taken with the small crop for 1889, makes the loss to the grower, for the two seasons about $5,000,000. On the peninsula the latest yield will be but about 600 baskets.

LABOR MEN IN CONCLAVE.

WHAT THE SUPREME COUNCIL IS DOING AT TERRA HAUTE.

Many Hours Spent in Deliberation Without Arriving at a Conclusion—May be Several Days Before the Matter is Decided—At Other Points.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 23.—Frank Sargent, president of the Council of the United Order of Railway Employes, and Eugene Debs, secretary of the order, were busily at work in their offices at 7 o'clock this morning. They were getting things in shape for the meeting of the council, which was set for 10 o'clock this morning. At the same hour the other 10 members of the council—Hanrahan, Howard, Lovejoy, Wilkinson, Sheehan, Morrissey, Sweeney, Downey and Hall—were fortifying themselves for the day's work by taking a hearty breakfast at the hotel.

Interviews with Messrs. Hanrahan, Morrissey and Sweeney show very clearly that each of them recognizes that the eyes of the country are on them. They and their associates are to decide as soon as possible whether or not the greatest strike the United States has ever seen will be inaugurated. Each expressed the wish that nothing should be done hastily; that every phase of the situation should be discussed by them with the utmost deliberation.

Mr. Sargent and Mr. Debs are anxious that the people should understand thoroughly just what the power of this council is and how the momentous question of a general strike on the Vanderbilt lines will be brought before it and settled. To put it clearly, nothing is better than to read verbatim the sections of the constitution of the Supreme Council bearing directly on the subject:

Sec. 15. All grievances for the consideration of the supreme council shall be presented in writing and signed by the chief executive, who shall certify in addition thereto the name of the railway company and the number of men involved; and give such other information as may be pertinent to the subject.

Sec. 16. A grievance presented under the provisions of the foregoing section shall be read by the secretary, whereupon the council shall proceed to discuss the same, making such enquiry and investigation as may be required to develop a true and complete statement of all the facts in the case. After due and diligent investigation the council shall proceed to ballot for the approval or disapproval of the grievance in the following manner: The three representatives of each organization shall be convened separately by their respective chief executives, and each of them shall prepare his ballot, with the word "approved" or "disapproved" written thereon; if two or more of the representatives vote in favor of approval such shall be the vote of the organization they represent, and the chief executive shall cast said vote accordingly; and if two or more of said representatives shall vote in favor of disapproval such shall be the vote of the organization and it shall be cast accordingly by the chief executive. When all the organizations are prepared to ballot the council shall be reconvened and the secretary shall call the roll of organizations, each of which shall be entitled to one vote, predicated upon a majority vote of its representatives, and the vote shall be announced by the chief executive and entered upon the minutes by the secretary. The secretary shall then announce the result of the ballot and if it is found that all the organizations have cast their vote in favor of approval such shall be the decision of the supreme council, but if it be found that one or more of the organizations have cast their vote in favor of disapproval such shall be the decision of the body.

Sec. 17. The supreme council may upon a two-thirds vote of the representatives in a meeting assembled modify or amend a grievance, or strike out any portion thereof.

Thus it will be seen that the president of the council has only advisory powers and his vote is not supreme. It can readily be seen, however, that his influence is great.

The opinion in Terre Haute is that there will be a great strike, but this is only an opinion and nothing positive can be learned until the deliberations of the council come to an end. When the conclusion will be reached is something that cannot be speculated upon now. It may be a day or three days before the matter is decided.

Deliberating as to Whether or Not a Strike Shall be Ordered.

TERRE HAUTE, Aug. 23.—Behind closed doors, with J. J. Hanahan of Chicago as inside guard, the members of the supreme council of the United Order of Railway Employes has sat almost the entire day to reach a conclusion as to whether or no they will order a strike on the Vanderbilt lines. Promptly at 10 o'clock the council got together in spacious rooms at the Terre Haute House. The gentlemen composing the council were Frank R. Sargent, president and chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; J. J. Hanrahan, grand master of the same order; Eugene Debs, grand secretary and treasurer of the same; George W. Howard, vice-president of the council and grand chief of the Brotherhood of Conductors; George Lovejoy, assistant grand chief, same order; S. E. Wilkinson, grand master of Railway Trainmen, with Wm. Sheehan, his grand secretary and treasurer, and P. H. Morrissey, the vice-grand master of the trainmen. The other members of the council are Frank Sweeney, grand master; John Downey, vice grand, and John Hall, grand organizer, all of the Switchmen's Mutual Aid Association, and J. J. Nelson. Lovejoy and Nelson took the place of the two grand officers of the Conductors' Association, who, coming from Los Angeles, Cal., were delayed. Mr. Howard selected Nelson and Lovejoy as alternates.

After Chief Sargent had called the council to order and the first routine business had been attended to, the council decided that the matter of giving news to the press should be placed entirely in the hands of Mr. Sargent. It was also deemed best not to give out any of the deliberations until the council came to a final adjournment.

At 10 o'clock to-night the Supreme Council of the Federation of Railway Employes adjourned as a body. The committee remained in session all night and Mr. Sargent announces that the following message has been sent to Mr. Powderly at New York city:

> The Supreme Council have been in session all day, but no decision has yet been reached. We are now awaiting important advices. The council fully realizes your position and the position of your order, and you may be assured that your interests will receive due consideration. You will be promptly advised of further developments.

TERRE HAUTE, Aug. 24.—After a session of one hour the Supreme Council adjourned until 8 a.m. The report of the committee has been completed, but the council decided not to consider it to-night. It is semi-officially announced that the meeting of the Supreme Council will be made public to-morrow by noon.

Sunday at Albany.

ALBANY, Aug. 24.—No trouble of any nature was experienced to-day on account of the strike.

Supt. Hammond posted a notice to-night saying all the men out on strike who did not return to work in the morning would be considered as having left the employ of the company and their places would be filled by new men. He also telephoned Chief Willard [illegible] the road would start moving freight to-morrow morning and asked for police protection.

The Executive Board of District Assembly 246 held a three hours' session to-night. It was decided that if the D. & H. road persisted in handling any transfer freight from the Central a general strike would be ordered, and that the same action would be taken in reference to the Boston and Albany and Fitchburg roads in case they continued handling this freight freight.

No Reply to the Compromise.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—The strike of the firemen and engineers of the Union Stock Yards Switching Association is still on. Yesterday the strikers decided to submit as a compromise a demand for 18 cents per hour for firemen and 29 cents per hour for engineers, the latter also to be paid for Sunday work in caring for their engines. This was somewhat less than their previous demand. The officers of the roads have made no reply.

Sympathy From 5000 English Dock Laborers.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—A meeting of 5000 dock laborers was held to-day. Burns, the labor agitator, presided. The meeting passed resolutions of sympathy with the American knights in their strike on the N. Y. C. The resolutions expressed hope for the success of the knights.

Labor Troubles in Europe.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the Lancashire Miners' Federation to-day, Mr. Wood, the president, who was in the chair, stated that two messengers who came direct from the Emperor of Germany had waited upon him and solicited information as to the condition of British miners. They stated that since the resignation of Prince Bismarck the Emperor had become democratic, and desired to place the labor laws of Germany on an equality with those of England. The meeting unanimously recommended that the question of an eight hour day be submitted to a vote of the British miners before an international strike is entered upon.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 24.—The strikers at Mons and in the vicinity now number 12,020. The miners have appointed four delegates to confer with the provincial council and to urge the establishment of an industrial council and the withdrawal of the rules recently issued by the Societe des Products.

The State Arbitrators Can do Nothing.

ALBANY, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration yesterday, Commissioner Donovan made report of the repeated, but futile, efforts to bring about a settlement of the strike on the Central road. The question of an investigation of the cause of the controversy was considered, but in view of the circumstances and the unavoidable absence of Commissioner Robertson, it was deemed best to postpone its determination until Thursday next, to which time an adjournment was taken.

Perhaps a Big Building Trades' Strike.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Master Builders' and Carpenters' Association yesterday the overture by the Journeymen Carpenters' Council for the amicable settlement of the differences existing was answered by a refusal to take such action. As the new bosses' association has also refused to arbitrate there is apparently no recourse for the carpenters except surrender or a new general strike. Should the 6000 members of the union quit it is estimated that within two weeks 30,000 other workmen in the building trades of Chicago will be brought to a standstill.

HIS ALLEGED CRIME.

Why the Dashing Real Estate Man Was Locked Up in Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The crime for which James F. Coolican, the well-known Canadian auctioneer, was arrested was alleged abduction. Mattie Stevens, a pretty 16-year-old girl, was also held. The two appeared at a leading hotel, the girl being introduced as his niece Mattie. An elderly female complained to the hotel proprietor of alleged endearments practised by Mr. Coolican, of 46 years, and Mattie of 16. Detectives were summoned, with the result of the arrest of Coolican and the maiden. Coolican takes his arrest calmly. He says he brought Mattie here from Chicago for her health. Mattie supports this statement. The police authorities feel that they are in a quandary and frankly admit that they wish Coolican and his companion were in Chicago or elsewhere. The pair arrived at the Quincy House last Sunday, and he hired connecting rooms there, introducing the girl as his daughter. To a lady at the hotel who knew him he introduced the girl as his niece. She believed that everything was not as it should be and communicated her fears to Mr. Mann, the hotel proprietor.

SEARCHING NEW YORK HOSPITALS.

A Toronto Woman Undertakes a Journey in Search of Her Husband.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—A good-looking young woman, carrying a baby in her arms, called at police headquarters. She said her name was Martha Usher and she was looking for her husband Edward, who disappeared from his home in Toronto seven weeks ago. She thinks he is either in New York or in St. Louis. If she cannot find him she will think he has wilfully deserted her. Her husband is a carriage-maker. The young woman left the central office saying she intended to visit all the hospitals in searching for her missing husband.

Stole Heaven's Livery to Serve the Devil In.

SARNIA, Aug. 24.—The residence of the Rev. T. R. Davis was broken into recently and a quantity of jewelry and other articles were taken. The family were away from home and the burglary was not discovered until their return. The description of the articles stolen tallied with some goods found on a tramp by the name of Ellis whom Chief Windred had arrested and who had been taken over the river by the Port Huron authorities, where he was also wanted for housebreaking. He went over the river, and upon re-examining the articles found in Ellis' possession identified a number of articles taken from Mr. Davis'. Portions of the stolen goods were also found on two other prisoners in custody there named Verner and Sullivan.

Shot by Her Debtor.

CORNWALL, Aug. 24.—Mrs. Annie McKinnon went to the house of Robert Graham, C.P.R. tankman at Alexandria Bay, to claim money for work done. Graham said he did not have the money. After some talk Graham put his hand into a pocket behind him, and said, "How would you like to have your brains blown out?" The first thing she knew her hat flew off and she fell to the ground. The prisoner then said, "If there was another one in it you would have it." She then fell insensible. The shot struck her in the right cheek. Graham was arrested and committed to jail at Cornwall to stand his trial at the October court. The woman McKinnon is in a critical condition. Let the probability is she will recover.

International Greetings in the Tunnel.

SARNIA, Aug. 24.—At noon to-day (Sunday) connection was successfully made between the two ends of the Grand Trunk Railway tunnel under the St. Clair River. A large auger bored out ten feet, the remaining distance. This enabled the men working on the Canada side to talk to their fellow-workmen on the American end. By noon to-morrow the men will be able to walk through the tunnel its entire distance from Sarnia to Port Huron.

BIG SHOUTS FOR DILLON

30,000 MEN AT LIMERICK CHEER THE HOME RULER.

He and William O'Brien Tendered a Banquet on the Eve of their Departure for America—The Government to Investigate the Potato Famine in Ireland.

LIMERICK, Aug. 24.—30,000 persons took part to-day in a demonstration held here to protest against Bishop O'Dwyer's attack upon John Dillon. Dillon, O'Brien and ten other Parnellite members of Parliament made speeches. Most of the leading citizens held aloof from the demonstration out of respect for the bishop. A banquet followed at which 150 guests were present. A number of speeches were made.

LONDON, Aug. 24.—The Government has initiated an official enquiry into the reported failure of the potato crop in Ireland.

The Pope has written to Cardinal Manning expressing sympathy over the loss of Cardinal Newman. The Pope says: "I am deeply grieved at the departure of a man who by his learning, his writings and his singular piety gave great splendor to the Sacred College. I do not doubt that he has already received the reward of his virtues. Nevertheless I will continue to pray for the repose of his blessed soul."

The Princess of Wales started for Balmoral last night. The axles of the saloon carriage in which she traveled became heated, and when the train reached Berwick it was decided that it would be dangerous to run the carriage any further. The Princess was therefore obliged to arise and continue her journey in another carriage.

American Salted Meats in France.

PARIS, Aug. 24.—A meeting of the cabinet was held at Fontainebleau to-day. The ministers discussed the measures which the American Government proposes to adopt to ensure the wholesome condition of salted meats at the time of export, and held a further debate on the draft of a new general tariff bill.

Saying Farewell to the Czar.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 24.—A farewell banquet was given last night at the Peterhof Palace. The Czar, Emperor William, Chancellor von Caprivi, DeGiers and a number of leading officials were present. After the banquet the Czar and the Emperor viewed the gardens of the palace, which were brilliantly lighted. At 10 o'clock the Emperor departed. He was accompanied to the quay by the Czar, the officers of the Viborg regiment, of which the Emperor is honorary colonel, forming a guard of honor. On the landing stage the Emperor shook hands with each of the officers and bade the Czar a cordial farewell. As the steamer left the quay the Czar called out "A bon voyage au revoir." The Emperor boarded the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which put to sea at dawn, escorted by the German ironclad Irene.

General von Schellendorf, commander of the First German Army Corps, who is attached to the suite of Emperor William, while on his way to the Peterhof yesterday was thrown from his horse and severely injured.

The Czar has conferred the decoration of the Order of St. Andrew upon Chancellor von Caprivi. It is stated that the Czar and Czarina have promised Emperor William that they will visit Berlin in October.

A Raging Forest Fire.

ATHENS, Aug. 24.—The forest on Mount Pontilus has been on fire since Friday. The royal summer residence is threatened and the King and his son are directing the troops in their efforts to prevent the spread of the flames. The excavations of the American School of Archaeology at Dionysios have already been destroyed.

A Steamship on Fire.

PLYMOUTH, Aug. 24.—The British steamer Mentmore, which left London for Boston Thursday with a large general cargo, arrived here this evening with a fire in her forehold, where jute rags, tallow and oil were stored. The crew fought the fire all day, but it gained steadily and a dozen streams were poured on the fire here and it was extinguished. Captain Waite was nearly blinded by smoke. The only passengers were eight cattle drovers. It is believed the damage is confined to the cargo.

TORONTO TOPICS.

An Infant's Sad and Peculiar Death—Other Drowning Accidents.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—The infant son of Benjamin Norwich, a butcher, while seated in its carriage which was standing on the Brock-street wharf yesterday, met with a peculiarly sad death. The nurse let go the carriage for a minute when the carriage rolled down into the bay and the child was drowned. Annie Wolfe, the nurse, made a gallant effort to rescue the child, and in doing so nearly lost her own life. The aldermen are to blame in this matter for not properly protecting the wharf.

Ernest Seymour, aged 18, while yachting Saturday afternoon with four other young men was capsized and drowned.

The body of a middle-aged man, well dressed, was found floating in the lake on Saturday. He remains at the morgue unidentified.

The four children of the Earl of Aberdeen arrived in town Saturday. The Earl and Countess are expected to-morrow. The Earl has promised to open the Toronto Exhibition on Sept. 9.

Attorney-General Langley of Nova Scotia will arrive to-morrow. He will be the guest of Prof. Goldwin Smith.

Archbishop Walsh yesterday laid the corner stone of the new $35,000 addition to the orphanage at Sunnyside with imposing ceremonies.

HOMING PIGEONS AT OTTAWA.

Homing Pigeons Cover the Distance, 120 Miles, in 3 Hours 15 Minutes.

OTTAWA, Aug. 23.—Satisfactory experiments were made to-day to illustrate the practical uses of homing pigeons in time of war. The idea, so far as Canada is concerned, originated with Major-Gen. Cameron, commandant of the Royal Military College, Kingston. He recently arranged that the birds should be tested in a flight from here to Kingston, a distance of over 120 miles. At 10½ a.m. Sir Hector Langevin, Adjt.-Gen. Powell, Col. Bacon and Col. Tilton assembled in front of the western departmental block, and 15 minutes later 10 pigeons were set free. The birds, after hovering in the air at a great altitude, got their bearings and darted off towards Kingston. A despatch from Gen. Cameron states that six of the pigeons arrived there at 1 o'clock, covering the distance in about 3 hours 15 minutes. Two other birds reached their destination 15 minutes later and two birds did not put in an appearance. The experiment is regarded as in every way satisfactory.

Probably Fatally Shot.

QUEBEC, Aug. 25.—During a quarrel among sailors this afternoon an Italian named Ribera shot Paddy Lynch, an Australian, three times. Lynch will probably die.

MIDDLETON'S MISTAKE.

The letter from Gen. Middleton regarding the Bremner fur matter published after his departure has the ring about it of a genuine desire to frankly state all the facts. It will have the effect of giving a better impression of the general's conduct in that matter than was felt by some previous to its appearance. Yet the general made a mistake, and it does not detract from the value of his letter as a frank statement when he, after reviewing the circumstances, admits his mistake. Bremner was believed to be a rebel. He was seen among Poundmaker's rebel Indians, and he had in his possession the rifle of a policeman who had been killed in the fight at Cut Knife hill. Gen. Middleton ordered the confiscation of his furs. If nothing further had been done, and they had been left in the possession of the Government, all would have been well. But the general sanctioned the disposal of some of the furs as mementos of the campaign for himself and staff. As a matter of fact he never received any of the furs, forgot all about them and does not know what became of them. Yet he made a mistake. If Bremner should have been deprived of his property it should have been done in a regular way. It is to be sincerely regretted that the mistake was made. The general conducted the campaign in a creditable manner and although he has departed his services will not be forgotten.

It will be remembered that after the suppression of the rebellion some of the leading Liberal papers made wholesale charges against the volunteers of savagery and looting. They even went so far as to apply to the young men who bore the hardships and braved the dangers of the campaign the name of "thieves," and the attack on the officers, especially the commander, was kept up with bitterness. Yet the fact is that there was very little looting, and that kindness was shown to the people who had been led into the unwise step of taking up arms. After the suppression of the rebellion Gen. Middleton received a letter from Bishop Grandin in which that prelate said:—

> "I was heart-broken at the sight of so much misery, but I ought to say that, if on the one hand I saw that which always shows itself in war, I was rejoiced by hearing what one rarely hears under such circumstances. I have heard, and frequently, the conquered praise the generosity of their conqueror. To hear the priest praise your moderation in victory, praise the officers in general, speak of your kindness in relieving the starving conquered, did not surprise, but I have heard the people in general."

In view of the facts the sweeping denunciations of Gen. Middleton that have been made by Liberal speakers and organs are shown to have been undeserved. The officer committed an error of judgment—and one that Parliament could not overlook—but the explanation he has put forward is one that should modify the opinion that many had no doubt formed from the bitter attacks that had been made upon him.

Frog Farming.

A new industry has sprung up latterly, which promises, we are told, profitable results. It is frog raising. A farm for this purpose at Menasha, Wis., is in full operation and stocked with 2,800 females, which are capable of producing from 800 to 1,000 eggs at a time. The owner of the farm gives some other interesting facts relative to the frog's habits which are not generally known. He says: In ninety-one days the eggs hatch. The thirty-ninth day the little animals begin to have motion. In a few days they assume the tadpole form. When ninety-two days old two small feet are seen beginning to sprout near the tail, and the head appears to be separate from the body. In five days after this they refuse all vegetable food. Soon thereafter the animal assumes a perfect form. Next spring 25,000, at twenty cents per dozen, will be my reward. Figure it yourself, says the enthusiastic frog farmer, and see if there is any money in batrachia, alias frogs.—Scientific American.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

For Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint you have a printed guarantee on every bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. It never fails to cure. For sale by Geo. A. Schofield, Druggist, Peterborough.

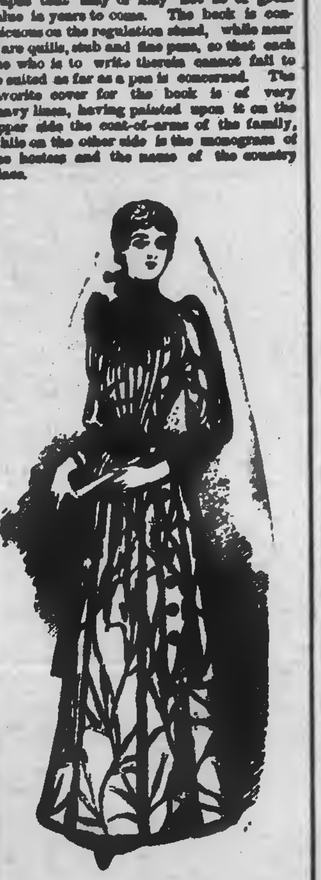
THE VERY LATEST STYLES FOR AUGUST WEAR.

What Women Should Wear at this Season of the Year—Some Talk on Dressing, Mantles, Jackets, Bonnets and Hats—Fashion Notes of Every Description.

The novelty among the jackets is one of cedar-colored cloth, with the full sleeves, waist-coat and collar lining of cedar-colored velvet, richly braided in Louis XV style. The color is novel and becoming, and the combination of cloth and velvet harmonious. A tan cloth jacket—a new shade of tan—was embroidered with gold and steel beads worked into tan gimp, and had large sleeves and waist-coat of black guipure. The jacket basque, which was long, was cut up three times at the back, and spread out to allow the fans of black lace to peep through. The tan jackets of shot silk are prettily trimmed with delicate cream lace, the sleeves being formed of three flounces, laid one on the other, as well as the deep basque and collar. The backs of the jackets are all of silk, the lace basque joining at each side. A new shade of vieux rose shot with gold is pretty.

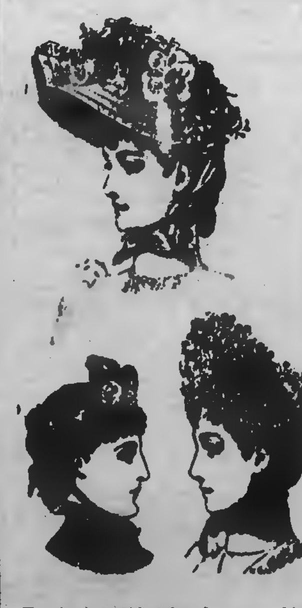
An English custom, which is being followed by a few of the heavy and exclusive entertainers of this country, is the practice of giving visitors' book a conspicuous place in the hall of a fashionable country house. It savours slightly of a hotel register, but it will result in a wonderful collection of autographs that may or may not be of great value in years to come. The book is conspicuous on the regulation stand, while near it are quills, stub and fine pens, so that each one who is to write therein cannot fail to be suited as far as a pen is concerned. The favorite cover for the book is of very heavy linen, having painted upon it on the upper side the coat-of-arms of the family, while on the other side is the monogram of the hostess and the name of the country place.



The very fashionable yoke effect is shown in this costume, which may be of light weight material, silk or woolen, with the yoke and deep cuffs of a contrasting fabric. The upper parts of the sleeves are gathered in the arm-size, and the lower part in the cuffs. The bodice is shirred in a V-shape to form an erect frill, with the fullness then brought to the point, back and front, under a sash of ribbon or velvet No. 12. The skirt hangs in easy side-pleats, with a gathered front and back, the latter having a deep upper flounce, as illustrated.

Stylish hats for the present season are made of black lace, and also in the new tulle, with large raised chenille spots, which is lightly gathered on wire forms or shapes, and trimmed sometimes with a large bow of ribbon loops, perhaps pink or old-gold with black edge, or with a bouquet of six velvet tulips with different stripes, such as yellow and red, white and lilac, pink and white, etc., not arranged stiffly, but just as if they were thrown carelessly on the tulle.

A stylish basque for thin woolen goods has the material put over the front lining bias, the dart fullness laid in tiny pleats, and the fabric smoothed over the bust; it is then laid in a few gathers at the upper part of the shoulder seam, and draped in soft folds over the chest.



Here is a hat of black lace fan roses, black velvet ribbon ties, and a loosely draped crown and brim of black lace.

This hat is rather of the poke order, and of a fancy straw, with ribbon velvet ties and loops and a half wreath of flowers, and foliage.

Some pink heath toques, with grass peeping out, surmounted by velvet bows of grass green, are pretty, and fit well to the head. Another toque, composed of a network of jet, with a ruche all round, formed of loops of small wired jet beads, with a few upright loops of velvet, and a jet butterfly, is very becoming. Another has for its crown three jet butterflies clinging together, with a smaller one in front perched on the roll of velvet which forms the base and encircles the wearer's head.

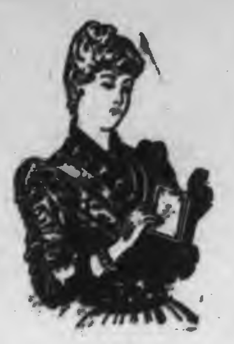
Another capote has a narrow band of cut jet mounted on velvet forming the shape, with strings of beads at distances, carried up over the head, and finished off with velvet loops and a few ostrich tips. There is but one velvet string, which has two bows on it for fastening to the bodice of the wearer's dress, crossing it slantwise.

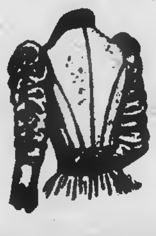
A dainty bonnet of pale-green crepon, encircling the head in a loose roll, is lightly veiled with fine black lace, which also forms the crown, and has a small coronet of jet resting on it, as well as three branches of jet fern-leaves, catching up the lace in front; a pale-green aigrette, and some black ostrich tips at the back.

For a plain gray check of two shades, a skirt looks well having one triple box-pleat on each side and two similar pleats in the back, with the almost plain front slightly "broken" by a few crosswise pleats at the top. The pointed bodice has a draped front, apparently arranged on the wearer after the close-fitting lining is fastened and large leg-o'-mutton sleeves of green velvet.

A Russian polonaise for early fall is of green French serge, cut in a princess back, large sleeves, and straight fronts, with the right side lapped far over on the left, with a fullness from the arm-size, which is held at the left under a buckle. This fullness causes a few slight folds below the waist-line, which breaks the extreme plain appearance of the front. The lapped edge below the buckle, collar, front below the neck, top and wrist of the sleeves are heavily braided in black cord.

White brocade is used for sleeves, panels, girdle and yoke on crepons, veiling, camel's-hair, etc., dresses, with a gilt buckle, and narrow gold galloon for the collar, cuffs and edging the pointed yoke. Many basques for demi-toilette are hooked in the back, and in place of darts the fullness must be taken up in tiny pleats.





This jaunty bodice embraces many desirable features, as the slight Medici collar, broad belt, and lapped front. The sleeve is of the "glove" style, with the fullness pushed up above the elbows, and a cuff of velvet ribbon. The fronts are from the shoulders, lapped, have a slightly flared collar, leaving a V at the throat, and a close-fitting back. Velvet or galloon may edge the lapping front, and the wide belt is usually of the same.

Gowns of pure white lawns are made with a full skirt, four and a half yards, gathered on three cords at the top, with a hemstitched hem, and a row of insertion above if wished. The skirt of cambric worn under this should have a pleated balayeuse of Swiss muslin beneath, which shows if the skirt blows.

The large sleeves are of embroidery or lawn with cuffs of embroidery, and have a ribbon bow on the outside. The bodice has a round or pointed yoke and high collar of embroidery, with the full body gathered on to form an erect ruffle, and then shirred at the points, back and front. A ribbon band around the collar ties on the left, and No. 16 ribbon is folded around the edge of the bodice, tying in the back.

India silks of delicate designs on a white ground are trimmed with velvet ribbon the shade of the blossoms or stems. Thin white woolen gowns are trimmed with tinsel galloon, and solid-colored China silk with velvet ribbon and lace.

A pretty cover for a flower pot, suitable for drawing room or boudoir table, is made of any colored satin. This is veiled with a briar lattice work, and where the briars cross is set a miniature rose, so that the cover is studded with the soft pinky shell petals. These mites of roses remind us of shell flowers.

High Art Candles.

Lighting reception and dining-rooms with waxen candles prevailed so extensively through the past winter that next season it is promised that we shall have the "high art candles" that are a furore just now in English country houses. These candles are said to be exceptionally beautiful, and are molded of a superior quality of wax that does not run. They come in sixteen different shadings, and it is a "fad" to have the candles match in color the hangings of the room in which they burn. Branched candelabra in heavy silver plate are frequently chosen for the dining table; but they are scarcely so attractive as those of dainty blue and white Dresden, the branches upheld by graceful figures.—Table Talk.

Unique Table Decoration.

Place a finger bowl or large tumbler in the crown, fill it with wet sand, and arrange in it white orchids, tuberoses, and other blossoms, not too closely, filling up the interstices with maidenhair fern and silver leaves; then pinch up the edges of the hat irregularly round. Have one large and two small baskets of this kind down the table, and if possible a couple of tiny palm trees in either silver brocade or white plush bags and silver cord. Place the low silver decanter stands (if you have them; if not, the modern Leeds openwork baskets are most effective) along the table, filled with lycopodium, moss, Roman hyacinths, and any flowers you may chance to have, veiled with fern.

Pretty Decorative Things.

There are many pretty things in the country which are decorative after the first effect has departed. Clusters of wild golden-rod, properly dried, will keep nearly all their brightness, and arranged with field grasses and ferns they make a beautiful panel for some unoccupied part of the wall. A bunch of catails, thrust behind a picture of an evening scene, adds a delicate decorative touch.

BATTLES ON THE DIAMOND.

The Peterborough Nine Defeat the Campbellfords—The Tailors "Won" the Painters.

The baseball nine which went to Campbellford on Saturday afternoon returned home in the evening victorious, having defeated the Campbellford team for the second time this season. The game was only a fair one, as the score (15 to 12) and error column will show.

Dan McCabe and Turnbull were in the points for the Peterborough men and worked very well, as also did Beatty and Ingram for the Campbellfords, but both teams were batting hard, as the score will show. McCabe was not in his best form, but his support was good. Turnbull's throwing to second was specially good. For Peterborough Gemons and Brennan each played a pretty game at the second and first bags. The feature of the game was Turnbull's home run in the eighth. The bags were full and the long hit of Turnbull's emptied the bases and allowed him to cross the plate himself, thus bringing in four runs in all. The score by innings will tell the innings in which the errors were made.

The score, which shows the individual play, was as follows:—

THE TAILORS AND PAINTERS.

An exhibition of baseball was also given at home when a nine chosen from the painters had a tussle with a nine from the tailors. The result was a decided victory for the "stitchers" by a score of 40 runs to 18. The game, which was played on Riverside Park, was not devoid of amusement for the spectators, while the participants themselves seemed to take a good deal of sport out of the game. The score in detail was not kept, so that errors, etc., cannot be chronicled. The Hickey brothers did the battery work for the victorious tailors, while J. Watson and W. Duncan were in the points for the painters. It is probable the two nines will meet again and dispute the question of supremacy. The score as kept was not obtained for publication.

THE BONUS SECURITY.

A SPECIAL MEETING OF OUR TOWN LEGISLATORS.

The Brooks Manufacturing Co.'s Security for the Bonus Considered Satisfactory, Subject to the Approval of the Town Solicitor—The New Market Buildings Handed Over.

The town legislature assembled in special session on Saturday evening, a meeting having been called to deal with the Brooks Manufacturing Company's bonus. It will be remembered that in February last a by-law granting a six thousand dollar bonus to this company was voted on and passed by the people. This money has not been paid over, and now that it is asked for the Councillors wish to be sure that the security offered for the bonus is "satisfactory" as called for in the by-law. The arrangements and papers in connection with the security had been prepared and the meeting was called to see if the Council approved of the security. Mayor Stevenson presided and the ward representatives present were Councillors Cahill, Davidson, Winch, Kelly, A. Hall, Dawson, Moore, Rutherford, Langford and Kendry.

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with, it being a special meeting and the general desire being to economize time.

OBJECT OF THE MEETING.

The MAYOR explained that he had called the meeting at the request of a number of the Councillors to clear up the business in connection with the Brooks Manufacturing Co. bonus. This business had been left over from last meeting to allow it to be got into shape and he believed this had been done.

Councillor MOORE in bringing up the business said the town was to pay over the $6,000 bonus which was granted to the Brooks Manufacturing Company and it was to ascertain if the security offered by the company to the Council for the bonus was satisfactory that they had been called together. The company offered as security a mortgage for $6,000 on their property and a bond of six of the shareholders for $500 each as a personal bond and collateral for the mortgage. He then read the instruments and bonds which had been drawn up in connection with the business and said it remained for the Council to take action if the security was satisfactory.

A MOTION CARRIED.

Councillor MOORE moved, seconded by Councillor DAVIDSON,—In re by-law No. 600 for $6,000 to the Brooks Manufacturing Co., that having heard read the securities presented to this Council by the Brooks Manufacturing Co. consisting of a mortgage on lots 9 and 10 north of Wolfe-st. and lots 9 and 10 north of Townsend-st. and west of George, in the town of Peterborough, and the bond of Arthur Stevenson, Thomas Brooks, John Braden, George Stevenson and John W. Taylor and the said last named parties having undertaken to furnish a guarantee that Geo. A. Cox will within two months execute a like bond and that the other evidence required by the Council as to incorporation of the company, insurance, sufficiency of the company, of by-law, etc., will be furnished, this Council declares that the security given or proposed to be given is satisfactory and this Council doth hereby direct that on completion of the said security the sum of $3,000, part of the said sum of $6,000, be paid over to the said company under the provisions of by-law No. 600 and that as soon as the said debentures shall be sold the balance shall also be handed over to the said company."

Councillor LANGFORD thought passing this motion was rushing things a little too fast and favored giving the matter a little further consideration. If everything was not right, then if any other industry came here and wanted a bonus the people would not be likely to pass it. He thought the matter should be further discussed in Committee of the Whole. He would move an amendment to hold the matter for further consideration if he got a seconder.

Councillor KENDRY thought the matter had been well considered already, and he was in favor of passing the resolution to-night.

Councillor Langford's amendment received no seconder and the resolution was carried, subject to the approval of the Town Solicitor.

THE YOUNG MAN DISCHARGED.

The Charge of Burglary not Technically Proven—A Lenient Court.

Wm. Sharpe, the young man who was caught in the residence of Mr. G. M. Roger on Friday, came up for trial at a special session of the Police Court held on Saturday afternoon. Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Arthur Stevenson defended the prisoner.

Mr. Rogers, Mr. Slade and Acting-Constable Moore gave their evidence of the capture of the prisoner and the articles found upon him, but nothing new from what was published Saturday came out. For the defence Mr. Stevenson took objection to the information, holding that the evidence did not prove a charge of housebreaking or burglary. He submitted that it must be shown that the prisoner broke into the house and that the time was at night, between nine o'clock at night and six in the morning. This, Mr. Stevenson held, had not been shown and the prisoner could not be found guilty of burglary, a charge of simple larceny being the only one that could be laid against him.

The Magistrate noted the objection, and, after evidence had been given of the prisoner's previous exemplary character, he reserved judgment until Monday morning.

THE MAGISTRATE'S JUDGMENT.

The court room was filled this morning by a large crowd, the majority of whom were anxious to see the young prisoner receive a light sentence, and the feeling of satisfaction when he was discharged was universal among the crowd. The prisoner seemed rather anxious and drank in every word that fell from the Magistrate's lips. The judgment of the Magistrate was given as follows:—

The charge in this case is one of burglary; that you did feloniously break into and enter the residence of Mr. G. M. Roger with intent to commit felony. This charge of burglary requires that there should be the breaking into and entry into the house at night, that is between the hours of nine o'clock at night and six o'clock in the morning. In this case it is shown that you were found in the house after nine o'clock, but there is no evidence that you entered after nine o'clock. So far as the evidence goes you may have entered in the day time. There is no evidence that you broke into the house at all. There is evidence that you entered by a window, but Mr. Roger says that he opened the window and may have left it open. Since the premises were not found broken open, that you are not technically guilty of the charge of burglary follows, and, though you were caught in the house with articles in your possession that belonged to Mr Roger, the County Attorney and the Court taking into consideration your record and character, do not feel disposed to prefer against you a charge of larceny, which charge would be sustained by the evidence. The Court, therefore, on the evidence finds you not guilty of burglary and in the absence of any other charge you are discharged.

In discharging you, the court hopes, there being no record of your being criminal or vicious, that your future life will show you are no criminal at heart and that this great mistake may be your first and last. The court may err in its leniency, but it does not desire to stamp you as a criminal by imposing a term of imprisonment, which might rob you of society and self-respect, but by giving you back to society it hopes you will have sufficient strength of character and will to walk uprightly and win back any position you may have lost by this indiscretion. The court would advise you to go back to work, mingle with your fellow-men, say nothing, do nothing but act the honest man, and win back the respect of your fellow-men. Now you are discharged."

The prisoner thanked the Magistrate and promised to act on his advice and left the court room.

ANOTHER FATAL FIRE.

TWO MEN CREMATED IN A HOTEL AT SUNDRIDGE.

One of Them Said to Have Relatives in Peterborough—Thos. Powers and Herbert Layton the Victims—The Queen's Hotel Totally Destroyed.

By Telegraph to the Review.

SUNDRIDGE, Ont., Aug. 25.—The Queen's hotel here was burned to the ground this morning with all of its contents. About three o'clock flames were discovered at the rear of the building and in an incredibly short time they had spread so that the guests, of whom there were a large number, had great difficulty in escaping. Two men, Thos. Powers and Herbert Layton, the latter it is said belonging to Ottawa, were burned to death and two others badly burned. There is said to be an insurance of four thousand dollars on the building.

FRIENDS IN PETERBOROUGH.

Chief Rennel received a telegram this morning stating that the man Thos. Powers, whose terrible death is chronicled in the above despatch, had a brother and a sister residing "at or near Peterborough." The Chief and reporters made several inquiries around town, but the relatives of the unfortunate man could not be discovered. Any information that might lead to their discovery will be gratefully received by Chief Rennel.

YELLOW FEVER IN CANADA.

One of Her Majesty's Vessels Puts Into Halifax.

HALIFAX, Aug. 24.—The British war ship Buzzard arrived here to-day from Jamaica with yellow fever on board, having been ordered to Halifax on account of the fever breaking out among the crew. She left here some weeks ago to relieve the Pylades, which had been ashore, and went to Bermuda for repairs. On the outbreak of the fever the Buzzard was sent to Halifax because the climate here is favorable to the rapid suppression of the disease.

There were nineteen cases on board at one time and one of the victims died at Port Royal and was buried there. All the others have recovered except five, and these cases are not very serious, all being expected to recover.

Cholera On Three Continents.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 25.—The Acting Deputy Minister of Agriculture, speaking today of the rumored danger of Asiatic cholera coming to Canada from Japan by way of British Columbia, said the quarantine regulations were as strict at Vancouver as at Grosse Isle, and at the latter place they were all that human ingenuity could devise. There was every danger, however, that the plague would visit this country next summer. It might come through immigrants, who having the disease in its latent stage, it could not be detected at quarantine.

MADRID, Aug. 25.—Cholera is spreading steadily along the Mediterranean north of Valencia, where there are ten to twelve new cases daily. The disease has appeared in several villages in the Province of Toledo, and suspicious cases have been discovered in Madrid.

MADRID, Aug. 25.—Cholera is reported to be spreading rapidly in the Province of Toledo.

CAIRO, Aug. 25.—From Tuesday to Thursday there were twenty-eight deaths from cholera and forty-eight fresh cases of the disease at Tor.

Leprosy in Cape Breton.

HALIFAX, Aug. 25.—Several cases of leprosy have been discovered at Englishtown, Victoria county, C.B. The victims have been constantly associating with their neighbors and it is feared the disease has been communicated to a great many people. A call has been made upon the Government to investigate the fact and take charge of the lepers.

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

[illegible] and I can have him tried and disposed of without further trouble to you, sire."

"No, no. I wish to see him," returned the Emperor. "I will give you the necessary order, and you may bring him here."

Peter then turned to his secretary, and bade him fill an order for Ruric Nevel's arrest. The stout master-at-arms looked on with a troubled countenance, and his glances toward the duke were anything but loving. He did not seem to relish the business at all, and the expression of his countenance would seem to indicate that he did not believe all that the duke had said.

However, the order was soon made out and in the duke's possession.

"Remember," said Peter, "you will bring him before me."

"You shall be obeyed, sire."

If the Emperor did not notice the strange, dark look of the duke as he turned away, the Greek did; and he fancied, too, that he knew what it meant. But he said nothing then.

Olga bowed low as he clutched the order, and having once more promised obedience, he hurried from the imperial presence. As he passed out through the wide court he walked slowly and thoughtfully, and with his head bowed; but soon he started up—his hands came together with an emphatic movement, and he moved on more quickly. He had gained the street, and approached a small court within which stood a house of entertainment, where he stopped. In a few moments more a man came out from the inn, and as soon as he had satisfied himself that the newcomer was the duke he spoke.

"Olga—is't you?"

"Yes."

It needed but a single glance in the dim starlight to recognize the form of the hump-backed priest. He walked quickly to where the duke stood, and the two moved off together.

"Now what luck?" Savotano asked, as they gained the street once more.

"Good—as good as I could even hope," returned the duke. "I have the power for arresting the gun-maker."

"And for executing him?"

"It amounts to the same. I am ordered to bring him before the Emperor; but that is easily managed."

Here the duke stopped and gazed about him, and then bending his head, so that no word could possibly pass beyond his companion's ears, he continued:

"You can call upon three of your best men, and I can furnish two from among my own servants. Early in the morning—by the time the sun is up—they must be at the gun-maker's dwelling. They must make him angry—of course he will resist—and then kill him. It is very simple—very. They can easily dispatch him thus, and then we have only to tell the Emperor that he resisted the imperial authority even unto death. So you see this is even better than it would have been had I received direct authority for his death; for then some form of trial would have been necessary, but now we have only to go to his house—provoke him to quarrel—kill him—and then tell the Emperor how it happened. What think you?"

"Why," returned the priest, with a wicked chuckle, "I can only say that Master Nevel is done for—he is a dead man."

"Exactly. Nothing could be better—nothing."

After the explanation of this fiendish, hellish scheme, the two walked on some distance in silence.

"Stop," uttered the duke, catching his companion by the arm. "There come two persons this way. We must not meet them. Here—into this passage—quick!"

It was a narrow, dark passage leading to the next street into which the duke dragged his companion, and here he meant to remain until the two persons had passed. The fact was, the duke did not wish to be seen with the priest at that hour in the street, and it is no matter of surprise that he should at that moment have been influenced by guilty fear. The two pedestrians came on, and passed the spot where the men stood. They were females, and one of them the priest saw in the face. The features were upturned to the starlight, and he recognized them. He caught the duke quickly and nervously by the arm.

"By the host of heaven!" he whispered, "'twas the countess!"

"Rosalind?" gasped Olga.

"Yes—as sure as death!"

"Then come—quick!"

Savotano understood the meaning of this, and he followed the duke quickly out. At a few bounds Olga reached the females, and one of them he caught by the arm. She uttered a sharp, quick cry, and as she turned her face up she revealed the fair features of the Countess Rosalind Valdai! The priest had no need to stop the other girl, for she stopped of her own accord as soon as she found that her mistress was captured.

"Aha!" Olga uttered, when he saw that pale face. "What now, eh? Where are you bound at this unseemly hour?"

"Oh, God!" It was all the poor girl could utter. She saw the dark face of her hated and feared guardian, and the last glimmer of hope faded from her soul.

"By my soul," the duke resumed, fastening his gripe surely upon the maiden's arm, "it is fortunate I have found you, for you might have fallen into difficulty else. You were bound for the imperial palace, eh?"

At first Rosalind thought of struggling for escape, but she felt the strong gripe upon her arm, and she knew that such a movement could only result in her own harm.

"Say," repeated the duke, "were you not bound for the palace?"

"Aye, proud duke, I was," the countess replied, gazing up into the man's face. "I was trying to escape from your accursed power!"

"Aha! But come—we'll turn towards home. You'll be better off there. And this is our little Zenobie, is it?"

The attendant looked up, but she made no reply. Then Olga turned to the priest.

"Savotano, hurry off your men in the morning, and then come to me. I'll have work for you to-morrow. By Saint Paul! the work delays no longer!"

And then, with a sinking, breaking heart, Rosalind Valdai was led back towards the ducal palace.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Ruric Nevel dreamed that he was a great general, and that he was upon the eve of an engagement. He gained a view of the commander of the opposing army, and he saw that it was the Duke of Tula. Yet the duke had an enormous hump upon his back, and instead of the usual uniform he wore the garb of a priest. This was very strange—at least so ran Ruric's thoughts in the dream. Soon the engagement commenced, and the loud-mouthed artillery opened its thunder. The din was deafening and strange, and Ruric shouted in vain to his aids, for the roar of cannon drank up his words direct from his lips. Louder and more loud grew the crash, and finally Ruric started for the charge. His horse was shot under him, and with a quick leap he reached his feet.

"Ruric! Ruric! My master!"

Slowly the youth opened his eyes, and Paul stood by him in his night-clothes. He gazed about him, and found that he had leaped from his bed, and now stood shivering upon the floor.

"Don't you hear that racket at the door?" asked Paul.

"What? Ha—there is some one knocking," Ruric uttered, as he heard the sound.

"And have you not heard it before?"

"No."

"Why did you leap up thus?"

"I was dreaming."

"I thought 'twas the noise below. Why—they've been making a perfect thunder of noise down there. Shall I go down?"

"Yes, go, Paul; and I will dress as soon as possible. What time is it?"

CARDS FOR THREE.

A Game That is Designed to Fill a Long Felt Want.

Everybody who plays cards knows how few games there are which are intended or adapted to three people, and it is in behalf of the innumerable trios of card players who are likely to be brought together from time to time during the summer months that the editor gives the particulars of a new game, just invented at a summer hotel for the benefit of three people who wished to play together, and who thought that a dummy spoiled whist.

The game is called Threes, although the players generally speak of it by the name of the place where it was invented, and it can of course be called anything that one pleases.

The cards rank as in whist, except that the ace is lowest, and the king the head of the suit. All the cards are used.

Nine cards are dealt to each of the three players, three at a time. The eldest hand, having sorted his cards, names the suit he chooses for his. The second hand in turn does likewise, and then the dealer. The fourth suit is trumps.

The eldest hand leads, and whoever takes the trick leads until all the cards are taken. The players must follow suit if possible, otherwise they may trump or discard at pleasure. The points that count are the ace, the ten, and the two-spot. For each of these cards he fails to take in the suit he has named as his the player forfeits a point. For each of the aces, tens, or two-spots in other suits which he takes he scores one. The ace, ten, and two of his own suit do not count for him, but he is obliged to take them or forfeit a point for each one he lacks.

When the nine tricks have been played the remaining cards are dealt; three, three and two to each player, thus giving them eight apiece. The odd card is faced on the table. The lead is with the player who took the last trick of the first deal in the hand, but he must lead from the suit that has been turned on the table. If he cannot, the lead passes to the next player, and if necessary to the next. If the card turned is a "thirteener" the first player may lead from his suit; if he has none, the next player leads from his suit, and so on. The trick goes to whomsoever can take it by suit, or, in lack of a card in suit, with a trump. If the table card takes it, the trick remains faced until the end of the hand, when it belongs to the one taking the last trick. In this respect the lead remains with the person leading the table trick, as it is called; and the player leads from any suit he chooses.

The number of points in a game is usually nine, but the number may be changed at pleasure. The largest number of cards counts one; each ace, ten and two-spot in a suit not that of the player counts one; each ace, ten, and two in the player's own suit counts him nothing, but for each one that he fails to take he forfeits one point on his score.

It being difficult to save an ace and a two-spot when they are in hand and must be led, the dealer, to whom as the third to name his suit comes the choice which of two suits shall be trumps, will often name his suit the one of which he has the least, as this gives him more trumps; and in general terms it is well to be either very strong or very weak in the suit one names as his own. If very strong there is the chance of securing the ace and two before the other players have exhausted their suits and have an opportunity to trump, or the chance of getting the trumps out and then calling the cards. Playing third hand it is generally wise to put on the ten if it will take the trick, or the ace or two of trumps when one has no suit. It must be kept in mind that the ace is low, and that even a two-spot will take it.

The highest number of points it is possible for a player to make in a single hand is ten, to do which it would be necessary for him to take the greatest number of cards, and all the tens, aces and twos in the pack. The lowest number is minus three, which would be his score in case he had none of these. If he took simply the ace, ten and two in his own suit he would simply have nothing, but would lose nothing.

The game is at least worth trying, where there are three people who wish to be amused since if they do not find it amusing they are at least no worse off than before.—Boston Courier.

Enjoys Her Allowance of Tobacco.

WELLAND, Aug. 24.—The prisoner Day, who languishes in jail here with a charge of murder hanging over him, maintains the same quiet demeanor as at first. Daily papers are withheld from him, although he frequently asks for them. His appetite is good and he has the appearance of a man who sleeps well. Rev. Mr. McCuaig has visited him several times, taking books and old papers, from which the prisoner reads a great deal. A few days ago he sent word to his mother at Rochester to dispose of some of his chattels, in order to raise some money for a lawyer. Mrs. Quigley is becoming a little more reconciled to her confinement, and enjoys her allowance of tobacco with a new clay pipe. She was furnished with reading matter last week, which seemed to please her greatly.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face (erysipelas), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued use for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude,

Pure Lime-Fruit Juice.

WHAT is Lime Juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the Best Temperance Beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the Lime Fruit without adulteration.

By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the Lime Fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand [illegible] British Government), in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, prepared Lime Juice, &c.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Wormwood for Worworth—Suicide of a Despondent Russian Pole.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Nathaniel Wormworth, a merchant from Mountain Grove in Addington, was given a dose of Toronto justice yesterday that he won't forget in a hurry. This is the gentleman who had an innocent man, Patrick O'Leary, arrested on a charge of robbing him of $690, all the while the money being stowed away in the capacious lining of his hat. Wormworth's object no doubt was to make the people at Mountain Grove believe that he had been robbed in Toronto and thus escape paying his debts. After O'Leary's innocence was fully established Wormworth was locked up for having a revolver in his possession. The magistrate yesterday taxed him $40 and costs for this offence.

Coroner Pickering held an inquest last night in the Morgue on the body of the man found floating in the Lake on Saturday between Scarboro and Little York. The deceased was identified as Augusta Lopenski, a Russian Pole. After 10 minutes' deliberation the jury returned a verdict of death from suicide while in a state of unsound mind.

Two Swedes, giving their names as Charles Jansen and William Sjoghl, or letters to that effect, hired a small yacht at Dean's boathouse at Sunnyside about 1 o'clock yesterday. Half an hour later a number of parties standing on the shore of Humber Bay observed the boat capsize. Engineer J. H. Venables of the West Toronto Junction waterworks went to the rescue and succeeded in dragging out Sjoghl, who was clinging to the upturned boat, but his companion, Jansen, had sunk to the bottom of the bay, after swimming 40 or 50 yards.

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

Leading Features of the Grain and Produce Markets at Home and Abroad.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—The produce markets are unchanged. Spring wheat is held at 98c on the Midland, white $1 on the Northern, with 98c bid, sales on C.P.R. at $1 to $1.03. Oats are quiet at 46c.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

Liverpool reports: Wheat firm; demand poor; holders offer sparingly. Corn firm; demand poor. Spring wheat, 7s 6½d to 7s 7d; red winter, 7s 5½d to 7s 6d. No. 1 Cal., 7s 6½d to 7s 7d. Corn, 4s 7½d. Peas, 5s 5d to 5s 5½d. Pork, 55s 0d. Lard, 33s. Bacon, heavy, 30s; light, 30s 6d. Tallow, 26s 6d. Cheese, 42s.

BEERBOHM'S REPORT.

Beerbohm reports: Floating cargoes—Wheat firmly held; corn nil. Cargoes on passage—Wheat and corn stiff. Mark Lane—Wheat firm; corn turn dearer; flour very strong and still tending up; spot good mixed American corn 21s 6d, was 20s 9d; straight Minnesota flour 27s 6d, was 26s 6d. French country markets firm. Weather in England unsettled. Liverpool—Spot wheat strong; corn firmer; No. 1 Cal. 7s 9d; Walla, 7s 5½d; A. R. W. 8s 6d to 8s 6½d; Indian 7s 7d; all wheat penny dearer; flour 26s 6d, shilling dearer; corn 4s 7½d, ½d dearer; peas 5s 6½d, unchanged.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Buffalo reports: Uncertainty as to the outcome of the labor troubles on the railroads has seriously affected the cheese markets. Shippers were afraid to purchase largely owing to the probability of a tie-up delaying shipments. On this market the only sales were 900 boxes of Sandusky at 8½c and 1000 boxes of Cloverfield at 8⅝c. The Marshfield, Springville and Fulton factories boarded no cheese here.

Utica reports: There was quite a boom in the cheese market here. Advices from New York were favorable but more than anything else probably the demand for cheese for the home trade occasioned the activity. The market was one of the most active of the season. Transactions: 4 lots, 400 boxes, at 7⅝c; 56 lots, 5725 boxes, at 7¾c; 46 lots, 4863 boxes, at 7⅞c; 10 lots, 1180 boxes, at 8c; 12 lots, 1158 boxes, at 8⅛c; 6 lots, 800 boxes, at 8¼c; 3 lots, 385 boxes, commission. Total, 139 lots, 13,868 boxes. Ruling prices 7¾c. Transactions same date last year. Aggregate 14,767 boxes, ruling price 7⅝c.

Little Falls reports: The cheese market has shown a better feeling and prices are advancing about ⅛c. An effort was made by buyers to hold the prices down to 8⅛c, but 8 lots were found at the close that received the half. Transactions: 59 lots at 7⅞c; 24 lots at 8¼c; 9 lots at 8⅛c; 11 lots commission. Total 10,214 boxes.

The sales of farm dairy are reported at 970 boxes at 8⅛c to 8½c with bulk at 8c.

Butter—Twenty-six packages of creamery butter sold at 22c to 23½c, mostly at 23.

Toronto Pedlars Fined.

WIARTON, Aug. 26.—Two pedlars, John Foley of Cooksville and Ed. McDonald of Toronto, selling goods for John Ryan & Co., 59 Colborne-street, Toronto, arrived here the other night and started to sell their $45 lots of clothing to the farmers. On their return for dinner Constable Pettigrew had them arraigned before Reeve Moore for hawking without a license. McDonald was fined $44.50 and Foley got off $10 cheaper.

Going, Going, Gone!

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—James F. Coolican, the Canadian auctioneer charged with the abduction of Mamie Stevens, pleaded not guilty in the municipal court, waived examination and was held in $800 bail for appearance before the grand jury in September. The girl was held in $300. Mr. Coolican furnished [illegible]

WORDS BUT NO MONEY.

THE KNIGHTS MUST FIGHT IT OUT ALONE.

The Federation Council Sympathizes with Powderly and Roundly Abuse Webb but Offer No Further Aid—The Albany Meeting—Wright Talks.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Aug. 26.—The K. of L. asked for bread from their brothers of the United Order of Railway Employes, better known as the Federation, and it has responded with a stone. It is true that the morsel is concealed in a jar of honey, but it will be none the more digestible to the Knights on that account. It is a common remark here to-night that the final decision of the conference could not have been more to Mr. Webb's taste had the third vice-president of the Central Railway manipulated the wires that controlled the twelve men who composed the supreme body. The unfortunate Knights are left to their own resources. They are not even offered the balm of pecuniary support and their general master workman is referred by the chief of the federation to press despatches for the official reply to his appeal. The outcome may prove a death-blow to the Knights.

At 6 o'clock this evening this message was sent out by the Council of Railway Employes:

T. V. POWDERLY, General Master Workman K. of L., Stanwix Hall, Albany: The Supreme Council adjourned this afternoon after carefully considering the strike in all its details. You will note the report of our deliberation in to-night's dispatches which, it is hoped, will meet with your approval. The council was unanimous in endorsing your position and the position of the Grand Executive Board, and most earnestly hope that the right which you are championing in the great conflict on the New York Central may finally and powerfully prevail.

W. R. SARGENT, President.
W. A. SHEAHAN, Secretary.

The following is the manifesto of the Federation:

To all Labor Organizations:

MEN AND BROTHERS: On the night of Aug. 8 a strike began on the N.Y.C. & H.R.R. involving about 3000 in the employ of the said road who were members of a great labor organization known as the K. of L. The reasons set forth by Mr. T. V. Powderly, chief executive of the order, may be summarized as follows: The peremptory discharge of between 50 and 60 employes of the road and members of the K. of L., because they were K. of L. without giving them any reasons whatever for the discharges. Prior to the strike the men involved sought through the representatives of the order to have their grievances adjusted, but their appeal being disregarded a strike was inaugurated. At this juncture T. V. Powderly, master workman of the K. of L., entered upon the task of adjusting the difference and of making such arrangements as would result in an honorable peace between the employes and officials of the road, but his efforts were unavailing. Mr. Powderly, comprehending the purpose of H. Walter Webb, third vice-president of the company, to make war upon the K. of L. and ultimately upon all the labor organizations represented on his road, sought a conference with the Supreme Council of the United Order of Railway Employes. The request of Mr. Powderly was granted to the extent that four members of the council, the chief executive of the Federation met him in the city of Buffalo.

The members of the Supreme Council became satisfied that the officials of the road by every consideration of fair and honorable treatment of labor organizations should meet Mr. Powderly and adopt some just plan for the adjustment of the grievances of the striking employes. This conclusion having been reached the members of the Supreme Council, in response to the request of Mr. Powderly, extended their journey to the city of New York to afford such aid as was in their power to bring about a settlement between Webb and Powderly. The failure of the negotiations is then verbosely set forth and the summoning of the Supreme Council which met at Terre Haute from Saturday until Monday noon.

The council arrived at these conclusions:

1. The position of the Knights of Labor meets with unqualified approval.

2. Webb's course evinces a purpose to destroy labor organizations on the Central.

3. Webb's policy is despotic.

4. Webb is a criminal because he employed Pinkertons.

5. No. 2 elaborated.

6. Webb's actions say: "The public be damned."

7. Webb claims his road is private property, whereas it is a corporation chartered by the state.

In view of these conclusions the strike is approved and Webb denounced, but as the K. of L. is not a member of the Federation the council cannot do more than express their sympathy. Its inability to participate otherwise in the strike is now known and appreciated by Mr. Powderly.

THE ALBANY CONFERENCE.

Discharged Men Examined by Powderly—Alleged Onslaught on Knights.

ALBANY, Aug. 26.—At the afternoon conference of the General Executive Board and D.A. 246 twenty of the men who were discharged were admitted and closely questioned by Mr. Powderly relative to the causes which they thought led to their dismissal. Close questioning failed to disclose, except in a single instance, that any of the causes set forth by the officials of the Central road could have been the grounds for the discharge of the men. On the contrary, it is claimed many facts were brought out which tended to show that these wholesale discharges were the results of a preconcerted plan to drop all the prominent leaders in the circle of the Knights. Among those discharged were some who admitted that when they were dropped reasons included in Mr. Webb's statement were given, but entirely different ones. Several of the men said they were charged with insubordination at the time of their dismissal and added that the only act of theirs which the officials of the road could construe as one of insubordination was where they had served on committees which had waited upon the officials of the road and presented grievances at different times. Other men when they asked for the reasons of their discharge were met with the answer that they were working against the interest of the company. One man who had been given this answer said he had been threatened with dismissal on two separate occasions for being a Knight, the last time being in February. Another discharged man said he was asked to go on piece-work, which would reduce his salary one-third. He refused. Shortly after he said he was discharged.

Mr. Powderly said it had been charged that the Knights of Labor was a foreign organization and that this strike was the result of their machinations. He asked all the delegates present who were born under the American flag to stand up. Sixty-seven delegates arose and when those born abroad were asked to rise 10 men responded. The men were asked what sort of persons were filling their places on the Central road as far as they knew personally. The general tenor of their remarks was that their places were mostly filled by former employes who had been discharged for incompetency, intoxication and dishonesty. A preamble and resolution was adopted calling upon the State Board of Arbitration to order a prompt investigation of the existing difficulties, saying that the strikers were ready and anxious for one. Mr. Devlin was instructed to inform the Board of Arbitration of the above action, and he departed to perform the duty.

Before the meeting adjourned Messrs. Powderly and Devlin addressed the delegates, outlining the course which would be pursued in case the Federation did not order a general strike. They also dwelt upon the means at the command of the order to support this strike and said the major part of the money would be furnished willingly by the Knights all over the country. The conference then adjourned sine die.

A. W. Wright Talks.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—The monster mass meeting held in the rink to-night drew a larger crowd to that place than has ever before entered the building at one time. No one could get in the hall after the meeting was called to order. At 8.12 p.m. at least 4000 men were present. Mr. A. W. Wright was the first speaker. He spoke emphatically and to the point. He referred to the lawful and orderly manner in which the strike was carried on and the broad and vital principles for the perpetuation of which it was found necessary to order this strike. He announced the endorsement of the Central strike by the Federation at Terre Haute, reading a telegram from Chief Sargent to that effect. He said this strike had not been inaugurated without due deliberation. He denounced Chief Arthur and his organization unless the latter repudiated the position now taken by their chief in this strike. He said the position taken by the Central road would, if successful, not only destroy the Knights' organization, but was the beginning of a system of attacks on organized labor all over the United States. "There will be but one issue to this strike. The Central Railway will shortly fall before the power of public opinion." He asserted that it would be but a few months after the strike was settled in case the Central should win when the engineers on the road would be confronted with a reduction in their wages when they would like to resist but could not do so successfully without the assistance of the K. of L.

The Strikers Paid Off.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—The pay car on the Central road arrived here to-day and all the strikers who were employed outside of the shops were paid off. The latter will receive the money to-morrow. This money is badly needed by some of the men who never learned to lay away anything to sustain their families during a siege like the present.

The Grand Trunk's Schedule Affected.

HAMILTON, Aug. 25.—The strike on the Vanderbilt system is affecting the Grand Trunk trains. Nearly all the through trains were late yesterday, the 4 p.m. trains not arriving until nearly 6 o'clock.

EDDIE BURKE GOES TO PITTSBURG

Alleghenians Think Him a Poor Exchange for Billy Sunday.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 26.—The Philadelphia and Pittsburg League Clubs Saturday effected a trade, Harry Wright giving Centre Fielder Burke and Pitcher Day for Fielder William A. Sunday.

A more startling exchange than the above could not come to the National League patrons in Pittsburg. Burke, while being a timely batter, a splendid fielder and fleet base runner, is far from being Billy Sunday. The new fielder was bought from the Torontos last winter for $2000. He has been playing ball since 1886, having caught for the Lewistown, Danville and Scranton clubs during that year. In 1887 he covered left field for Scranton.

William Day, the pitcher, is not much of a catch. The Quakers got him from Cape May last season and up to date put him to very little use. Sunday was secured by the Philadelphias as much to make him an assistant to Manager Harry Wright as for anything else.

Tenny Beaten by Time.

BRIGHTON BEACH, Aug. 25.—A great crowd came here to-day to witness Tenny's attempt to break Ten Broeck's record for a mile which he failed to do. The track looked fast but was a trifle dead. It was the fifth race, being the record prize of $6500. Tenny (110) to beat Ten Broeck's mile record of 1.39¾, $2500 extra if he succeeded. Hamilton rode Tenny. The betting was 6 to 5 Tenny, 3 to 5 Time. He ran like a scared deer to the quarter and kept his gait to the half where he was joined by Punster, jr. This made Tenny balk, and going around the upper turn he was hardly galloping. On entering the stretch he improved his pace, and with Hamilton using whip and spur dashed past the post in 1.40¾, or one second behind Ten Broeck's time.

The Manchester Chess Tourney.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The bi-annual master's tournament under the auspices of the British Chess Association commenced yesterday at Manchester.

There are 20 competitors, who will have to play 19 rounds. Ten games were played in the first round. Lorock beat Thorold, MacKenzie beat Alapin, Bord beat Gunsberg, Lee beat Tinsley. The other games were adjourned.

THE ST. CLAIR TUNNEL.

ENGINEER HOBSON THE FIRST MAN THROUGH.

Completion of the Drift Early Monday Morning—Sarnia and Port Huron Have a Noisy Celebration—The History of the Work.

SARNIA, Aug. 25.—This morning at 10 o'clock the two shields of the St. Clair River tunnel were only 20 feet apart. For purposes of observation, a drift eight feet in diameter was cut from one to the other, and Messrs. Joseph Hobson, the chief engineer of the tunnel; Charles Mackenzie, M.L.A., one of the directors of the company, and Dr. T. G. Johnston, the company's medical adviser at this point, started from the American entrance and walked the entire distance through the tunnel, Mr. Hobson being the first man to pass through the opening. The British flag was hoisted, and he was received with three rousing cheers from the hundreds of men engaged in the work, accompanied by the screeching of boat whistles and the clanging of bells, which announced to the citizens the interesting fact.

Before the expiration of the present week the entire main portion of the tunnel will be completed, and the accuracy with which these shields were guided has been marvelous, as it was found that they were directly in line, not varying the slightest. The obstacles that have been met with and overcome were such that the public has no conception of them, but the zeal and energy displayed by every one in connection with this great undertaking overcame every hindrance. This is exemplified by the fact that from the day the shields were lowered into their position to commence the work twelve months will not have elapsed until Sept. 7, at which time this great international undertaking will be completed.

The contract for the approaches and masonry has been let to Messrs. Nihin, Elliott & Fhin of Brantford, Ont., who have commenced the work, and it is confidently expected that before the expiration of the present year the Grand Trunk Railway Company will be running their passenger and freight trains across the frontier by this underground passage. Sir Henry Tyler, the president of the Grand Trunk Company, and Sir Joseph Hickson, the general manager, will arrive from New York to-morrow to inspect the work, of which they, in conjunction with the very efficient and competent staff on the work, have every reason to feel justly proud. The success of this great work is due to the engineering skill and ability of Mr. Joseph Hobson, chief engineer of the Great Western Division G.T.R., who conceived, planned and executed it, and who under the greatest difficulties has had the most perfect confidence in the possibility of the work.

The tunnel is 6000 feet long, 2300 of which are under water. The whole is lined with cast iron from end to end, the tunnel being 20 feet in diameter. The successful completion of this tunnel settles the Detroit bridge question for all time. No permit will be granted to build a bridge which would so greatly interfere with navigation now that the practicability of a tunnel has been demonstrated.

BLACK BART'S BRAINS.

The Lone Highwayman's Attempts to Lead Them on the Prison Walls.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 26.—Holzhay, the lone Gogebic highwayman and murderer, made another attempt yesterday morning at self-destruction and he was almost successful. Having lost the use of his right hand in an effort to escape by overpowering the guards and his attempt at starvation having been thwarted by the injection of food, the unruly convict tried a more efficacious means. Yesterday morning when the guards took Holzhay's breakfast to his cell he found the prisoner semi-unconscious on the floor bleeding freely from the right wrist and his hair matted with blood. A hasty examination showed that his wrist had been cut open above the radial artery and his scalp on the crown of his head crushed in a pulp. The wounds were promptly dressed, Holzhay recovering his senses during the process. In his pocket was found a blood-stained sliver of tin which had been broken from a galvanized iron bucket used in taking water to the cell. When this attempt to sever his artery had been made Holzhay had then tried to smash his brains out by butting his head against the brick wall of the cell, but the length of the room was insufficient to permit proper momentum. Holzhay is now in a straight jacket and for the present is incapable of inflicting further injuries upon himself.

Scenes in the Day Tragedy Photographed for Use at the Trial.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 26.—Chief of Ontario Police Thomas Young had Mrs. Quigley brought here yesterday morning, and taken to the spot where she was with her brother, Arthur Day, on July 27, when he told her he had pushed his wife Desirah over the cliff. Mrs. Quigley was placed on the rock where she testified she had sat down to rest and two substitutes for Day and his wife were placed in the same position as Day and his wife had stood when Mrs. Day was last seen by Mrs. Quigley and the scene was photographed. The distance between where Mrs. Quigley and where Day and his wife stood was measured and found to be 267 feet. The substitute placed by Mrs. Quigley for Day's wife was standing about a foot from the edge of the cliff. The scene was then photographed after Mrs. Day had been pushed over the cliff, Day beckoning with his handkerchief for his sister, Mrs. Quigley, to come to him. Afterwards Mrs. Quigley was taken back to Welland jail. The authorities photographed these scenes to be used at the trial in October.

SOME RESULTS OF THE N. P.

A FEW results of the National Policy, as predicted by Sir Leonard Tilley in his budget speeches, are summarized by the Montreal Gazette, and first as to the adverse balance of trade. In the six years ending with 1878, the value of goods entered for consumption in Canada was $[illegible], and the value of exports $[illegible], giving a balance of trade against the country of $[illegible], or an annual average of $[illegible]. In the ten-year period ending with 1889, the value of goods entered for consumption was $1,[illegible], and the value of exports $[illegible], giving an adverse balance of $[illegible], or an annual average of only $[illegible]. Sir Leonard said that the deposits in the Government savings banks were augmenting at the rate of $[illegible] a month, and that the increase would continue under the operation of the new fiscal policy. Result: The aggregate deposits have grown from $[illegible] in 1879 to $[illegible] in 1889, a gain of $[illegible] or nearly three millions annually, while in the five years preceding 1879 the deposits were stationary. He declared that the N. P. would increase our purchases from Great Britain, and check the drift of trade to the United States. Result:—The imports into Canada from Great Britain, which declined from $[illegible] in 1873 to $[illegible] in 1879, rose four years later to $[illegible], and were in 1889 $[illegible]. On the other hand our imports from the United States, which amounted to $[illegible] in 1879, were ten years after $[illegible], an expansion of $[illegible], as against an expansion of $11,[illegible] in purchases in Great Britain. He predicted that the duty on coal would enlarge the sales of the Nova Scotia mines by nearly a million tons. Result:—The sales 1879 were [illegible] tons, and in 1889 they amounted to 1,[illegible], a literal fulfilment of the prophecy. He promised that the general condition of trade would be vastly improved, and the long era of depression ended. Result:—In the five year period, 1875-9, the aggregate liabilities of traders who failed were $[illegible], or an annual average of $[illegible], while in the ten year period, 1880-9, the aggregate liabilities of insolvents has been $121,[illegible], or an annual average of only $12,110,000. He declared that the cotton industry was bound to make rapid strides under the protective policy, and that prices of cotton manufactures would be reduced. Result:—An increase in the importation of raw cotton from [illegible] pounds in 1879 to 39,[illegible] pounds in 1889, or more than fourfold in the decade, while the price of the goods never was so low in Canada as now.

A Close Call.

The C. P. R. express, which arrives here at noon, demolished a biscuit and confectionery wagon near Myrtle on its way east to-day. The wagon was crossing the track, the driver supposing that he could clear the train, notwithstanding the whistling of the engine. He was a little out in his calculation, for the engine struck his wagon and smashed it to atoms, scattering the contents, boxes, etc., in all directions. Fortunately the driver or horses were not injured. The train was stopped, as it was feared that the man was injured, but the cut was a clean one, the rear portion of the wagon being totally wrecked, while the front part was left intact without driver and horses being injured.

FARM AND GARDEN.

INTERESTING ITEMS FOR FARMERS AND HORTICULTURISTS.

The Cassava Plant—Starch, Flour, Tapioca Sauce and an Intoxicant are Produced From This Plant—Farmers Should Have Theoretical Knowledge.

The farmer who has kept his potatoes free from weeds will find his labor lessened when harvesting the crop.

The grooming of a horse after the day's work is done largely affects its capacity for work the next day.

It is estimated to take 35,000 tons of twine to bind the average annual grain crop of this country.

Do not attempt to hasten the germination of seed by soaking in warm water unless it is a hard and healthy seed.

The Russian mulberry is a rapid grower, and makes durable timber. It is said to be as good as cedar for fence posts.

Extremes of heat and cold affect all classes of stock. Warmth in winter and shade in summer must be provided or the animals will not thrive.

Grape vines that are properly tied up, either to a trellis or a post, will make better growth than when they are permitted to fall on the ground.

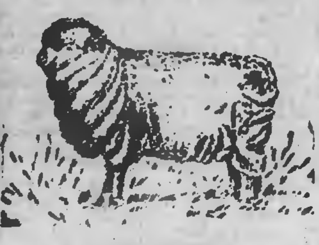
A filthy pig-pen breeds not only disease but swarms of flies. Many cases of typhoid fever may be traced to the pig-pen.

Carrots are an important crop to look after, and their cultivation should not slacken because they are beyond the weeds.

Do not plant flowers haphazard. Study floriculture if you intend to grow flowers. That is the way to get the most out of the flower garden.

When the chickens are large enough to roost shut them in a house and teach them to stay there every night. They should never learn to roost in bushes or on fences.

There is room on every farm for some hogs, but the number that can be kept to the best advantage must be gauged by the different conditions under which the farmer is working.



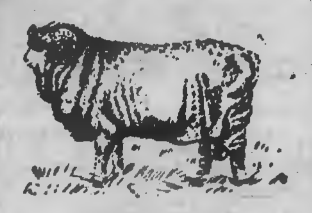
SPANISH MERINO EWE.

Every one of our hens that has had a chance to sit on the ground has done well. The higher and dryer we have made the nests the worse the failure has been.

Pigs farrowed in the summer are too late for making large hogs and too early to be kept over for next season. Such pigs may be used for roasters, and find ready sale in the markets.

Sharp tools lessen the work. The mower knives should be kept sharp all the time, and examination should be made after each day's work with it. It saves the labor of the team.

Ground fish is one of the best fertilizers considering its cost. For corn it is excellent, and it is largely used for that purpose. Composted with stable manure both are improved.



SPANISH MERINO RAM.

The Brahma is the largest breed of chickens and the bantam the smallest, but the latter lays as many eggs (in weight of eggs), proportionately, as the large breed.

Test the melons for ripeness very early in the morning, before the sun is up, as it is then easier to distinguish the ripe ones than during the heat of the day.

During the very warm weather the horses should have a long dinner period. It is better to begin work with horses very early in the morning and stop two hours at noon, than to hurry them out during the heat of the day.

If tomato bushes are too thick the ripening will be delayed, as the sun and air will not circulate freely. This is the cause of rot at times. Tie the bushes to stakes where they have fallen down and covered the ground.

An extra horse during the busy season will more than pay for its cost in the saving of the regular teams and the increased amount of labor performed, especially when farm demands are urgent.

The centrifugal machine is beginning to be used not only for separating cream from milk, but for many other purposes. A cylinder that revolves 1200 times a minute has been invented for extracting fruit juices. It will suck the juice from grape pomace and leave it as dry as a bone.

Blackberries will respond liberally to fertilizers, and to push the young canes this season will give them an advantage next year in yielding a crop. As a rule blackberry canes do not receive the cultivation and manure which they deserve.

No matter how clean the utensils may be, a filthy stall will cause the milk to be more or less filthy. The dried dirt floats in the air, and though unseen, is present in proportion to the manner in which the quarters are kept.

The pasture is a poor place for a cow if no shade is to be had. The direct rays of the sun and the attacks of insects will do more to cause a shrinkage in the yield of milk than is gained by attempting to make the pasture provide the food. Cows should be kept at the barn when occasions demand.

When an animal intended for market shows no gain on a proper allowance of food it will be more profitable to sell it rather that to attempt to increase the weight. There are individuals in all herds and flocks that seem to make no increase on any kind of food, even when fed liberally.

Ducks in confinement made nearly as much filth as hogs. Where yards are used to keep them it is better to have two yards, changing the ducks from one to the other, by which method quite a large proportion of green food can be grown for them in the unoccupied yard.

Whenever a tree is injured apply a covering of rosin and tallow over the wound. Insects will seek such injured places and do more damage than a weakly tree can sustain. If an application be made soon after the injury the wound will readily heal.

There are two objections to using racks for hay in preference to mangers: One is the liability of the stock getting seeds of various kinds in the eyes, and the other is the danger of injuring them in putting hay into the racks with a fork.

Professor Baily suggests as a remedy for the curculio that carbolized plaster be applied profusely to the tree when the dew is on. To make this powder stir one pint of crude carbolic acid into fifty pounds of land plaster, or quick lime may be slacked with the acid.

High farming is kept up on the Island of Guernsey, which last year exported to London 400,000 packages of garden produce, although it has only 10,000 cultivatable acres and supports a population of 35,000. The produce exports have increased 260 per cent, in seven years, although nearly all the growers are amateurs, who are principally engaged in other pursuits, and possess but small agricultural holdings.

The future farmer should be given a theoretical as well as a practical knowledge of agriculture. "Book farming" is sometimes an important adjunct to practical experience. The farmer who studies, and understands botany, the composition of fertilizers, the characteristics of the different soils, the breeds of animals and the plant and food adapted to the great varieties of plants, has a great advantage over one who simply understands the mechanical work of a farm. Practical experience, however, is one of the teachers.

The breeds intended for the butcher have been bred for beef for years, and are not adapted for the dairy. The food given to one animal may be converted into milk, while the same food given to a breed intended for beef will be devoted to that purpose. The conversion of the food into any kind of product greatly depends upon the animal to which it is given.

The annoyance from flies and insects cause animals to lose flesh rapidly. A work horse that has done service during the day requires rest at night in order to be refreshed for the next day's labor. Screens should be affixed to the windows to prevent entrance of flies and the stables should be kept clean.

A Very Extraordinary Plant.

[illegible] of the Cassava plant, but of these only two are cultivated, namely, the M. utilissima, or poisonous kind, and the M. aipi, or sweet. Both have nearly the same chemical composition, but the former is deemed the more productive, and is, therefore, that planted most in South America, where cassava bread is the chief food of the people. The sweet species only is cultivated in Florida, and is well adapted to feeding horned cattle, swine, fowls and horses, and making tapioca, cassava and flour. It may be as well to add here that the name cassava should only be applied to the purified starch obtained from the roots of the plant known as mandioc, Janipha manihot, Jatropha manihot, M. aipi and other names.

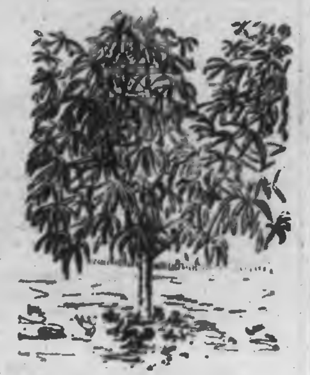


FIG. 1. CASSAVA PLANT.

The fleshy root yields not only cassava and tapioca, but is the basis of several fermented liquors. The leaves are also boiled and eaten in South America, where the manihot occupies about the same position that wheat does here. The plant is somewhat similar in appearance to the castor-oil plant. The stem is smooth, woody, and bears leaves on the extreme tips. The stalk varies from three to six or more feet in height, according to the richness of the soil. One of the most marked characteristics of manihot is the large quantity of materials it contains which are soluble in alcohol. It yields a starch equal to the best corn, pound for pound.

Being exceedingly rich in carbonaceous matter, chemists claim that it could be more profitably employed for manufacturing glucose than starch. Some persons say the boiled root is equal to potatoes, but I could never be induced to think so, it being too fibry, dry and "choky" to make it pleasant to my palate. It is well adapted to feeding and fattening domestic animals, however, as some of them devour it greedily, and never seem to weary of it. The root is very productive, yielding from 1500 to 2000 bushels per acre, and supplying as much food as six acres of wheat. Bahamians live largely on manihot flour, it being the chief food of the farming class. To make it into flour, the root is first peeled, chopped into thin slices, dried in the sun, then pulverized.

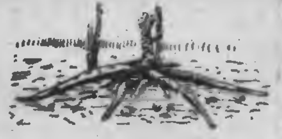

FIG. 2. CLUMP OF CASSAVA ROOTS.

Floridians get both starch and flour out of it. They leave the root in the ground until it is required, then dig and wash it, remove the peelings, grate the inner part, and wash the pulp. The water is next poured into another vessel and allowed to stand until the pure starch settles in the bottom. This water is again drawn off, and the starch allowed to dry and bleach. The washed pulp may be made into puddings immediately, or dried in the sun and turned into flour, which keeps fresh and sweet for a long time. This can never replace our cereals, however, owing to the small amount of nitrogenous matter it contains, that being only 1.31 per cent.

Tapioca is the product of the poisonous species. The juice of that plant, when permitted to settle, deposits the starch known as the Brazilian arrow-root, and from this the tapioca is made by agglutinate. A sauce called cassareep, and an intoxicating beverage known as piwarrie, are also products of the Cassava root, so it is quite evident that the plant has excellent qualities enough to make it worth cultivating.

To produce large crops, fertilizers must be used liberally. The plant is propagated by cuttings of the stalks, which are planted about four feet apart each way. Cuttings are made about four inches long, and are entirely covered with soil. After the plants appear above the surface, the ground is kept cultivated similarly to corn; but after the roots grow larger, only very shallow cultivation can be given. (Fig. 1 shows a growing plant, and Fig. 2 a clump of roots exhibited at the semi-tropical exhibition at Ocala. The largest root of the clump was four feet long.—J. M. Murphy.

FIXING THE TARIFF BILL.

No Date for a Final Vote Has Yet Been Fixed—One of the Rumors.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Senator Gorman, chairman of the Democratic caucus, says that no agreement has yet been reached respecting the date when a vote shall be taken on the Tariff bill.

The general impression, however, is that the date for the voting on the bill will be fixed at about Sept. 5. The official announcement of an agreement will be made, it is understood, by Senator Aldrich, in charge of the bill, who will move at the proper time that the debate cease upon the agreed date and this motion will be agreed to unanimously. Whether or not the five-minute rule will be applied to the discussion at an earlier date, Senator Gorman could not say, although he admitted that it was probable.

In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The order of business for the remainder of the session arranged by the Republican committee of the Senate provides that the consideration of the tariff bill shall be completed without interruption except by appropriation bills and conference reports. Senator Aldrich, who has charge of the tariff bill, will, before the Senate meets to-morrow, endeavor to reach an agreement with the Democratic senators as to the date on which voting shall begin on the bill and amendments. If successful he will then ask unanimous consent to have the voting begin on the date agreed upon. He will also ask that debate during the last three days shall be conducted under the 5-minute rule

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING
EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Christian Endeavor.

At a meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Baptist church last evening, Mr. M. A. Hardy, B.A., of Lindsay, delivered an enthusiastic and encouraging address. He urged the young people to live lives of Christian endeavor, and to work unitedly for Christ and the church. He especially advocated the maintenance of the local union in our town, realizing that unity is strength. The members were much pleased with Mr. Hardy's address, as he gave them many new ideas in relation to the working of the Society.

Not Identified Yet.

Mr. Robt. Hamilton, of Ashburnham, who went to Millbrook yesterday to ascertain if the remains of the young man Henry Hamilton, who was reported to have suicided in Springfield, Ill., had been brought there and if so whether it was his brother as was feared, returned home last night. No word of the affair had been received in Millbrook, although the telegraphic despatch in all the papers said that the remains were to be sent to that place. Mr. Robt. Hamilton has written to the authorities at Springfield and forwarded a photograph of his brother so that the suicide's identity will be established in a few days.

THE CHEESE BOARD.

A Good Board and Spirited Bidding—All Sold but Three Factories.

A regular meeting of the Cheese Board was held in the new market building at noon to-day. A new feature of the meeting was the fine board which the committee appointed at the last meeting had had placed in position on the north wall of the building. The names of the factories are nicely painted on the board which is a big improvement on the old one. The President, Mr. Drummond, complimented the committee on the manner in which they had done their work.

As regards cheese there was a good board from the Peterborough section. Twenty-two factories boarded 2365 boxes. The buyers present were Messrs. Flavelle, Wrighton, Warrington, Claxton, Spence and Fitzgerald. Liverpool was quoted at 45s. The bidding was spirited when it started. The cheese boarded was as follows:—

PETERBOROUGH SECTION.

Factory.	No. of Boxes.
Keene	167
Warminster	211
Shearer	222
Central Smith	145
North Smith	200
Cherry Grove	200

Grand total	2,365

The ball was set rolling by Mr. Claxton offering 8¾c. for the board, which was followed after a long delay by a bid of 8¾c. for selections by Mr. Wrighton. This was raised to 8⅞c. for selections by Mr. Fitzgerald, who was bettered by Mr. Wrighton of 8⅞c. for the board. Mr. Warrington then bid 8¾c. for selections, which Mr. Claxton raised to 9c. for selections. Mr. Wrighton bid the same for the board. Mr. Claxton was after cheese and offered 9⅛c. for selections and secured Keene, Warminster, Shearer, Central Smith, Missing Link, North Smith and Cherry Grove. Mr. Flavelle then offered 9c. for Victoria section, and Mr. Wrighton bid 9c. for balance of board. Mr. Claxton bid 9 1-16c. for further selections, which Mr. Wrighton raised to 9⅛c. for selections. At this figure he got Westwood, Norwood, Melrose Abbey and Peterborough. He then bid 9c. for the balance, but was raised again by Mr. Claxton to 9 1-16c. for selections. At this price Pine Grove, Maple Leaf and Otonabee Union sold. Mr. Flavelle then bid 9 1-16c. for the Victoria section, and this was accepted by them all. This left Warsaw, (which refused 9 1-16c.,) South, Dummer and Myrtle unsold.

The Board then adjourned for two weeks.

Troubling a Woman.

Mrs. Vought, who has already won for herself the acquaintance of the police and has also faced the Magistrate at different times, was in trouble again last night. She lives on McDonnel-st., and about eleven o'clock sent her young daughter to the police station to complain against the conduct of three young men who she claimed had attacked her house, thrown stones and in other ways conducted themselves disorderly. She was to lay informations against the three this morning and ventilate the matter before the court.

It Was Fortunate.

A runaway which miraculously resulted in no damage to life or property occurred last night a little before eleven o'clock. The team of horses attached to Mr. R. Gibbs' hack were standing at the corner of George and Brock-sts. when the animals took fright and started up Brock st. at a break-neck speed. The animals dashed up the hill to Rubidge-st. where they turned south as far as Charlotte-st. Coming in contact with a tree box, the animals came to a standstill and were caught. Strange to say that notwithstanding the reckless rate at which the team travelled with the heavy hack, no damage was done to either hack or horses.

The Thistles Must be Cut.

Six citizens were summoned before the Magistrate at the Police Court this morning charged with allowing thistles and noxious weeds to grow on lots of which they were supposed to be the owners. The Chamberlain estate, Messrs. John Carlisle, A. C. Dunlop, H. Grandy, and M. O'Brien and Mrs. Kearns were the six alleged offenders. In the case of the Chamberlain property the thistles had been cut and the case was dismissed with costs $1 85. In the other cases the defendants claimed not to own the lots on which the weeds were thriving and they were all dismissed.

Down the River.

A fisherman from town who was trawling at Jubilee Point yesterday made a good haul. He pulled in one maskinonge that weighed 23½ lbs. Fishing is good in the river and Rice lake and there are some very fine lunge in the waters.

Duck are fairly plentiful at the lake and there is every prospect of a good season for sport in duck shooting.

There are a large number of campers on the lake now, from all quarters.

The Golden Eye carries an excursion from Hastings to Idyl Wild on Tuesday for the fire brigade of that village, and on Saturday a Sunday School excursion from Curtis' Point to Peterborough.

ASHBURNHAM'S RATE.

14 MILLS THE PROTESTANTS AND 14½ THE S. S. RATE.

A Special Meeting of the Ashburnham Council—The Estimates for the Year—The Annexation Question to be Discussed—If it will Assist in Inducing Manufactories to Locate Here the Reeve will not Oppose it.

A special meeting of the Ashburnham Council was held last evening, at which the Reeve, Mr. John Burnham, Q.C., presided, and Councillors Calcutt, Adams and Throop were present.

The meeting was held specially to pass the estimates for the year and strike the rate. This was done, but general business was also disposed of.

A SIDEWALK WANTED.

A petition was received from a number of ratepayers asking that a sidewalk be laid from the corner of Wm. Collins' shop north along Driscoll-st. about 100 feet.—This was referred to the Street and Bridge Committee.

THE SEPARATE SCHOOL DEMAND.

Mr. John Corkery, secretary of the Separate School Board, notified the Council that his Board required the sum of $225 to be levied on the Separate school supporters for the current year.—Received.

THE COUNTY RATE.

Mr. Edg. Pearce, County Clerk, notified the Board that the sum of $371.73 had been drafted by the County Council to be levied within the village of Ashburnham for county purposes for the year 1890.—Received.

THE WATER NUISANCE.

A communication was received from Mr. John E. Belcher, architect of St. Joseph's hospital, in reference to the nuisance which was complained of and a resolution in regard to which was passed at the last Council meeting. The nuisance complained of Mr. Belcher said was due to the water tables and culvert on the streets not being sufficient to take off the surface drainage. Mr. Belcher stated that there was no sewerage matter from the hospital to contaminate this water and make it a nuisance.—Received.

ACCOUNTS TO BE PAID.

On motion of Councillor CALCUTT, seconded by Councillor ADAMS,—The following accounts which were presented were ordered to be paid:—

Dickson Co.	$ 14 40
Dickson Co.	26 95
Metropolitan Grocery	21 63

Pay sheet No. 25	116 75
Pay sheet No. 26	31 25
Total	$280 [illegible]

A WHARF WANTED.

Councillor CALCUTT moved, seconded by Councillor ADAMS,—That this Council memorializing the Dominion Government to build a wharf on the Little lake at the foot of Mark-st.—Carried.

THE ESTIMATES.

The Reeve presented the estimates of receipts and expenditure for the year. According to these the Protestant rate for the village will be 14 mills, while the Separate school supporters will pay 14½ mills. The estimates as presented were as follows:

PAYMENTS:
County rate	$ 371 60
Salaries	631 50
Debentures	340 00
Fire and light	600 00
Charities	200 00

Interest	120 00
Sundries	2[illegible]0 00
Abatements and losses on collection	140 00
	$5,002 00
DEDUCT:
Licenses	$ 400 0
Rents	270 0
Poll and dog taxes	500 0
	$ 620 00
Required to be raised	4,382 00
Rate of 10¼ mills on $420,165 assessment	$ 4,300 05
PUBLIC SCHOOLS:
Amount required	$1,500 00
Deduct rate $[illegible]; Government grant, $162	282 00
	$ 1,218 00
Add for debenture	150 00
Required to be raised	$ 1,368 00
Rate of 3¼ mills on $381,141	$ 1,388 00
SEPARATE SCHOOLS:
Amount required	$ 225 00
Rate of 4 mills on $54,865	224 00

A. H. PECK,
Treasurer.

According to this, therefore, the Protestant rate will be 14 mills, and the Separate school rate 14½ mills.

The necessary by-law fixing the rate as above was given its readings and passed.

WHERE DOES HE BELONG.

Richard Tice, an old man who gave his age as 73 years, applied to the Council to place him in the Home, claiming that he was unable to work. It appears, however, that the man has not been a resident of the village for several years past, having lived in Peterborough. The village council therefore did not feel it their duty to provide for him when he was a resident of town.

A friend of the old man said he always considered Mr. Tice a resident of Ashburnham, because when he worked in Peterborough he always came back to the village when out of work.

Nothing was done in the case, the Council not being willing to saddle an annual burden on the municipality which belonged, as they thought, to the town. Mr. Tice will probably make application to the town.

TO BORROW MONEY.

A by-law authorising the borrowing of the sum of one thousand dollars was given its readings and passed.

THE ANNEXATION QUESTION.

Reeve BURNHAM brought up the question of annexation to the Town. He said that he had seen that the Town Council had appointed a committee to confer with the Village Council in regard to uniting the two municipalities. Mr. Burnham said he might explain how the matter had come up at this time. A manufactory which proposed coming to Peterborough had selected a site in the village and some of the Town Councillors had asked him what bonus the village would give. For the town and village to decide on the division of a bonus in a case like this, he said, was almost impossible and he had told the Town Councillors that if annexation would facilitate or aid in bringing manufacturers here he would not stand in the way of the union. Mr. Burnham said they all wished to see industries come here and if annexation would assist in doing this then he would not oppose it.

THE FEELING OF THE PEOPLE.

Councillor CALCUTT said it would be well if they could get the feeling of the people on the question.

Councillor THROOP said he thought it was just about even for and against.

Councillor ADAMS said the town deputation should come with some definite scheme and not with talk as last year.

It was understood that the committee would wait upon the village council at their next meeting, and an adjournment for the purpose of meeting this delegation and discussing annexation was made until Monday, the 8th Sept.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

The Sights of the Ocean—How the Time is Passed on Board.

S.S. VANCOUVER, NEARING MOBILLE, }
Ireland, Aug. 14, 1890. }

DEAR REVIEW.—I believe that I told you on the eve of leaving Peterborough that if I had a few minutes to spare I would try and furnish your readers with a short account of my trip across the Atlantic. As it is very unpleasant to-day on deck and all the passengers are seeking shelter inside, I will try and fulfil my promise.

On Tuesday, Aug. 5th, I left per G. T. R. for Montreal. On arriving at Brockville there were a number of ladies that got on the train. The peculiarity was that they were all similarly dressed. A gentleman on the train asked me if they were an operatic troupe. I replied that I thought they were, but later on gained the information that they were a professional baseball club and were billed to play at Cornwall next day. Arrived at Montreal on Tuesday and noticed these belles of the bat advertised as one of the opposition nines in a game to be played there. After doing the city we repaired to the S.S. Vancouver to ascertain the location of our state room and berths. This being done we had ample opportunity of seeing the Vancouver being loaded with her immense cargo.

At 5.15 on Wednesday morning, Aug. 6th, whilst in my berth, I heard from without the words, "Let go," and as I looked out through the port hole I saw that we were gently steaming out of the dock, and a little later on the blue St. Lawrence. When out a short distance the parting salute was given. Took breakfast at 8 30 and found the fare in every way first class. The breeze is cool and refreshing. At 10.30 a.m., we pass the flourishing city of Three Rivers, which is just mid-way between Montreal and Quebec. It seems to me that if a ferriage were established between the city and the growing place across the river it would be the means of giving an impetus and growth. At 11.30 a. m., we greeted the S.S. Toronto of the Dominion Line from Liverpool.

Arriving at Quebec at 3 15 p.m., we lay at anchor until 10 a.m. on Thursday morning, when a tender arrives from that city with passengers. All excitement is now at end until we arrive at Rimouski at 10 p. m. Eight miles from the city we were favored with a beautiful view of Montmorenci Falls. The day is delightful and the foaming waters of the falls in the distance give a rest to the eye and prove a delight to every passenger.

On Friday, the 8th, the steward called at our room at 7.30 a.m., "Time to get up, gentlemen," and we did not wish to miss our breakfast, for it is a great thing at sea, you know, to say that you never missed a meal. It means bravery, it means victory. So we got up and dressed, took a promenade on deck, and came down to the large dining saloon for breakfast. In this room, there are four side tables on each side and four long centre tables, with stationary chairs at each table, 8 at each side table, 21 at the two largest centre tables and 19 at the smallest centre tables. The Vancouver is beautifully lit at night with Edison's electric lights.

One requires to be on a steamer the size of the "Van" three or four days before you begin to really know the passengers. We are now beginning to get acquainted with those on board. I met a Mr. and Mrs. Gregg from Toronto, to-day. Mr. Gregg is an architect, a son of the Rev. Prof. of Knox College, Toronto. Mr. J. H. Burnham, of Peterborough, is also one of the passengers.

I witnessed to-day for the first time the bubble of which is sometimes compared to the water lily. The similarity is in this particular, that each comes to the surface to blow. Some distance from the steamer we see what is very much like smoke coming up out of the water. It is the bubble of the great marine monster. I saw this at least three times to-day.

At about 3 p.m. we sight the Island of Anticosti and view in the distance the Sardinian, one of the Allan line of steamers. In order to pass away the time, a number of games are provided for the passengers. We have the game of quoits, which are made out of heavy rope, and there is the game of shuffle-board, which is played not unlike curling. Both these games are played on deck and are largely participated in.

We have just been looking through the telescope at the wreck of the S.S. Idahoe. She stands seemingly erect and to all appearance seems to be sailing. There she stands on a lonely rock off Anticosti—a rock hitherto unknown, being a mile and a half from any previously known rock, but now ever to be remembered, a warning to all passers by, "Don't come near here, for it was on this rock that I perished." I thought as I viewed that wreck how like that is life with a great many. They commence the voyage with every requisite to obtain success; motives pure, character unblemished, integrity and honor their capital or cargo, but temptation comes, it attacks in the weakest part and they yield. They become stranded on the rock of sin, and, like the Idahoe, they become a wreck, left entirely to themselves. To think that a life should be wrecked that might have been saved for usefulness for time and eternity!

On Saturday morning we went up on deck and witnessed what I had often before heard of—a fog at sea. The "Van" was stopped three times and after being assured that everything was all right, proceeded on her journey. The fog gradually lifted and in a short time all was clear again.

We are now passing through the famous straits of Belle Isle and for the first time I see hugh ice palaces floating at our right and at our left, some smaller, some larger, but any of which would make it very interesting for that steamer that should chance to come into collision with one of them. It is now 5 p.m., and Belle Isle is in sight. Ponderous icebergs are to be seen in all directions, and looking through a telescope you have one of the prettiest sights possible. I noticed one immense one, variously estimated at from 1 to 3 miles in length, but that would be equivalent to a fish story, so we will draw it somewhat milder and place it at 600 ft. in length, that being 150 ft. longer than the Vancouver. Some of these icebergs are like great cathedrals with massive domes, others resembling deer and swans on the water. Passing through Belle Isle we find it cold—bitterly cold. Heavy wraps are exchanged for heavier ones, and I hear no longings expressed for cool weather, but rather for the hot weather of Montreal.

Sunday at sea, I am sorry to say, is by many disregarded. They seem to forget that the command, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy," is as applicable to the sea as the land. We had a short service this morning, conducted by Rev. Mr. Page, of Manitoba. The service ended, all was ended, as there was no sermon, which I thought very strange.

Monday, the 11th of August, was one of the finest days we have had at sea; the waves playing beautifully and the sun shining brightly. We have had two excellent concerts, at one of which we raised $35 for the disabled seamen.

Captain Leddall is a jolly good fellow and the stewards are exceedingly accommodating. We have had a very pleasant voyage and can safely recommend the Vancouver to anyone contemplating a trip to Europe.

I am afraid, Mr. Editor, that I have trespassed on your valuable space, so will draw my long letter to a close.

Very truly yours,

O. C. R.

Shooting at Toronto.

In yesterday's events in the annual matches of the Ontario Rifle Association at Toronto two members of the 57th team took good places. In the "Macdonald" match Capt. Dennistoun won a $4 prize with a score of 25, the highest being 29. In the "Gilmour" Staff-Sergt. W. A. Mason stood well up to the front, being seventh in the list, winning a $5 prize with a score of 22, the highest being 25.

Death of Joseph Langford.

Mr. Joseph Langford, brother of Councillor Langford and a well-known citizen of Peterborough, died at his residence on Sherbrooke-st. last evening. The deceased was a victim of pneumonia, which developed from an attack of la grippe. He was 43 years of age and had been a resident of Peterborough for many years, being one of the best known of the town carters. The funeral takes place from the family residence to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock.

The Death Rate.

The mortuary statistics for the principal cities of Canada for the month of July are to hand and show that Peterborough's death rate was 1 07. We had a total of 10 deaths, 8 males and 2 females. The causes of death were as follows:—Anemia 1; cerebro spinal affections 1; paralysis 1; lung disease 2; disease urinary organs 1; violent causes 2; atrophy and debility 2. The ratios of principal cities per 1000 of population are given as follows:—Peterborough, 1.07; Toronto, 1.28; Hamilton, 1.84; London, .62; Brantford, 1.47; St. Thomas, .85; Guelph, 1.12; Belleville, 1.41; Woodstock, .65; Brockville, 1.91; Montreal, 3.77; Quebec, 4.0.

Personal.

Mr. J. L. Hughes leaves on Wednesday on a trip to the Pacific coast, where he will visit the principal cities.

Mr. A. Elliott and party returned yesterday from Chemong Park, where they have been enjoying a summer outing.

Mr. Alex. Waters, of Pembroke, who has been visiting friends in town, returned home yesterday.

Dr. E. A. Spilsbury, of Toronto, will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, on Saturday, August 30th, from 9 a.m., to 11.30 a.m. for consultation. See card. 2w35-2d29

Mr. J. Jacques, a former organist of the George-st. Methodist church, but who is now in St. Thomas, was in town to-day the guest of Mr. R. J. Lee. Mr. Jacques is returning home from London, where he has been for the past four or five months and where he succeeded in securing a certificate as a doctor of music.

Mr. E. Clegg, of the Sun Life Assurance Co., arrived home this morning on a short visit to his relatives and many friends in Peterborough. Mr. Clegg, who was located for some time in Montreal, has just returned from the West Indies where he has been for the Sun Life. He will probably go to South America in a few months in the Company's interest. Mr. Clegg met and was accompanied here by his cousin, Miss Varley, of Melton, Lancashire, Eng., who will spend a few weeks with her relatives here.

Brevities.

—The cells were without occupants last night.

—The band will be in the park this evening.

—Those who have been spending the summer at different summer resorts are beginning to return to town.

—Sir Henry Tyler, President of the Grand Trunk railway, will arrive in Montreal next week and will go over the road with Sir Joseph Hickson.

—The South Ward school opened yesterday with an attendance of 276. It has been decided to adopt the half time system in the lowest room, owing to the crowded state of that room.

DIED.

LANGFORD.—At Peterborough, on Monday, Aug. 25th, JOSEPH LANGFORD, aged 43 years.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, No. 418 Sherbrooke-st., on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock to the Little Lake cemetery.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1890.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

"It must be near daybreak."

And thus speaking Paul turned and went to his own room, where he threw on an outer garment, and then he went down. At the door he found a stout man wrapped up in furs, while close by stood a sledge with two horses attached to it. In the east the golden tints of morn were already visible.

"A gun-maker, named Nevel, lives here, does he not?" asked the applicant, after having first made some passing remark on the trouble he had had in starting some one up.

Paul feared that there might be something out of the way, but he dared not tell a falsehood where it could not possibly be of any use, so he answered in the affirmative.

"Then let me see him as speedily as possible."

"He is preparing to come down, sir. If you will walk in you may see him very soon.

The stranger followed the boy into the kitchen, where it was quite warm, the fire in the furnace having being burning all night. Ere long Ruric came down, and the visitor started up.

"How!" uttered the gun-maker, starting forward and extending his hand. "Demetrius!"

"Aye, my friend," the Greek replied with a smile, "I am an early visitor, eh?"

"I should say so; but, early or late, you are welcome."

"Thank you. But we must not spend much time here now. My sledge is here at your door, and I wish you to accompany me."

"But wherefore is this?" asked the youth in surprise. "What has happened now?"

"I will tell you; Last night Olga, the duke, came to see the Emperor. I had just been giving his majesty some exercise at the sword, so I was present at the interview. The duke wished for power to arrest you; and in explanation of the request he stated that you were at the head of a band of robbers here in the city, and that you had already committed several robberies. I needn't tell you all he said—but he made you out to be a most unmitigated villain, and with this the Emperor granted his request. Olga wished for power to execute you at once, but Peter would not go so far as that. He gave the power to arrest, but ordered the duke to bring you before him."

Ruric stood for a few moments like one confounded.

"Then he must carry me to the Emperor," he said, at length.

"Ah," returned Demetrius, with a dubious shake of the head, "be not too sure of that. I saw a look upon his face when he turned away that meant more than he dared to speak. As sure as fate he never means that you shall see the Emperor. I know it—I saw it in his evil eye."

"But will he dare disobey the order?"

"Yes, for he hopes to escape by falsehood. How easy for him to swear that he had to kill you to take you."

"I see—I see," uttered Ruric.

"Then come with me."

"Did the Emperor send you?"

"No; but I take the responsibility. I will take you to him myself. Be sure the duke's hireling will be here before long. Trust to me and all shall be well."

Ruric pondered a few moments, and he saw that his friend was right.

"Let me go and see my mother," he said, and then I will go with you."

"But make haste," urged the Greek, "for the duke's men may be here soon, and I do not wish them to see you. And—tell your mother to inform whoever may call that she knows not where you are gone, but that you will be back at night."

The youth nodded assent, and then went into his mother's room, where he explained to her what had happened and what he was about to do.

"And how long must these things be?" the mother uttered, gazing eagerly upon her son.

"Not long," returned Ruric. "I may do much towards settling the matter to-day. But fear not, for I am now safe, and shall be until I see you again."

The widow promised all that her son asked, and soon became assured that all was well; but Paul was left with the duty of attending to those who might come for Ruric, though they might see the widow if they persisted. The boy promised to tell all that asked for his master that he was gone away on business, and would not return till evening.

The mother came out before Ruric was ready to start, and her examination of the Greek's countenance seemed to be satisfactory, for the anxious look left her face, and she looked upon the visitor kindly.

As Ruric entered the sledge the dawn of day was plainly announced in the east, and the stars were paling in the sky. The Greek did not take the direct road to the Kremlin, but struck off to the westward, and so entered by the Neglina.

An hour later a party of five men drove up to the gun-maker's cot. They were dark, villainous-looking men, and murder was plainly stamped upon their faces. They entered the dwelling, but they found not their prey. They stormed and swore, but to no purpose, and when they were convinced that the gun-maker was not there they went away.

An hour later still, and another party drove up to the same cot. It consisted of two men in a double sledge, one of whom was Valdimir the monk. The fat, mystic man entered the cot, and there he remained for some time. When he came out the widow and Paul accompanied him; and they all got into the sledge and drove off together.

What did it mean?

It was noon. The grand duke was once more alone in his private room, and he was pacing uneasily to and fro. There was a cloud upon his brow, and trouble in his soul. His lips were firmly set, and his hands clenched. Ever and anon he muttered to himself, and when he did so his hands would work nervously and emphatically. He looked often at his watch, and often he stopped near the door and hearkened.

At length came that well-known shuffling, uncertain, cat-like tread. He threw open his door, and the dark priest glided in.

"Ha, Savotano, I've waited for you," the duke uttered sinking into a chair; for his nervous walking had made him weary. "Now tell me the work is done. Oh, for God's sake, don't tell again of failure!"

"Alas, my lord—"

"Hold, Savotano! By the host of heaven, you are not going to tell me of failure?"

"Not really a failure, my lord," the priest returned, nervously. "But our men did not find the gun-maker at home. He had gone when we got there, and no one knew where."

"No one knew? Did not his mother know?"

"No. She said he did not tell her where he was going. He only left word that he was going on business, and should not return till evening."

"By heavens! I think he has fled."

"No, my lord. I do not think so. I think he must have had business."

"But what time were you there?"

"Shortly after sunrise."

"And he gone then?"

"Aye—he had been gone an hour."

"It looks suspicious. But the men must be there this evening. He shall not escape me now."

"There is no fear of that, my lord. I will see that he is apprehended as soon as he returns."

"Right, Savotano—right! And now to the other matter. I am to be married this afternoon!"

"Ah—so soon?"

"Yes; I waste no more time. What is the use?"

To be continued.

THE CASE OF DR. BURTZELL.

Who is at Variance With the Church of Rome—His Position.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Rev. Dr. Richard Lalor Burtzell, late pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, who was removed from his charge on account of his expressed sympathy with the excommunicated priest, Dr. McGlynn, has been temporarily suspended from the exercise of his functions as a Roman Catholic priest in the diocese of New York. The decision of the propaganda in his case, which has not heretofore been made public, was in effect that the doctor shall be removed from his pastorate at the Church of the Epiphany and make an apology or retraction for his action to the archbishop. He was allowed a certain time in which to do so, with the warning that if he failed to give evidence of his repentance within the allotted time the sentence of temporary suspension should be passed. It is not true that Dr. Burtzell was offered the parish of Rondout. He was simply removed from the Church of the Epiphany and Dr. Pendergast of Rondout, appointed in his place. Dr. Burtzell will never again take charge of any church within the diocese of Archbishop Corrigan. Should he comply with the requirements demanded of him by Rome he will be rehabilitated, and sent to another diocese, in accordance with the general custom of the church in regard to priests who have been suspended. Official news relative to Dr. Burtzell's sentence has only just reached New York and is for the first time given to the public now that he has refused to comply with the mandate of the propaganda. There are points in common between his position as regards the church and that of Dr. McGlynn. Both their cases are now entirely out of the hands of Archbishop Corrigan and the only tribunal with which either of them can deal in the future is the propaganda. In the future the archbishop will have no more to do with either case than he would have with the affairs of any priest outside his diocese.

GUELPHITES GULLED.

Mexican Charlie Makes a Big Stake With His $1 Gold Watches.

GUELPH, Aug. 26.—Mexican Charlie, who three years ago made a big haul here by giving away a "gold" watch with each $1 of medicine sold, struck the town again last week. The fakir had another big crowd as he told the virtues of his corn cure. The first purchasers were returned their money with a quarter to buy drinks. The 50 cent packages had 50c or $1 returned to buy the cigars. Then came the watch scheme. The covetous desire of the fools had been cleverly raised, and the $1 bills came in as fast as the fakir could stow them away, in spite of the warnings of those who knew the dodge. The fakir enclosed the watch in a package and each purchaser was to hold it up in the air, so that the fakir could know who were to receive another great gift (a brass pen) be had for the $1 purchasers. This prevented the dupes looking at what they had until the fakir had got in all that he could, and then they found that for their good money they had received a brass box with a watch face, a brass pen and some sawdust, or stuff equally valuable. The fakir was pelted with potatoes and stones as he drove off, but he kept guying the crowd, which followed him clear across the square and around to his hotel. Had it not been for the help of the police it would have gone hard with him.

DOLLAR WHEAT.

Manitobans Confident of an Unusual Harvest—Mr. Kelso's Farm.

EMERSON, Man., Aug. 26.—A fine sample of No. 1 hard wheat threshed this year on the Kelso farm, situated 20 miles south of Emerson in Hallock, Minn., and owned by Mr. C. G. L. Kelso of Toronto, shows the capabilities of the Southern Manitoba district. The farm has an area of over 4000 acres with about 2500 in corn this year. Mr. Kelso anticipates an average of 26 bushels to the acre and is assured of $1 wheat.

No considerable damage has yet been sustained from frost. This will be a phenomenal year in the Northwest. A conservative estimate places the wheat which will soon be ready for the export market at 12,000,000 bushels, which at 90 cents will realize $10,800,000. Other products will probably reach $4,000,000.

King Frost Came Too Late.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Mr. T. C. Irving, the Toronto superintendent of Bradstreet's, received last evening this despatch from Bradstreet's Winnipeg office in reference to the crops in Manitoba and the Northwest.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 25.—Estimated over 85 per cent. of wheat was safely harvested previous to frost, and large proportion of standing grain practically unharmed. Slight damage done to some late grain at a few points. Anticipated yield will not be materially affected. J. A. GREEN, Supt.

Skin Diseases

Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face [illegible], which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued used for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude.

(Rev.) WM. CREELMAN, York Corner, Me.

Cuticura Remedies

Are compounded upon scientific principles, are absolutely pure, delicately manipulated and in every respect bear the stamp of a refined and cultivated origin. Wherever there is the highest intelligence, there you will find the greatest appreciation of these remarkable remedies. CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood and Skin Purifier and greatest of Humor Remedies, internally (to cleanse the blood of all impurities, and thus remove the cause), and CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally (to clear the skin and scalp and restore the hair), cure every species of itching, burning, scaly and pimply diseases and humors of the skin, scalp and blood, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, whether simple, scrofulous or hereditary.

Sold everywhere. Price, CUTICURA 75c.; SOAP, 35c.; RESOLVENT, $1.50. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Boston.

Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases," 64 pages, 50 illustrations, and 100 testimonials.

WHAT is Lime Juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the Best Temperance Beverage. The answer is that it should be the juice of the Lime Fruit without adulterant.

By the "MONTSERRAT" Company alone is the Lime Fruit cultivated for this purpose, and great care should be taken to obtain this brand (as supplied to the British Government), in lieu of the numerous concoctions sold under the name of Lime Juice Cordials, prepared Lime Juice, &c.

COLLAPSE OF THE STRIKE

Freight Traffic Resumed—Employes Admit Failure and Ask to Be Reinstated—The Alton Switchmen Declare Their Brief War Ended—Labor Notes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—This despatch was received to-day at the offices of the Lake Shore road from George H. Daniels, general passenger agent of the New York Central: "Our operating department has authorized the freight department to resume the carrying of perishable freight, and all our traffic is being moved as usual. Passenger trains are on time and no further trouble is anticipated."

Asking to be Taken Back.

SCHENECTADY, Aug. 26.—The New York Central & Hudson River Railroad pay car was here to-day and paid all the strikers in full to Aug. 8, the day of the strike. The car left the city about 2¾ p.m., and several of the strikers at once made application for reinstatement, declaring that the strike was a failure.

A Little Kick on the D. & H.

SCHENECTADY, Aug. 26.—Nine Delaware & Hudson yardmen went out on strike here to-day because the D. & H. company were taking Central freight. Their places were filled by new men and business continues.

The Chicago & Alton Strike.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The strike of the switchmen on the Chicago & Alton road begun last night continues to-day. The passenger trains are moving all right, but the freight trains are tied up. There has been no violence. The company wished to place one of the old employes in charge of the yard at Brighton, whereas the men wanted a man of their selection. The company refused to grant this and the strike resulted. There is no dissatisfaction among the men regarding salaries or treatment. Forty-five are out altogether.

The freight traffic is pretty effectually tied up. There are 150 cars of dressed meat in the yard and each car contains 20,000 pounds. Swift & Co.'s cars that have been standing near their houses since Friday were opened to-day and the contents were found to be spoiled. None of the big packers except Swift and Armour did any killing to-day and they did but little. In the stock yards but little purchasing is being done. The police have driven all the strikers out of the yards and have formed a cordon about the place.

The Wabash was the first road to make a move. It had three engines in the yards. As the engineers refused to take them out officers of the road mounted the cabs as engineers and firemen [illegible] others acted as switchmen, and the [illegible] were taken away to the round house [illegible] the jeers of the idle multitudes outside the police cordon.

The news that the switching association had been dissolved caused a meeting of the strikers to break up hurriedly. The engineers realized the change in the situation also and when ordered proceeded to take their engines to the round houses.

The strikers have given up the fight. They will send a committee to the railroads asking to be taken back at the old wages. There are seven engines from five different roads at work. Trainmaster Martin says the yards will soon be clear.

THE BRICK TIE-UP.

Effects of the New York Boycott—Disastrous for the Workingmen.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The brick tie-up today is as perfect as it can be. It is probable that about 1,000,000 bricks now under contract will be received to-day and these will be the last shipments until the boycott of the Knights of Labor against the Verplank faction is raised. The effect of the tie-up will be felt about Friday, and if the boycott is persisted in by the Knights nearly 10,000 men will be thrown out of employment. The boiler makers and ranging manufacturers are already feeling the effects of the tie-up, which will extend to all trades depending even incidentally upon bricks to continue their work.

FELL OVER THE CLIFF.

A G.T.R. Employe's Narrow Escape from Death at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 26.—D. Davies, clerk for the locomotive foreman of the Grand Trunk Railway here, in some mysterious manner fell over the river bank at the foot of Queen-street and struck on the rocks 75 feet below at 10½ last evening, and must have been stunned, and remained unconscious the most of the night. His cries for help were heard by parties on the American side about 8 o'clock this morning, when a rescuing party made a descent and rescued him. He was immediately placed under chloroform to alleviate his sufferings, after which a rope ladder was lowered down and Davies was put on a stretcher, raised to the top of the cliff and taken to his boarding place. The place where he fell over was a few feet from the Government fence. The shrubbery was stripped of its leaves where he went over. Evidently the unfortunate man grasped them as he went over, after missing his footing. The doctors in charge expect to bring him through all right. Davies came here from Montreal about three years ago, where [illegible] his father resides.

EDMUND YATES' GOSSIP.

SOME GREAT DOINGS TO BE HAD IN SCOTLAND.

Preparations for the Braemar Gathering—Movements of Royalty—"Benefactor" and "Malefactor"—The Naval Manœuvres and Their Lesson.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Edmund Yates cables The Tribune from London: Great preparations are being made at Balmoral for the Braemar gathering, which is to be held there in a park on the bank of the Dee, within a short distance of the castle, on Thursday week. The Queen, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, and Princess Beatrice are to be present, and the Mar lodge party will include the Princess of Wales and her daughters and Duke Clarence. The clansmen are to be entertained at Balmoral after the gathering, and a ball and torchlight dance will probably take place in the castle in the evening.

The Prince and Princess of Wales and Princesses Victoria and Maud are to proceed to Denmark about Sept. 19 in the royal yacht Osborne, embarking at Aberdeen. They will be the guests of the King and Queen at the castle of Fredensborg, where the Emperor and Empress of Russia and the Duchess of Cumberland are also expected.

The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland have been making a tour of Sutherlandshire, and a somewhat more warm welcome was given them than they experienced last year.

Sir James Mackenzie was known as the "benefactor" at the Marlborough club for many years, but after a candidate whom he proposed had been rejected he withdrew his capital from the concern, selling his interest to Lord Cowley, whereupon he was styled the "malefactor." Sir James Mackenzie rendered valuable aid to Marlborough during a serious financial crisis in the history of the club.

The naval manœuvres are over, and they might just as well never have been so far as any good resulted from the program devised by the admiralty. The only part of it of any real value was the ten days' evolution and target practice before war was declared. If we gained no other knowledge we learned how to disable half of the armament of two powerful ironclads at the first round of firing, an episode, however, which was not foreseen by the admiralty, but which proved to be fraught with a lesson of the very highest importance. It was a wonderful and unexpected success. Of the torpedo boat flotilla which operated from Alderney, I have no hesitation in saying that all the money, coal, time and temper the manœuvres have cost have been well expended for invaluable experience acquired on this subject. Until now there has been a tendency amongst naval men to depreciate the services which the torpedo boats are capable of rendering. The aggressive power of the torpedo boats and their capacity for endurance at sea when properly handled came as a surprise to most of us, but nobody doubted that we were lamentably and perilously short of cruisers and vessels for scouting purposes.

The difficulty in finding crofter candidates for Highland counties is disappointing, and with the publication of the Land League program aspirants for political honors are cropping up everywhere. The program is comprehensive enough as a gospel of confiscation, and candidates are officially informed that, while they must be followers of Mr. Gladstone and the Radicals, these qualifications are unimportant. To bring the orthodox Land Leaguers apart from merely national questions the program enjoins staunch adherence to such articles of political belief as the establishment of local parliaments, one man one vote, triennial parliaments and abolition of the game laws and House of Lords.

Mr. Biddolph, M.P., has been very lucky during the last few weeks. A valuable estate in East Gloucestershire has been left to him by a lady who took a journey to appoint him executor and who is in no way related to him. Then Golding, the well-known brewer, appointed Biddolph to be one of his executors and left him about £70,000. Nor was there any relationship in this case.

Lord Aberdeen's house in Grosvenor-square has been bought, it is said, by James Mason of Eynsham Hall, and he is said to have given Lord Aberdeen the price he asked, namely, £70,000, an enormous sum for any house not a freehold, especially for Lord Aberdeen's, for though it has the appearance of being a remarkably good house for social purposes in reality it is not.

If we are not quite so magnificent in canalizing conception as the countrymen of the great DeLesseps we are somewhat more practical and utilitarian, for the Manchester canal is already nearly completed, and its energetic executive will, I hear, have everything ready even before the period contracted for. The idea of a canal between the mouth of the Mersey and Dee has, I hear, been temporarily abandoned.

TORONTO TOPICS.

Pollution of the Drinking Supply—A Constable's Assailant Sentenced.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—An analysis of the city water made yesterday has resulted in the discovery of the presence of sewage in the supply. This important fact has brought forth an ultimatum from the Medical Health Officer to the effect that citizens before using water for drinking purposes should first boil it. The advice is good, but it comes somewhat late when the citizens have been drinking diluted sewage for the past week. Twenty-six cases of typhoid fever have been reported in the last 36 hours, most of them probably due to the pollution of the water supply.

The two Germans, Phil. Goetz and Francis Hauck, who assaulted P. C. Dewhurst Aug. 7 on Davenport road, were sentenced yesterday, Goetz to six months and Hauck to one year in the Central Prison. Hauck used a knife on the constable while Goetz encouraged him.

Joseph Bullock, charged with seducing his step-daughter, was remanded for a week.

Tobias Switzer of 77 Mitchell avenue, one of the largest property owners in the West End, is in St. Andrew's Market Station on a charge of being drunk, and the police are awaiting the report of Dr. Pritchard and a colleague whether the more serious crime of assault with intent to kill is not preferred against him. Switzer had been indulging in the saloons all day and last evening on going home he picked a quarrel with his wife. In the midst of the hot debate which ensued he seized a heavy piece of iron and struck her over the head with it and followed it up with a series of blows on the face and body. It is not known whether he kicked her or not, but last night Dr. Pritchard put seven stitches in a gaping wound in her skull, besides attending to other serious injuries. The police say that Switzer is a man of violent temper and unless he mends his ways is on a fair road to the gallows.

McKinley's Fences All Right.

MASSILLON, O., Aug. 26.—Major McKinley was to-day re-nominated by the Republicans for Congress.

TRANSATLANTIC ADVICES.

The Potato Blight in Ireland—"Seen to the Mare That Pays."

DUBLIN, Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the National League here to-day Timothy M. Healy, referring to the potato blight, said nothing stood between the people and starvation during the coming winter. The Government was represented as being most anxious to provide employment through the building of new railways, but how could the railway act recently passed be held to prove the Government's intention to meet the coming famine? Besotted stupidity marked the whole conduct of the executive. It might not be legal for tenants to withhold their land rent during the period of distress, but the man who should pay his rent and leave his family to starve would be little better than an assassin. [See King Henry V., act ii, sc. 1.—ED.] "Was Ireland," he asked, "to be placed again in the position of a mendicant before Europe and America?" If it should be necessary to appeal to America and Australia, no part of the assistance thus obtained should go to any man who had paid rent during the last twelve months. Let the landlords support the rentpayers. The farmers ought now to give an earnest of their intention to grapple with the impending distress by paying contributions to the central fund.

A Smallpox Epidemic in Brazil.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the Hygienic Committee to-day Dr. Proust read a telegram from Pernambuco stating that there are 4000 cases of smallpox in that province and that there is an average of 2 deaths daily.

Pernambuco is one of the eastern provinces of Brazil. It has a population of about 1,500,000 scattered over 57,583 square miles of territory. The principal towns are Recife (Pernambuco) the capital, Monteiro, Goyanna, Tamandare, Rio Formoso and Garanhuns.

Crisis in Cotton Circles.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 26.—Kennedy & Co., cotton brokers, have suspended. Other failures are expected in the cotton trade in consequence of the collapse in prices.

A Tornado in Italy.

ROME, Aug. 26.—The city of Perugia and the surrounding country have been visited by a tornado. The wind blew with terrific force. Four churches in the city were blown down and many houses were wrecked. A large number of persons were injured. The commune of Citerna was devastated by the storm.

All Aboard for Mombasa.

ZANZIBAR, Aug. 26.—The Mombasa & Nyanza Railway was inaugurated yesterday in the presence of the British and other foreign consuls, Admiral Fremantle of the British navy and a large number of other Europeans.

PLUMB'S RECIPROCITY SCHEME.

The Kansas Senator Desires Free Trade with Canada in Manufactured Articles.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The tariff bill was taken up in the Senate to-day and the lead schedule adopted.

Mr. Plumb (Rep., Kan.) gave notice of an amendment to the bill which he would offer at the appropriate time. The amendment was read. It is a modification of the bill for reciprocity with Canada introduced by Mr. Butterworth (Rep., O.) in the House. The changes are few but important. Senator Plumb proposes to restrict the operation of the reciprocal arrangement to manufactured articles and minerals.

The mineral schedule went through without change except that the article relating to nickel ore was struck out and nickel and nickel oxide was reduced from 15 to 8c a pound.

Schedule D, "wood and manufactures of wood," having been reached, Mr. McPherson (Dem., N. J.), wished to offer a substitute for the whole schedule, but reserved it until the committee amendments should be disposed of.

Paragraph 212, relating to sawed boards, etc., was on recommendation of the committee amended by reducing the duty from 25 per cent. to 10 per cent and by adding the words, "imposing a duty of 20 per cent on veneers not specially provided for."

Paragraph 217, pickets and palings, was amended on motion of Mr. Aldrich (Rep., R.I.) by reducing the duty from 25 to 20c per thousand. Mr. Aldrich moved to amend paragraph 221, which puts a duty of 10 per cent. on chair cane manufactured but not made into finished articles, by striking out the words "manufactured but not made into finished articles," and inserting in lieu of them the words, "or reeds whether wrought or manufactured from rattans or reeds and whether round, square or in any other shape."

Schedule E, relating to sugar, having been reached, Mr. Aldrich said the committee proposed to let that schedule be passed over informally for the present, so that Schedule F, relating to tobacco and its manufactures, would be the first thing to come up to-morrow.

A TRAIN WRECKER AT WORK.

The Scoundrel Discovered in the Act—Ambitious City Notes.

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—An attempt to wreck a Hamilton and Dundas train was made Sunday night. About 9 o'clock R. W. Witherspoon saw a man acting suspiciously at a crossing and on investigation found a three-inch plank lying across the south rail in a diagonal position, so that if the train had struck it the engine and probably one or two of the cars would have been dumped into the ditch on the south side of the track. The plank had been torn up from its bed on the crossing, where it had been spiked to the ties. Only a man of unusual strength could do this. Mr. Witherspoon just had time to remove the obstacle before the train came to the spot. He signalled Engineer Sweet, who stopped the train. Sweet said it was not the first attempt of this kind that had been made recently. Only a day or two before a large stone had been placed on the Garth-street crossing, and his engine had run over it; but, though the shock threw him off his seat, the engine, fortunately, was not thrown off the track. A little while before this a plank had been laid across the rails at the same crossing, but it was discovered before any damage was done. What makes this deed of Sunday night peculiarly infamous is the fact that the three cars that composed the train were filled with women and children, most of whom had been spending the afternoon at Ainslie Park.

No steps will be taken towards the annexation of East Hamilton to the city until the beginning of next year. It is said that the majority of the people in that locality are in favor of annexation, provided they be granted 10 years' exemption from the payment of debenture rates and be called upon to pay for current expenses only.

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—Last night Hazel, youngest daughter of John C. Landery, was out playing in the garden with other children, and while there fell off a bench about three feet high. She sustained internal injuries which resulted fatally during the night.

DOMINION NEWS NOTES.

AN UNFAITHFUL HUSBAND ATTEMPTS HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

A Domestic Tragedy at Montreal—A Rumor That the Earl of Aberdeen Will be the Next Governor-General—Quebec's Cholera Scare.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—A case of poisoning came to light to-day. A man named McPherson is alleged to have slowly poisoned his wife with strychnine. The pair met in Theiss' restaurant in Sixth-avenue, New York, and after being married came to Montreal. The husband was discovered to be unfaithful and quarrels between himself and his wife ensued. She was suddenly taken ill and upon analysis strychnine was found in her food. The husband and the strange woman have disappeared and the police have little hope of apprehending them.

THE NEXT GOVERNOR-GENERAL.

A Rumor that the Earl of Aberdeen Will Succeed Lord Stanley.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—The Earl of Aberdeen arrived in Montreal to-night and will remain a few days. He will then proceed to Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton. After a trip across the continent, he will return to England, having been absent four months. There is a rumor here that he will be the next Governor-General.

FOUND WATERY GRAVES.

A Barge Captain Drowned Near Mackinac—An Old Pilot's Fate.

ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 26.—Capt. Robert Thompson of the barge Maggie was drowned the other day in the Straits of Mackinac. During a heavy blow the captain and others were engaged in shifting some of the ties when he was knocked overboard about ten miles from Mackinac City. The deceased, who was a sober, steady young man, was a stepson of John Gallagher of this city, and intended to be married to a young lady here at the close of navigation.

POINT EDWARD, Aug. 26.—James Chesney, the 8-year-old son of Mrs. George Reid, was seen playing at 6 o'clock the other evening on the dock about the station. Not long after his body was found floating down the river past the elevator and was fished out by the crew of the car ferry Huron. Coroner Fraser was notified, but did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest. The cause of the accident remains a mystery.

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—The Cascade Rapids, near Beauharnois, so familiar to all those who come down the St. Lawrence from the upper lakes, was the scene of a drowning accident last week. One of the best known pilots on the river, named Charles Chales, living at St. Zotique, was coming down on a raft from Collinsby and attempted to run the rapids. A Caughnawaga Indian was with the old pilot at the time, and while going through what is called the Bimon Rapid both men were thrown into the river. The Indian made a most heroic attempt to save his companion, but the old voyageur went down to a watery grave. He was in his 66th year. Chalas had been a pilot 45 years. His body has not yet been recovered.

KINGSTON, Aug. 26.—Pensioner John Hamilton was drowned while returning to his home at the Grand Trunk Railway lower depot. He followed the Grand Trunk track and opposite the cotton mill fell into a culvert containing two feet of water. He could not get out and was suffocated to death.

BEGGED HER TO KEEP MUM.

How Cardinal Smith's Wife Threatened Him—His Hamilton Record.

HAMILTON, Aug. 26.—Corydon W., or "Cardinal" Smith, the man who is now lying in Simcoe jail on the charge of murdering Maria Colville, says this evening's Times, lived in Hamilton for a couple of years after committing the crime. Some years ago he came to the city, and hearing that Thomas Lawry had a house to rent on the mountain, near the residence of R. D. Beasley, he asked for the key, under the pretence of looking through the house. When he got inside, "Cardinal" stayed in, and it took Mr. Lawry a long time to rid himself of his disagreeable tenant. Smith followed his old vocation and started a disreputable house, and it was not until he had appeared before Police Magistrate Cahill and had been fined that he vanished from this vicinity.

Subsequently he took up a house in the southwestern part of the city, but was not long there until he had a misunderstanding with the woman who goes by the name of wife, and they sent for Auctioneer Johnston, who bought out their household effects. This was about a year ago. Two months and a half ago the couple took up residence in the old frame row owned by Mr. Cooper in South John-street, near the corner of Augusta-street. Smith did a few jobs of painting while there, and frequently got very full of liquor. When intoxicated, the woman he lived with regularly threatened to tell the police on him, and when these threats were used Smith would weep like a boy and beg of her "for God's sake not to give it away!" The neighbors frequently commented on the actions of the couple, and were very glad when Auctioneer Johnston drove up and took away their household effects, which he had purchased from Smith. Even after arriving at a settlement and agreeing upon a separation the woman was seen following Smith along the thoroughfare, declaring that she could not live without him. It is altogether likely that it was she who gave him away to the authorities.

Quebec Uneasy About Cholera.

QUEBEC, Aug. 26.—The spread of cholera in Europe and Japan is creating a certain uneasiness here. Several leading newspapers discuss daily the probabilities of the dread disease spreading in this city, where it would have but little check.

Menofia's Victim Improving.

QUEBEC, Aug. 26.—Paddy Lynch, who was shot by the Italian sailor Menofia, is improving. His doctors say that the bullet need not be extracted.

This is in Arkansas.

HARRISON, Ark., Aug. 26.—What is believed to be a paying silver mine has been discovered in Marion county under peculiar circumstances. Five years ago John McAdams of that county was sentenced to five years' imprisonment for counterfeiting coin which was made of silver and worth more than the genuine dollar. McAdams, it is claimed, dug the silver from a vein in the mountains near his home. He was discharged a few weeks ago and returned home. He has given samples of silver to a number of persons and assays show a large per cent. of bullion. There's much excitement in the neighborhood.

A Brilliant Ball at Halifax.

HALIFAX, Aug. 26.—Gen. Sir John Ross gave a grand ball at Bellevue House in honor of Prince George to-night; 600 guests were present. The historical old house and grounds were gorgeously decorated and dazzlingly illuminated with electricity and colored lanterns. The ball was one of the most brilliant ever given in this festive city.

SOUVENIRS.

A VERY little suffices to give the Liberal papers something to make a noise about. Gen. Middleton having gone, they cannot gain much by continuing their abuse of him and they therefore endeavor to find something in his farewell address upon which they can base an attack upon the Government. The small matter upon which they seize to base the attack serves to demonstrate that the general's statement really contained nothing from which they could extract comfort. It was stated in the general's address that Sir Adolphe Caron had asked Gen. Middleton to bring himself, Sir John Macdonald and Sir Hector Langevin souvenirs of the campaign. Of course, about the journalistic opponents of the Government, Sir Adolphe wanted the general to steal something for himself and his colleagues, and upon this slender thread they hang columns of rubbish. A request for souvenirs is not an unusual one. It is a common thing for persons returning from a distance or from some place of unusual interest to them to bring back souvenirs. How many Irishmen when about to visit the scenes of their youth in Erin receive requests from friends to bring them some reminder of their native land? How many Englishmen or Scotchmen receive similar requests under similar circumstances? According to this new meaning of terms adopted by the Liberal organs such requests would mean that the visitor or traveller should become for a time a burglar or a thief on behalf of his friends. Of course, that is nonsense. Such souvenirs are generally of no great intrinsic or monetary value, but are valued because of the associations, because they come from the place in which interest is felt. Many Irishmen value a genuine blackthorn higher than they would a gold-headed ebony walking stick, and many Scotchmen would prefer genuine heather from their native hills to the most beautiful plants or flowers. Souvenirs of fields of battle are prized by many besides those who have shared its dangers, but they are especially prized by those who have taken part in the engagements. Officers who took part in the Northwest campaign brought back with them photographs of regiments or brigades, and would not part with such souvenirs for money if they could not be replaced.

But when Sir Adolphe, according to Gen. Middleton, asked the general to bring souvenirs of the campaign, their opponents would have the people believe that the Minister of Militia wished the Commander-in-Chief to become a thief for him and steal some belongings of the people for his pecuniary advantage! Such far fetched nonsense cannot be believed even by those who published it. Articles so procured and for such a purpose would not be souvenirs. The Globe will have some trouble to convince sane people that a request for a souvenir is the same thing as asking a friend to steal something of value.

M'VICAR'S THEATER BURNT.

A $200,000 Blaze at Chicago—Firemen Buried in The Ruins.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Fire was discovered in McVicker's Theatre, on the south side of Madison-street, between Dearborn and State, at 3½ this morning. As far as it can be learned it originated in the smoking room under and to the west of the stage. The smoke damaged the valuable scenery of the Shenandoah Company now performing at the house. The flames shot out of the rear of the building with such fury that they extended across the alley and threatened destruction of the Windsor European Hotel. Many of the guests of the hotel were awakened and a panic resulted. There was no occasion for the fright, however, as the flames had no chance of communicating with the building. Panic also seized the guests of the Saratoga Hotel and the Bennett House, but the flames did not reach either of these places.

Seven men belonging to Fire Insurance Patrol No. 1 were in the auditorium at work when the roof fell in shortly after 4 o'clock. They all escaped by a miracle. Not so fortunate were the men who were fighting the fire in the rear of the building. When the rear wall fell all the men of No. 7 were buried in the ruins. Three firemen were more or less hurt, and Fireman Jack Duffy had his skull fractured and will probably die. The total loss to the theatre building and its occupants is estimated at over $200,000. Proprietor McVicker says his own loss will reach over $100,000. Several stores in State-street caught fire, but the flames were soon extinguished. The theatre was heavily insured in a large number of companies.

Happens Every Day.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 26.—Mary Peters, a domestic in the employ of Postoffice Inspector R. W. Barker, undertook to re-fill a lighted coal oil stove at noon to-day, when it exploded, scattering the burning oil over her clothing. She ran out to the street, where some boys extinguished the flames, but not before she was probably fatally burnt. The summer kitchen where the stove exploded was totally destroyed.

Other Fires.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 26.—A cheese factory near Napanee, owned by J. K. McCargar of this city, was burned together with 180 cheese Sunday morning. Insured in Royal Canadian for $1600 on cheese and in Ætna for $1400 on building. Loss much greater.

LEAMINGTON, Aug. 26.—Dunbar Bros.' general store and residence, Blytheswood, was totally destroyed by fire about 4 o'clock this morning. Loss estimated $2500. Stock insured for $1000 and building for $500; no insurance on furniture. Origin of fire unknown.

PESTH, Aug. 26.—A fire broke out yesterday at Tokay, the entry port for the noted Tokay wine, and all efforts to extinguish the flames were fruitless. When the fire burned itself out the whole town, with the exception of 13 houses, had been destroyed.

ALGIERS, Aug. 26.—Fire has swept the Souharas forest. Two villages were burned.

KILRAIN AND SULLIVAN.

The Baltimorean Again Wants to Meet the Champion.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Jake Kilrain has arrived in this city. In response to a question he said: "I do not know that I shall ever enter the ring again. My wife is desirous that I should remain outside, and I may consult her wishes in the matter, but you understand that the chief desire of my life has been to meet Sullivan again, and I will arrange a match with him any time that it is convenient for both of us. My friends are willing to back me for $10,000 again at any time Sullivan wants to meet me." "Do you think you would accept a challenge from Jackson?" was asked. "I never saw Jackson, and, as the boys say, 'he is not present.' I heard so much talk about a match between Sullivan and Jackson that I never considered the matter of meeting him myself."

Trimmings That Save Work.

Trimmings for white goods, consisting of insertion, tucking and lace or embroidered edgings, may be bought in the shops by the yard. This novelty means a small expense and a saving of a month's sewing or more to the woman who prefers home-made underwear. The factory girls who do this sort of machine work receive 1 cent per 100 yards, and are obliged to find their own cotton. New York World.

Trains for Evening Gowns.

Nearly all the trains of elegant evening gowns are of brocade, largely in Pompadour patterns, with stripes alternating, or in set clusters and sprays. Now that fashion so favors simplicity and straight, flowing lines, it is natural that the materials composing this particular style should be of rich quality and striking design.

TO DRESS BECOMINGLY.

Certain Blunders, and the Way to Avoid Them.

Tall, stout women should avoid high heels, high hats and striped dresses. Although stripes increase the effect of height, they also add to that of breadth. A plain cloth basque and skirt of striped material make a happy compromise, and can be worn with becoming effect by a stout woman. A basque cut high behind and on the shoulders has a tendency to give the effect of height. A stout woman should never wear a short sacque. A mantle of some soft material, subdued in color but light in texture, should be selected in preference to a close-fitting coat or jacket. The elongated folds of the mantle lend a smoothness and undulating flow to the body.

SPRAWLY CLOTHING.

She should never wear double skirts or tunics or dresses with large sprawling patterns, as they appear to detract from the height and give the impression of fullness and breadth. Large hats are generally becoming to those who have full, large faces, and if the hat-brim curls upward it adds apparently to the height. White or very light colors should never be worn by the stout; they greatly increase the apparent size. Large plaids should also be [illegible]. Small checks and plaids may sometimes be becoming.

AS TO THE SKIN.

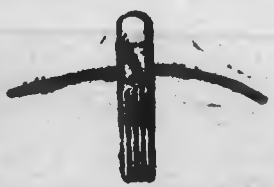
Light or dark people who are afflicted with bad skin and [illegible] complexions should never wear [illegible] colors near the face. The flowers on hat or bonnet should also be small and mixed. A clear solid color is too great a contrast and brings out the imperfections of the [illegible] a blended, indefinite, mixed [illegible] shadow and [illegible] invisible. Black and white, [illegible] and cool grays and [illegible] sage greens, are especially becoming to the charming matrons who have glided into the autumnal years of life. There is a grain of truth in the maxim, "As a woman grows old the dress material should increase in richness as it decreases in brightness, and her gown should be more simple in fashion."

TO SOFTEN THE COMPLEXION.

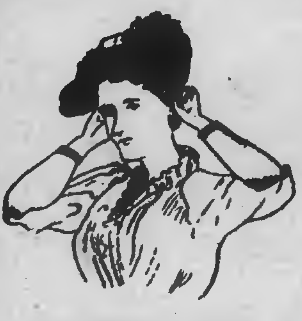
Lace is essential to the toilet of every woman over 40 years of age who desires to dress becomingly. [illegible], ruches and dainty falls of fine lace [illegible] an exquisitely softening effect on the complexion. This airy texture in which light and shadow can so beautifully [illegible] roughness of the skin and hardness of outline. Old Dame Nature is the [illegible] of these charming artifices. [illegible] effects with mist and cobwebs [illegible] moss on sturdy oaks, the [illegible] and huckleberry. An [illegible] produces her finest [illegible] silk. Lace and soft [illegible] beautiful glamour over the [illegible], and they are a fit and charming [illegible] of gray hair, which is a wonderful softener of defective complexion.—New York Tribune.

A New Hat-Fastener.

A Philadelphia manufacturer appears to have solved the difficulty of keeping ladies' hats upon their lovely heads without the use of hat-pins. A hat-fastener (like the following illustration) is fastened by elastic cord inside the hat.



When the hat or bonnet is put on the fastener is adjusted by gently putting it up under the hair until hidden by the hat, after the manner of a side-comb. The method of adjustment is shown as follows:



To Make a Claret Cup.

At least one New Yorker in a hundred knows or thinks he knows how to make claret-cup. One of the most accomplished bu-veurs hereabouts gives this recipe, which may save the spoiling of much good material: For one quart of claret take the juice of four peeled lemons and two oranges, which have been squeezed into a bowl containing four tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar; in this bowl now macerate the leaves only six sprigs of mint; then pour in one pony of Jamaica, two ponies of brandy and two of maraschino or some other cordial; stir the whole like wild-fire and then pour in the claret; to the whole then add one bottle of plain soda (or one of champagne, if "champagne cup" be desired), one pint of rhine wine and the peel of a cucumber; cut one small pine-apple and two oranges to garnish the whole, and pour it in a bowl around one great lump of ice.—New York World.

Mighty Ridiculous Sleeves.

Gigot sleeves have certainly taken the public fancy. Some are so high and so huge as to render their wearers ridiculous. Many new sleeves are cut on the cross and have but one seam. Not a few are extremely long, and are silk-lined, with color, which being turned back at the wrist, forms a bright cuff. Sleeves of fine-wool gowns are cut open to the elbow, but are buttoned to that point. The very smallest buttons, set very close together, unite the divided edges.—New York Post.

Other Labor Troubles.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The striking miners in Belgium now number 18,000.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—There is much dissatisfaction among the dockers at Southampton, and a great strike is imminent.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 26.—The Seamen's Union has called out the crews of the Union Steamship Company, whose vessels ply between Sydney and New Zealand.

The gas stokers go on strike to-morrow on the ground that the gas company employs non-union men.

At an immense meeting of employers today it was unanimously resolved to support the ship owners.

BATHING IN A CORSET.

Madge Explains Why a Lady Friend Uses the Precaution.

Lilla has been buying a bathing-suit. She is off to Normandy, and has chosen a compromise between the smartness of the "toile to pour bains de mer" that hails from Paris, and the unmitigated hideosity of the bathing-gown vulgaris Anglicanus. Hers is very pretty, consisting of knickerbockers and tunic of dark blue serge, with a tan leather belt, short sleeves and a sailor collar. I fancy she wears a corset while bathing, but so do many others who object to their figures spreading away, as they would otherwise do, perhaps beyond the power of the owners to collect them again into their previous limited compass. But what would Lady Harberton say.

Black silk bathing-dresses are the newest and most fashionable articles in that line at Newport, where the American belles perform their dilettante bathing. The bodices are gathered in at the waist, and are worn over tightly-fitting corsets—so I see by an American paper that Laurel has sent me. I delight in it.—"Madge" in London Truth.

Music in the Park.

There was an immense crowd in the Court House Park last evening to listen to the open air concert given by the band. The programme was an excellent one and the large concourse of citizens enjoyed it to its fullest. As the season advances these concerts can be even better appreciated than earlier, as the listener realizes they will soon hear the last one for the year.

Next Week's Exhibition.

On Thursday of next week there will be an attractive and beautiful display in the new market building, when the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society will hold its annual exhibition. The show this year promises to excel any of the past. The prize list has been improved, and already the entries are coming in, thus ensuring a good show. Flowers and plants of all descriptions and varieties will be there and, as there seems to be an unusual interest in this year's show, its success may be hopefully foreshadowed. The public owe a great debt to the Society for the beautiful condition of the Court House Park, and the support of the exhibition should therefore be general and liberal. The band will be in attendance in the evening.

MERIT REWARDED.

Presentation of Prizes at the Murray-st. Separate School by Bishop O'Connor.

A very pleasing and interesting event marked the opening days of the new term at the Murray-st. Separate school, being the formal presentation of prizes for the last term, which took place this morning. The pupils of the four divisions assembled at 9 o'clock in the Principal's room, and from the eldest senior to the smallest junior all were filled with expectancy. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was present and made the presentations. Mr. C. J. Leonard, Chairman of the School Board; and Messrs. John Corkery, Secretary; and Con. Halpin, Trustee, were also in attendance. Such a system of awards has been productive of good results in the school, inspiring and encouraging an honest and laudable rivalry between the boys who strive the one to better the other in the race for the proud first place. This is shown by the earnest way in which the boys have started in to work this term, everything beginning in good order.

Bishop O'Connor in awarding the prizes made a few remarks, complimenting the successful pupils and expressing his pleasure at the results of the examinations. His Lordship also stated that he would give a ten dollar prize to the boy taking highest marks at the entrance examination at Christmas, and Rev. Father Rudkins would give five dollars as a second prize.

Mr. Leonard, Chairman of the Board, also made a brief address to the pupils of an appropriate character, encouraging the pupils in their work and congratulating them on the results of past efforts:

THE ENTRANCE PRIZES.

In Mr. Bricks division, form IV, a number of special prizes were given to those boys who were successful at the entrance examinations. These prizes were awarded as follows:—

The first prize, ten dollars in gold, given by Mr. C. J. Leonard, to Charles Butler, who took the highest number of marks at the entrance examination.

The second prize, five dollars in gold, given by the School Board, to Wm. O'Brien, who received second highest marks.

The third prize, also five dollars, given by Rev. Father Rudkins, to Edward Crowe, who had third highest marks.

The next four prizes were books and were awarded as follows:—

4th Prize.—Matthew Hefferman.
5th Prize.—John McGrath.
6th Prize.—Ernest Henry.
7th Prize.—Jas. Grady.

IN THE JUNIOR FOURTH.

The following were the prizes awarded in the junior fourth form:—

GENERAL PROFICIENCY.—Jos. Butler.

The Finest in Town.

W. J. Morrow handles the finest goods and carries the largest stock of any house in town. Try our fine Ale, "White Label," &c. Beautiful Wines. Hamilton Ginger Ale. Our 25c. Tea surpasses all. d42w44

Do not fail to try "Montserrat" Lime-Fruit Juice this hot weather. It is delicious.

Quality Tells.

What is the first consideration when buying teas—quality. What is the last—quality. What is the best quality combined with low cost? Hawley Bros., the tea merchants, give their exclusive attention to tea. They can afford customers all the advantages that result from a special trade and buying at first hands. Always secure the best. d38tf

See to Your Understanding.

If you would succeed. One fact to be understood in this matter of understanding, and one not to be underestimated, lest the importance be under valued, is to wear Kidd's well-soled and well-sold boots. Strong, comfortable, good looking and cheap. Try Kidd the shoe man, of George-st., for boots and shoes. d39w34

A Small Accident.

A truck of a car on a western bound freight train on the C.P.R. broke about two miles east of here about five o'clock yesterday evening. An auxiliary was sent down and the necessary repairs made. The accident delayed the 5.30 express about fifty minutes.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by mothers for children teething for over fifty years with perfect success. It relieves the little sufferer at once, produces natural, quiet sleep by freeing the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste, soothes the child, softens the gums, allays pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Canadians Ahead – Peterborough Canoes Carry the Winners.

The paddling race at Jessup's Neck, N.Y., for the International trophy, is thus described by the Empire's correspondent:—The mile paddling race for the International trophy was called for 11.30 a.m., and eight men responded to the starter's signal. The water was like a mirror. At the word the eight blades dipped into the water, McKendrick went clean away from the start, leading by two lengths after 40 yards had been covered. From this he settled down to a steady stroke, and it was seen that barring accidents the race was his. Carnegie had second place and was working like a horse, but Tilley, who had made a poor start, came along and forged his canoe's nose past that of Carnegie's. McKendrick had now increased his lead to five or six lengths, and was still going further away. Perry was fourth and losing ground. Leys upset his canoe, and was done for. The winning-post was nearly at hand, and Harry, putting on a tremendous spurt, shot over the line twelve lengths ahead of Tilley, who was six lengths ahead of Carnegie, who was a considerable distance ahead of the first American. McKendrick's boat is named the Wish, and was built by English, of Peterborough. Nearly all the winning canoes here this year have been built in English's shop. Tilley did magnificently, and he will yet develop into a champion paddler.

Personal.

Mr. Alex. McNeil left at noon to-day for a trip to Europe. He sails on the Oregon.

Mrs. R. McManus and daughter and Miss Maggie Fitzgerald, of Cairo, Ill., are visiting in town, the guests of Mrs. Thos. Henry, Sherbrooke-st.

Mr. Duncan McLeod, who left Peterborough a few days ago, has made his home Helena, Montana, where he has accepted the agency of the Equitable Insurance company.

The Work of an Incendiary.

The residents in the south-west part of the town were startled from their slumbers shortly before midnight last night by cries of "fire, fire!" and the brilliant illumination of a burning building. A man passing along Paterson-st. discovered that a clap-board house owned by Mr. Peter Gifford was on fire. The alarm was at once raised and the brigade were called out. They responded with alacrity, but upon arriving at the scene the building was doomed, and as the fire was outside the reach of water the firemen could not do anything. The house and sheds in the rear were totally destroyed, the loss being between six and seven hundred dollars. There is an insurance of five hundred to cover this. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, as the house was vacant at the time of the fire. Mr. J. Irvine and his family had only moved out of the house on Monday. When first discovered the blaze was confined to the stairway of the house. The house owned by Mr. J. Mervin and occupied by Mr. Bryson, which stands next to the destroyed dwelling, was in danger at one time, but was saved by the pail brigade.

Brevities.

—There was a blank at the Police Court this morning.

—The baseball nine are to play in Cobourg on Monday next.

—Half a dozen sets of new hose couplings have been ordered for the fire department.

—The proclamation of the public holiday on Monday next is out and will be generally observed.

—A cheese factory near Napanee, belonging to Mr. J. K. McCargen, of Belleville, was burned on Sunday with 180 boxes of cheese. It was insured.

—At the cheese board at Belleville on Tuesday 1,196 boxes were boarded, of which 95 boxes were sold at 9 cents.

—At the Association matches in Toronto yesterday, Capt. Dennistoun, of the 57th, secured a five dollar prize in the "Walker" match.

—Rev. D. M. Mihell, of the Belleville Baptist church, will assume the pastorate of the Parkdale Baptist church next Sunday.

—Mrs. Chas. Lake, of Sidney, while hunting eggs in a barn on Monday, fell and broke her arm near the shoulder.

—A live hen-hawk, which was captured by a famer, was a prisoner on exhibition at Mayor Stevenson's office to-day. The bird was a fine specimen of its kind.

APSLEY AFFAIRS.

An Interesting Budget of News from the North.

Correspondence of the Review.

DAM BROKEN.—Reeve Elmhirst was in need of more water to run the Apsley mills last week and went to let off a supply held in reserve in Eel's lake. On arriving at the dam he found a heavy boom stick had been driven into the slide, breaking the stop-logs and thus prematurely letting off his reserve. The mills suffered in consequence for a few days, but are now running as usual.

BIRTH.—We congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Prouty on the arrival of a son to cheer their family circle.

HYMENEAL.—Mr. T. Eastland was wedded to Mrs. Clegg by the Rev. James Gould at the widow's residence, Chandos, on Saturday, 23rd inst. Both the contracting parties are well stricken in years, and were eminently successful in keeping their courtship a profound secret from the community. Mr. E. is the third gentleman of advanced years in our midst who has taken to himself a wife during the past two months. The younger people are receiving advice immeasurable re their dilatoriness, of course.

FROST.—Heavy frosts have visited localities, doing a good deal of damage to garden produce and late grain, and being added to the general wet weather, impeding harvest work, is making the faces of our farmers rather glum looking.

RETURNED.—Mr. Wm. Shairp has returned to his brother-in-law's, Mr. Jas. Clifford, from Peterborough, where he had gone to obtain medical advice. No hope of recovery was held out to him and we join his large circle of sympathising friends in their condolence to him and his sorrowing friends.

HE WAS PUT OUT.

"Gentlemen," said the orator fervently, "this is the most important question that ever presented itself to a free and intelligent people. I am astonished that any man pretending to have an ounce of brains in his skull can oppose free trade with the United States. The imposition of these duties keeps the people poor. Look at sugar. Why should we pay 7 cents a pound for sugar that can be had at 4 cents in Scotland?"

Here an old man in the audience rose and said:—"Then I understand that there is no duty on sugar in the United States?"

"Well, yes," replied the lecturer. "I was merely using that as an illustration of the great truth that duties raise prices—that the duty is added to the price. But then look at the vast increase of trade that would result from the opening up of the market of 64,000,000. The McKinley bill will impose a duty of 25 cents a bushel on Canadian barley. Until we secure unrestricted reciprocity it will be impossible to sell a bushel of barley in that country, and our farmers will lose a trade of $6,000,000 annually."

"If the duty is added to the price what difference does it make to our farmers?" asked the old man.

"Well," returned the lecturer, "I was just using that as an illustration of the great desirability—the absolute necessity, I may say—of securing perfect freedom of trade with the great, the prosperous, the growing republic on our southern border. The idiotic policy of shutting ourselves up within a Chinese wall of restriction might do for the fourteenth century; but it is out of date in the nineteenth century. It is the policy of the greedy cormorants and ringsters who fatten on the needs of the poor farmers. Why, I will read you a list of prices charged by manufacturers of farming implements at home and abroad to show how the monopolists make use of the swindling tariff to cheat their own brethren. The first column shows the prices at which these implements are sold in foreign countries, and the second the prices demanded in the United States:

Advance plow	$ 6 60	$13 00
Advance plow	4 00	8 00
Mower	40 00	61 00
Horse rake	17 00	28 00
Feed cutter, No. 3	60 00	80 00
Feed cutter, No. 2	28 00	40 00
Feed cutter, No. 1	16 00	26 00
Clipper cutter	9 50	16 00
Lever cutter	4 25	6 00
Cultivator	22 00	30 00
Sweep	20 00	30 00

That shows how the iniquitous tariff enables the monopolists to rob the farmer."

"Then I understand," said the old man, "that if we had unrestricted reciprocity the Canadian farmer would have to pay $18 for a plow which he can now buy for $6?"

"Well," said the lecturer, somewhat annoyed, "I was merely using that as an illustration of the effect of an iniquitous tariff. I tell you, gentlemen, that the tariff destroys a country, blights its energies, impoverishes its people, ruins its credit, and brings everything to desolation and despair. In the great and prosperous republic"—

"I don't like to interrupt," here interposed the old man, "but as duties in the great and prosperous republic are 50 per cent higher than in Canada, would not the desolation and despair be twice as great under their tariff as they are now?"

"Mr. Chairman," cried the lecturer, "I really cannot go on with my address if that white headed old ruffian—that paid agent of the greedy cormorants—is going to interrupt me at every word. Either he must be put out, or I shall be compelled to stop."—Hamilton Spectator.

Where Does He Belong?

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—I noticed in reading the report of the proceedings of the Ashburnham Council that an old man of 72 years had applied to the Council for a home, and the question arose as to whose duty it was to take care of him, "the Council not feeling it their duty to provide for him." I think I see the tottering old man, homeless, friendless, alone; none to pity; no kindly hand to minister to him; everyone shunning him lest he may be a burden to them. God pity him! What are we to do with these old people? They cannot starve. They cannot live. They cannot die to suit the convenience of their fellows. An old horse can be shot, or less mercifully turned out to die, but what, in this Christian land, is to be done with these old people? The answer is suggested by the prevailing custom—send them to gaol! Great God! Is this the highest accomplishment of Christianity?

But, pardon me, I also noticed in the estimates for the village for the year: "Charities, $200." Two hundred dollars! Just 12½c. per head on the population of the village for charities for the year! It must be what is called "cold" charity this village supplies to its poor.

Surely, Mr. Editor, it is time this matter of the poor should be dealt with after a manner in keeping with the civilization and boasted Christianity of the day.

The townships dump their poor on the towns. Like their old horses they lead them to the edge of the town and then gracefully withdraw. Ashburnham would modestly leave the merit of giving the cup of cold water to its neighbor—the town groans beneath the burden, and almost daily the Police Magistrate is called on to convict vagrants, to send to prison men who, however improvident or unfortunate they may have been in earlier life, are now objects of pity—not criminals—but only guilty of poverty, and so, as vagrants, they are committed to die in gaol. Shame upon our people! Let this disgrace be wiped out. Let the municipalities, through their councils, unite in erecting in a suitable place, a county poor house where the aged, the helpless, homeless and decrepid members of our brotherhood may get in decency at the hands of their fellows such food and shelter as the poor body needs until He who gave life shall call them. This matter cannot be shoved aside. The poor we have with us—they must be cared for, and the sooner provision is made for them the sooner we will have accomplished a task which every right-minded man will realize to be an imperative duty. CIVIS.

REVIEWS.

THE METHODIST MAGAZINE (Toronto: Wm. Briggs).—The Canadian Tourist Notes, in the September number of this magazine, conduct the reader through the comparatively little known region of the Austrian Tyrol, leaving him at the romantic town of Botzen, or Balzano. The engravings of the strange dolomite scenery are very fine. So also are those illustrating Lady Brassey's adventures in Australia. An interesting article is that describing, with numerous engravings, a pilgrimage through Bunyan's Country, in Bedfordshire. Two articles of timely interest, in view of the approaching General Conference, are an account of the remarkable progress of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist church, and a sketch among the Lapsed Classes in Toronto. Both of these articles are written by earnest souled workers in these important departments, but their modesty prevents the appearance of their names. An able article on Prison Reform, by the Hon. Z. R. Brockway, is of special interest at this juncture. Mrs. Barr's fine story of Yorkshire Methodism is brought to a fitting close; and a bright paper on the famous Methodist worthy, Billy Bray, by Mark Guy Pearse, is given. Also a noble sermon by Hugh Price Hughes, on Christ's Sympathy with the Suffering. The Rev. John McLean, Ph. D., gives in his usual terse way a brief sketch of Indian Hymns; and Mrs. Annie Crawford presents, with pathetic feeling, The Last Extremity. Methodism and the New Era and Methodism and Temperance, are timely papers, especially at this season of the year when there are so many topics before the public for discussion. A brief memorial tribute to the late Rev. Dr. Rose, and the extensive notes by Dr. Barrass, of the Eastern Conference, gives our readers the largest amount of reading matter ever presented in this magazine.

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS.

Work on the Bridge at the Village—A Narrow Escape—Accident.

A CLOSE CALL.—Mr. R. Armstrong, sr., while out fishing last Friday on Rice Lake had a narrow escape from a watery grave. Having come near where some Indians were camped his attention was carried away for a moment and his canoe capsized. He had a hard struggle for some time in the water, but an Indian woman came to his rescue with a boat.

ACCIDENT.—Mr. Wm. Stewart met with a severe accident in the grist mill on Tuesday of last week. Something having gone wrong with a pully in the attic, he proceeded to adjust it, and while pulling on the belt to start the pully, the belt slipped and Mr. Stewart fell to the next floor, a distance of 12 feet, falling flat on his back. No bones were broken, but he is sorely bruised, and so badly shaken up that he has not been able to leave the house.

THE BRIDGE.—Work on the centre pier of the bridge was resumed on Monday. The temporary bridge is completed from the locks breakwater to the south side; the canal only requires to be opened to divert the travel from the main bridge during the erection of the iron work. As bridging the canal would close navigation nothing further will be done until everything is in readiness to push the completion of the iron work with the least possible delay. The contractor of the locks swing bridge will carry on that section of the work at the same time.

AN OVERSIGHT.—All the members of the Bridge Committee except the Warden, met here on Thursday last to consider an oversight in the plans of the structure. The oversight referred to is that no provision had been made for a passage way to the carding mill, and the object of the meeting here was to consider the offer of the contractor as to the change of the plan, the estimated cost, some $850, exclusive of building a pier in the mill pond, if so decided in preference to an abutment on the island. Mr. H. M. Fowlis, the most interested, made an offer to build and maintain the necessary approach for $1,000. The committee concluded to consult the county solicitor before accepting either offer and adjourned to meet in Cobourg on the following day, Friday.—Star.

A Curious Coincidence.

One would suppose (says the Daily News) that a novelist would find it quite safe to use the word "Dives." Mr. Walter Besant, however, has realized that that word, as a proper name, has a representative, who appropriately resides in a gold region. In "The Doubts of Dives" there also occurs a still more singular coincidence. One of the characters is "Mr. Pindar," an old dramatic critic; and Mr. Dives, of Johannesburg, who bought the book because of its title, had with him a friend named Pindar, who had been a dramatic critic, and, he says, "in many other points exactly resembled the character in the story." Mr. Dives thought it worth while to bring these curious facts to the knowledge of Mr. Besant: who replied as follows:—"19 Gayton Crescent, Hampstead, March 15, 1890. Dear Sir,—I am very much amused by your letter of February 14. In using the name of Dives I used the Latin word which has always been applied to the rich man in the parable. Your own name is, I have no doubt, as you say, a form of the old name D'Ives. You are quite right in supposing that my late partner came from Northampton. I have not been to that town, and I am quite unaware of your name being found there. The coincidence of your finding the name of your friend, as well as your own name, in that little story, and that he was formerly a dramatic critic, is most extraordinary. I note it down as one of the curious coincidences that are always happening. I hope that you, and Mr. Pindar too, will very soon feel some of the burden of the wealth which so oppressed Dives in the story, and—I remain, Sir, yours, etc., Walter Besant."

VALDIMIR THE MONK.

BY SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

"None, my lord—none at all."

"Then you must remain, for the ceremony shall be performed as soon as possible."

"And does the countess know of your determination?"

"Yes. She knew it ere she retired last night. I told her she should not escape again till she could carry my name with her. By the mass, sir, she sealed her own doom! Ha, ha, ha—the Duke of Tula will have his coffers filled again. Money must come somehow, and how else so easily as this?"

"Sure enough," returned the priest, with that old cross, wicked smile. "Sure enough, my lord—how?"

"In no way. No, I'll put the seal upon that budget, and stamp it—mine! So here you remain until I am married. To-day—until that ceremony is performed, I am not sure; but to-morrow they cannot harm me. Oh—she shall be mine Savotano. To-day she is my wife—to-night she shares my bed—and to-morrow all heaven and earth and hell combined cannot undo the work. I have waited long enough. I have worked and schemed, and have puzzled my brain to one great purpose; and yet each step I had marked out has failed me. Damonoff lives—the gun-maker lives—the Black Monk lives—but I, too, live! Ha—I live, Savotano; and now the work shall be done as it might have been at first had I been so disposed!"

The duke had arisen to his feet while speaking thus, his manner had been frantic and excited. As he ceased speaking he sank back into his chair and gazed the priest in the face. He was all iron now. Every nerve and muscle was set, and a fierce determination was in his soul.

There is one more scene in the ducal palace, and it goes on at the very time while the duke and his tool are together.

Valdimir the monk was in the chamber of the countess, and the fair occupant and her maid were there with him.

"And you are sure he means to make you his wife to-day?" said the monk, in continuation of a conversation which had been going on for some moments—"that he will have the ceremony performed whether you consent or not?"

"Yes, sir," the countess murmured. She gazed into the strange man's face a few moments after she had spoken, and then, starting quickly up, she threw herself upon her knees before him.

"Oh!" she cried, with her clasped hands raised towards him, "can you not help me in this bitter moment? Do not say no. Oh, I know you have some strange power—and you may help me. You cannot know the misery I suffer. Oh, earth has no pangs more cruel! In all the long catalogue of woes there is nothing more bitter! Sir—" and the maiden raised both hands toward heaven as she thus continued—"sooner than be that man's wife I would with my own hand let my life-blood out were not the act a sin against my God! But you may help me."

"Alas, lady, I cannot assure you now."

"Oh—say not so. You can help me flee from here—you can find some hiding-place—some place where my days can be spent in safety from this great evil."

"But how can I help you away, lady?"

"Because you know some secret entrance to the palace. You know some secret passage, else you would not be here now."

"True," the monk replied, in a perplexed tone, "I do know such a way, for by that way I came, and by that way shall I return; but I cannot convey you away thus. I am sorry that—"

The monk stopped here, for at that moment a heavy footfall sounded without. He had started up from his seat when the door opened, and the stout duke entered. The countess uttered one low, quick cry, and sank down. She would have sunk to the floor had not Zenobie caught her and bore her to the couch.

The monk stood erect, with his arms folded across his breast, but his right hand was hidden within the bosom of his robe. The duke started back like one thunderstruck, and it was some moments ere he could gain the power of speech. He turned first as pale as death, and then the blood mounted hotly, fiercely to his brow.

"By the living God!" he gasped, in a hissing, frantic tone, "how came ye here?"

"To learn of your wickedness, Duke of Tula," calmly responded Valdimir.

"Ha! do you beard me in my very palace, dog! But you have ventured here once too often. As sure as there is life in me you go not hence alive!"

"Hold, Olga!" spoke the monk,—and so strange and powerful was the tone that, though the duke had turned towards the door, yet he stopped. "This lady tells me you mean to make her your wife. Is it so?"

"Out, accursed monk! Who gave thee right to question me?"

"By my soul, proud duke, you shall [illegible]. But listen: If you force [illegible] the thing you do it at your peril! You had better seek the fabled potion of the gods, and drink and be a dog, than do that thing!"

"Hold a moment, monk!" cried the duke, now nearly blind with passion; "you go not hence alive!—What ho, there! Without, I say!—Zenobie, pull that bell-cord—quick!—Back, monk! you pass not here alive!—What ho! Without there!"

"Beware, Olga!" spoke the monk, as calmly as before, at the same time drawing a heavy pistol from his bosom and cocking it. "I would shoot you as I would a dog! Offer me one motion of impediment to my passage, and you die on the instant!"

Instinctively the duke moved to one side. There was something in the look and tone of the strange man that he dared not cope with then. The monk passed out, but as soon as he was gone the duke sprang to the bell-cord and pulled it till he broke it. In a few moments more the servants came rushing in.

"Out dogs!" the mad man shouted, "and stop that monk from leaving the palace. Kill him—you have my orders, and I am alone responsible!"

Thus speaking the duke rushed from the apartment to start up more of his household. First to the gate of the court he went, but the monk was not there, nor had he been there. Then he rushed to the postern, but that was locked, and the snow was untrodden before it. He returned to the hall, and one by one the servants came back from the search.

No monk could be found!

At first Olga was tempted to believe that his servants deceived him; but he quickly set that thought aside, for he could see by their countenances that they were as much astonished as he. The search was renewed, but the strange man was not to be found. There was some wonder, and—some uneasiness."

CHAPTER XIX.

Pale as death sat the fair young countess in her dressing-room. She did not tremble now, for every nerve had become fixed in utter despair.

"Will you not change your dress, my mistress?" asked Zenobie, in a low, tremulous tone.

"No, no," the maiden replied; and her voice sounded strangely even in her own ears—it was so low and hollow; "why should I dress for the sacrifice? The dumb beast may suffer garlands about its neck before being led to the heathen altar; but alas! God has not given me a brute's ignorance to help me now. No, no, Zenobie, I will not dress for the bride."

"But the duke expects it."

"I care not. He can not ask me to do it. He may do all he wills, for I am helpless here, but he dare not ask."

"Oh, my dear mistress!" cried the faithful girl, throwing her arms about the neck of her mistress, and weeping as she did so, "would to God that I could bear this for you."

Lunch-Baskets.

The season has arrived when hundreds of travelers begin their summer wanderings, and a few suggestions for putting up lunches which shall be both tempting and satisfying, may not come amiss. With a well-filled lunch-box one starts upon a journey with a delightful sense of independence, knowing that one has nothing to fear from the railroad lunch-counter, with its overgrown sandwiches and indigestible pie and cake. No pains should be spared to make the lunch as dainty as possible, as it will lack all the accessories of a well-laid table. The writer speaks feelingly on this subject, remembering the sandwiches wrapped in a newspaper, which were thrust into her hand by a kind but careless friend as she started on a long journey.

A box is preferable to a basket, as it can be thrown away when its contents are disposed of. Select one of strong pasteboard, and line it with white wrapping-paper, cutting to fit the corners, and with pieces overhanging the sides large enough to cover the box when filled. Provide, also, a piece of brown wrapping-paper, strong twine, and a small wooden handle, that it may be a neat and easily-carried parcel. Old linen napkins, which are no longer presentable at table, should be kept for traveling use. Or, better still for this purpose are the paper Japanese napkins, which will occupy less space. Small, thin tumblers are very inexpensive, and several will add but little to the weight of the box. The provident housewife would do well to have a supply of these things in her storeroom, to help her in speeding the parting guest.

The good things provided may be somewhat varied, but there are certain things which seem indispensable. Sandwiches are especially nice made of chicken. It should be chopped very fine, and well seasoned. The bread should be spread with butter before it is cut from the loaf, as the slices must be as thin as possible. Two full slices laid together, with the chicken between, are then cut into four small sandwiches. If ham or tongue is used, it should always be chopped fine, and a little mustard may be added. The sandwiches are wrapped in small parcels, which may be conveniently handled, using white tissue paper.

Stuffed eggs are very nice, and easily prepared. Hard-boiled eggs are cut in half lengthwise, and the yolks taken out. These are mashed with a fork, adding a little melted butter, salt, pepper, and a little mustard, and then used to refill the whites. The two halves of the eggs are laid together, and each one is firmly twisted up in tissue paper. If cold chicken is provided, it should always be cut from the bones, as the process of removing it is not an agreeable one without the aid of knife and fork. It may be put in a small paper-lined box, or wrapped in several thicknesses of heavy white paper. Salt and pepper, mixed, in a little box or tiny paper cornucopia, must not be forgotten.—Domestic Monthly.

A Parasol Holder.

The traveling case for parasols and umbrellas shown here is of heavy gray linen, bound with colored dress-braid, and three sets of strings attached, as illustrated, to carry it, and to hold the case tied. The case is made sufficiently long to hold the parasols, and contains three pockets, each bound with braid and stitched on; the pockets are about four inches wide. The end that lies on the outside may have a decoration of cross-stitch done with blue or red cotton, to match the braid binding.

EARLY AUTUMN TEAS.

Camel's-Hair Princesse Dresses Being Made for Them.

Camel's-hair princesse dresses in silver gray, rosewood, pale olive, apricot and a very bright poppy red are made ready for early autumn teas and small dinners. Some are finished with Greek draperies. Less classic models have full velvet sleeves with rich bodice decorations of silk passementerie in vandyke points. On other effective gowns handsome repped ribbons with a satin edge, girdles in beads and costly gimps, and square and oblong buckles are used with stylish effect. Robes of soft real India cashmere show the draperies and bodices embroidered in silk in intricate Eastern patterns. Others are striped or barred with velvet, and have picturesque-looking collars and sleeves of piece velvet of the exact shade of the stripe. French dresses show glove-like princesse fronts or "caftans" that are nearly covered with pointed passementeries the shade of the stripe, while the outer Bernhardt surplice fronts, which fall straight from the shoulders, are caught in below the waist on each side of the "caftan" with bands of the rich passementerie which start from the hip seams. These outer fronts are of the barred cashmere, and are silk lined.—N. Y. Post.

Skin Diseases
Itching, Burning, Scaly, Crusted, Pimply and Blotchy Cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONIAL.

About two years ago I was attacked with an inflammatory disease on my face (erysipelas), which was very troublesome, being extremely itchy and painful, giving rise to the production of small bran-like scales. My general health was affected by it. I used the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP according to directions, and experienced a change from the very first day; they worked wonderfully and by their continued used for about five months I was completely cured. I have unbounded faith in the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I regard the CUTICURA RESOLVENT as the very best blood purifier; a trial will convince anyone. The CUTICURA SOAP is the best in the market, and cheap at twice its present price. I shall use no other for the toilet and bath. With the prevalence of skin diseases among us as a people (and they are the most difficult to deal with), I regard the CUTICURA REMEDIES of more important and intrinsic value to the world than any other medicine now before the public. I am with deep gratitude.
(Rev.) WM. CHARLMAN, York Corner, Me.

Cuticura Remedies
